Cadillac 75

SERIES

It Stands Out - Even Among Cadillacs !

Truly, no greater claim could be made for a motor car than the statement above. But it is undeniably true that, while every Cadillac is recognized as unsurpassed in quality, the Cadillac Series 75 stands uniquely alone in its luxury, size and distinction. Wherever you find an individual who can content himself only with the ultimate in personal transportation—there you will find a person who owns a Cadillac Series 75.

Gentleman Farmer

AMONG THE ROLLING HILLS of Albemarle and Fairfax Counties, Va., there are almost as many "gentlemen farmers" as there are white columns.

Some actually dabble at agriculture, a great many "raise only their hats."

Here in Palm Beach County, on North Military Trail, one of the social Meccas of the world and also the largest producer of vegetables in the country, it is only to be expected that some gentlemen are going to become interested in farming. One of whom is Jerald R. West.

Mr. West is a raiser of Cucurbita, sometimes known as askutasquash, or better known on the market as simply squash.

A somewhat strange produce for a gentleman farmer to be growing. Mr. West was asked why.

"Put the emphasis on 'farmer', please. I grow squash because they are particularly adapted to this section; they are interesting to experiment with, and they should be a paying crop."

There are really two sides to the story though. The "farmhouse" from the outside might be just that if it were not for the brilliant landscaping surrounding it. Of white frame construction, it rambles just as a farmhouse should, but there the resemblance ends.

Administration of the farm is done in a paneled office with pegged hardwood floors. The desk, where the business of raising humble squash is transacted, is heavy and impressive enough to belong to a Hollywood version of a magnate.

Stepping from the office, you enter the living room, very long, very cool, and as relaxed and beautiful as a sleeping child.

The "walls" on either side of this room are actually barn doors, refinished and fitted with broad windows. They slide completely away leaving the greens, flashing orange, glowing red and tropical purple of the gardens a basic part of the decor.

Just off this room is an open air room, neither really a room, a porch or a patio, but a combination of all three.

A dining porch, a projection room, a master bedroom, two complete apartments and a kitchen complete this unique farmhouse.

Visitors at the home on a bright sunlit day may be amazed when, with a flip of a switch, a sudden downpour of "raindrops" from above dances over the roof and bathes the gardens in a glistening coat of moisture.

A device of his own, the overhead sprinkling system, provides coolness when nature refuses to cooperate with refreshing rain, waters the gardens, and also gives the happy sounds of an attic on a rainy day.

Just across from the house are two other buildings, also white — clean sparkling white. These are the quarters for itinerant labor who harvest the crops. At top picking season as many as 170 laborers have been employed on the three hundred acres that comprise the farm.

Built in the most modern manner, the lodgings provide as much comfort as possible for the workers. Other buildings include a very modern barn, or storage house and a power plant that supplies force to pump water from the well to supply the manmade rain system.

The farm is situated in an area, two miles by two-and-a-half miles, where, according to Mr. West, no frost has ever been known to fall. A slight rise breaks both cold winds from the West and damp winds from the ocean side.

He points out a field across from the house where almost lime green young plants are growing and boasts "Those are as tender as young plants can possibly be, and look at them, not a sign of the recent cold weather."

The main problems of the farming project are lack and high cost of labor, and the maintaining of bridges across canals in the land. His crops are divided between sale locally and shipment to northern markets. A railroad siding is adjacent to the farm.

Plans for the future include more emphasis on cattle breeding and production.

Mr. West frankly admits that he had intended to go into the cattle business from the first, but "I actually was waiting for others to do my experimenting for me."

"Now that it is apparent that the raising of cattle in this vicinity is practical, I have begun operations with several breeds of cattle."

A small area has been set aside for the growing of small amounts of almost every vegetable and the delightful freshness of home grown foods is apparent at the West's table.

Also, some amounts are traded off to merchants for other commodities as is the farmer's custom, and with today's prices, a very happy custom.

What is now the study of the lovely house, was one of two rooms that belonged to the house when it was purchased in 1942 and had been used as a bedroom to contain the six beds of the family. If the past owners could but see it now.

Construction of the house and development of the land was necessarily slow during the war years and the material-scarce period following the war but now that the house is complete as the West family wants it and the farming operation under way, cattle will probably occupy more of the owner's time.

As for the time and effort put into the farm, Mr. West says that there is little more effort to the venture than watching after swimming pools that leak and other circumstances that go with large non-producing estates.

Society Life

There's an old saying in Palm Beach that at least once in a lifetime everybody who's anybody visits the resort. The current season had barely got under way when a stream of international celebrities began an invasion of our palm-fringed shores.

Handsome Philip Reed, star of stage, screen and television, came down from New York for a few days of sun and tennis. He was the house guest of Charles A. Munn at "Amado", and during his Palm Beach sojourn played several sets of his favorite game on the Everglades Club courts.

Another celebrity who caused hearts to flutter was Russell Nye, the musical comedy star who plays opposite Ethel Merman in "Call Me Madam". Russell was here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Winston F. C. Guest, who put him up at the Everglades Club. He too flew to Palm Beach for the sun's rays, but unfortunately the first two days of his stay were rather on the grey side. Nevertheless, the young, good-looking vocalist, who has popularized "It's a Lovely Day Today" and "You're Just in Love", rounded out his visit by being honored at several luncheons and dinners. Among his hosts were the Robert Sweenys and the George Schraffts. At the same time Russell was here, the star of "Call Me Madam", Ethel Merman, arrived for only a few days with the Edward Beale McLeans.

When followers of society read recently that Col. and Mrs. John T. Coulter had come from Montgomery, Ala., to join Countess Dorelis' house party, only a handful of people realized that Mrs. Coulter was none other than Constance Bennett, the glamorous screen star. She and her husband were here between Christmas and New Year's for a brief holiday from the colonel's army duties at Montgomery.

The early season's round of activities was highlighted New Year's Eve with the annual supper-dance hosted by the Charles B. Wrightsmans at their palatial seaside estate. Guests danced till dawn on the oceanfront terrace to music by an orchestra flown down from New York. Several hundred of the colony's smartest society attended the fete, which was preceded by several small dinners. The Robert R. Youngs gave a dinner before the ball, as did Mr. and Mrs. James Cameron Clarke. Charles Wrightsman's two lovely daughters, Mrs. Irene McEvoy and Mrs. Charlene Wrightsman, were here for the event, as were several out-of-towners who came down especially for the ball.

Another early season gala was the dinner Herbert

In the gown she wore for her wedding is the former Miss Nancy Morrison whose marriage to Mr. A. Thompson Montgomery was a late December event.

Pulitzer gave at his Wells Road home. Joe Bonni and his orchestra played for dancing and guests gathered under the enormous Christmas tree to join in singing.

A group from Rome were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Mr. Charles A. Munn at "Amado": Mr. and Mrs. Sylvio Medici, the latter of whom is the noted designer; Prince and Princess Sforza Ruspoli and Alessandra Sartoi. They were here for a holiday at the Palm Beach Biltmore, and their presence in the winter colony proved the occasion for other parties.

Following their yearly custom, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, Jr., were hosts at a cocktail party at "Glenlyvar", their home on Emerald Lane.

Guests who came in for the gala were: Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding 3d, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mitchell Van Husan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Grace, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Lee Ramsing, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley R. Recently Miss Damaris Velie was hostess at a cocktail party at the South County Road home of her mother, Mrs. Stacy B. Rankin, and Mr. Rankin, and her guests included her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Terhune Valdes; Mr. and Mrs. T. Randolph Potter, Mr. and Mrs. George Rene Mathey, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Rea, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Frick, Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Kelley, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. David Frost Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holmyard, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. James Blakely, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Terry.

Also Mrs. Hunt Slater Kerrigan, Mrs. Philip S. Hardy, Mrs. Patricia Massie Tevander, Miss Olive Mills Masie, Miss Winifred Clarke Anthony, Miss Anne Long Sory, Mr. Robert Lilien, Mr. Herbert Pulitzer, Jr., Mr. Roscoe T. Anthony, Jr., Mr. L. Clarke Anthony, Mr. Michael Rea, Mr. George Frick, Mr. Henry C. Gibson, Jr., Mr. Robert McConnell and Mr. William Pierson Rayner.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sonquist, who were married here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell, return each winter to observe their wedding anniversary in the resort. This year marked their second, and to celebrate they were hosts at a cocktail brunch at the Pell home on Middle Road.

Dan Cupid and Florida, the Moon and You played their usual roles when two weddings were early season events. Miss Elizabeth Lightfoot Schultz, daughter of Mrs. William Lightfoot Schultz, of 314 Australian Avenue, formerly of New Vernon, N. J., and the late Mr. Schultz, was married December 22 to Mr. Donald Ameen Fareed, of Santa Monica, Calif., son of Dr. and Mrs. Ameen Fareed, of Santa Monica.

The simple ceremony was performed by the Rev. Winslow S. Drummond, in the patio of his Chilean Avenue home, and was attended only by members of the bride's family. A luncheon followed at the Colony Hotel.

Mrs. Fareed was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. George L. Schultz. She chose a champagne colored dress with matching accessories and carried a prayer book that had belonged to her father.

She is an alumna of the Beard School, Orange, N. J., and Sarah Lawrence College. Mrs. Fareed sang professionally under her maternal grandmother's name, Suzanne Gilbert.

Her husband is an alumnus of Occidental College, at Los Angeles, and during his college career was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He was also graduated from the University of Southern California and the Harvard Law School. The couple spent their wedding trip at Nassau and Palm Beach, and afterward returned to Westwood, where Mr. Fareed resumed his law practice.

Miss Nancy Morrison, daughter of Mrs. Katharyn Da-Camara Morrison, met Mr. A. Thompson Montgomery, son of Mrs. Thompson Montgomery, last winter in Palm Beach, and the couple was married here a year later.

The church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea was the setting for the late afternoon ceremony at which Dr. Tage Teisen, D. D., officiated. The marriage vows were spoken before an altar banked with red poinsettias, white carnations and gladioli and magnolia leaves.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Mr. Frederick M. Morrison, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and wore for her wedding an ivory satin gown made with sweeping train trimmed with heirloom Renaissance lace. Her fingertip veil was of bridal net and was caught by a lace cap. She wore her bridegroom's wedding present, a string of pearls.

Honor attendants were Mrs. Robert E. Gorton and Miss Marty Rowsey, of Muskogee, Okla. Bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy M. Wood, Mrs. Frederick M. Morrison, Jr., Mrs. William West, of Coral Gables. They wore identical dresses of nylon net with a ballerina effect and shirred capelets. Their flowers were sprays of red poinsettias. Linda Marsh was flower girl.

Mr. John Jackson, Jr., of New York, was best man for his cousin. Ushers were Mr. Louis Auer, of New York; Mr. Robert E. Gorton, Mr. Stoddard Knowles, of San Francisco, and Mr. Gordon Davidson, of Milwaukee.

Following the ceremony there was a reception for a large company of friends at the Bath and Tennis Club.

AS MODERN as the educational methods expounded, Rosarian Academy is one of the leading private schools in the country. "Growing up" with the Palm Beaches, it was established in 1924 by the Sisters of St. Dominic of Adrian, Mich., as a resident school in West Palm Beach . . . St. Ann-on-the-Lake Academy.

Classes were held in St. Ann's parochial school until 1934, when the Academy was extensively remodeled and all academic classes were offered on the campus. In 1939 it was placed under the patronage of Our Lady of the Rosary and named in her honor, Rosarian. The present chapel and twelve-room classroom building, were constructed in 1949 on the campus of the Academy, which comprises about 15 acres of beautifully landscaped, lakefront ground.

Students come to Rosarian from all over the world . . . from Venezuela to Belle Glade! On a recent tour of the Academy, a survey disclosed that at the present time, there are students from Bogota, Colombia; Puerto Rico; Cuba; Venezuela; Ecuador; Guatemala; Panama City; New York; Maine; Michigan; Illinois; Massachusetts; California; Tennessee; Ohio; Miami, Belle Glade and the Palm Beaches representing Florida and a scholar from San Salvador, who was born in China.

Competitive sports . . . just for skill . . . are also an integral part of the well-rounded agenda at Rosarian. Basketball, tennis, swimming, volley ball, badminton, archery . . . in competition with such schools as Graham Eckes, Palm Beach junior and senior high schools.

To develop good speech habits, there is a public address system . . . the medium for sending radio programs of note, throughout the classrooms. And, effectively used for relaying important school events and academic business.

Also as modern as tomorrow, the attractive pastel uniforms worn by the students . . . smartly styled in two different versions and accented with white. The resident pupils are limited to one hundred . . . school or day students, to two hundred and eighty. Except for kindergarten, which includes both little girls and boys, the Academy is a girl's school.

The dormitories, which are done in pastel tints, are more like rooms in a private home, than a boarding school. They are early American in furnishings and decor.

The delightful absence of an "institutional look" is also emphasized here . . . not more than half a dozen students in a dormitory. There are also private and semi-private rooms.

Rosarian Academy

But regardless of the type of living quarters, every youngster in the Academy, from the tiniest tots in the first grade on through the 12th, are required to make their own beds..

For research and study, the library at the Academy is one of the most complete in the Florida school system, repeating the modern architecture of the entire group of buildings which comprise Rosarian. And, a wonderful advantage of going to school in the "sunshine state" . . . some of the classes are held out-of-doors, on the spacious lawns, fronting Lake Worth. A grand atmosphere for studying and literary discussions!

"Rosary Chapel" is a veritable work of art . . . all of the sculptoring (statues) and other decorative objects, were executed by the sisters of the Academy. The altar is fashioned of marble imported from Italy.

Palm Beach Yacht Club on N. Flagler Drive, now called "La Casa", provides an ideal setting for special programs; physical educational classes; music rooms. Tennis courts are also included in the extensive educational and recreational plans at Rosarian.

The very capable person responsible for the high standing of the Academy, is Sister Mary Brigetta, the supervising principal, who has been associated with Rosarian in this capacity, for seven years. Sister Brigetta took her graduate work at La Valle University in Quebec, the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. and the University of Florida, Gainesville, where she received her master's degree. She was elected Phi Kappa Phi, for her distinguished work in the teaching profession.

When Rosarian Academy was evaluated in 1950 by the Southern Association, it was given the highest rating possible . . . in meeting all educational requirements.

Luncheon is planned, biscuits are admired, spices are stored . . . all in the course of a Home Economics class. It's interesting and very practical . . . for all students!

It's fun in kindergarten, as the youngsters settle down for a busy morning under the supervision of the primary staff. Student nurses from the local hospitals observe play conduct.

ing Lake Worth, the modern and attractive Rosarian Academy includes the administration building, dormitories, classrooms, chapel and laundry. Spacious grounds, tropical trees and foliage enhance the setting.

School's out! At the Rosarian Academy . . . at least for the day, and fifth and sixth graders do not waste a minute of precious play time. An incomparable atmosphere for recreation!

English authors, the topic of conversation at this lakeside conference, as students combine breezy lawns with serious study. The wonderful advantage of going to school in Florida!

A very modern touch! Student councillors prepare to broadcast on a school-wide hookup, a message concerning newly proposed measures of student government. A serious business!

New York Letter

Dear Dora:

Although the Christmas and New Year's festivities are behind me, I continue to be swallowed up in a mad whirl of parties. Will the gaiety never end?

My dear, I must tell you about the Knickerbocker Ball. This year it was more divine than ever. The ballroom of the Waldorf was simply filled to overflowing, and the list of socialites was larger than ever before. Merely a few who attended were Dr. and Mrs. William Gaynor, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, the T. Markoe Robinsons, Brenda Frazier Kelly, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Mrs. Winston Guest, "Doc" Holdon, Mrs. John R. Fell, Elsa Maxwell, Mrs. James Donahue, the Eric Lodgers and many hundreds more. It was truly a spectacle, the fabulous gowns and jewels, the elegant decorations and the marvelous people who worked so diligently to make the ball such a success.

Winthrop Rockefeller and Ginger Rogers continue to see each other constantly. I ran into them the other night at the Stork and they couldn't have looked more romantic. Talk is if Bobo would grant Winthrop his freedom Ginger would become the next Mrs. Rockefeller, and when you consider how many greenbacks Ginger lost in her Broadway venture, that Rockefeller money would look mighty good.

Nancy Oakes has left New York for Mexico City where she plans to spend the winter. I hear there is a very wealthy Mexican in her life who would love to marry her, but I imagine Nancy is rather wary of marriage, and really one can't blame her too terribly much. Have you seen Euncie in Palm Beach? Doesn't Nancy's regal mother usually make an appearance at this time?

Dan Topping is wooing pretty Alice Lawson, which reminds me that Dan's estranged wife is doing the Palm Beach hot spots with Tony Pulitzer of the prize donor family. And speaking of estrangements, glamorous Brenda Frazier Kelly and her "Shipwreck" are being sophisticated about their marriage wreck. The other evening while dining at El Morocco, I saw Brenda, looking lovelier than ever, stop at Ship's table to wish him a happy new year. The two were as cordial as ever, the only sensible way, I think, to go about a friendly disagreement.

Princess Brinda, the Maharanee of Kapurthala is buying a farm near Tucson, Arizona. Brinda told chums she will learn to drive a tractor and be a regular farm girl. Now her pals understand why the princess attended agricultural classes while in New York.

Stanton Griffis, our ambassador to Spain, is reported that way about film actress Paulette Goddard. While Paulette was at Madrid, she and Stan were constant companions. Of course for sometime, smart set members whispered rumors of a romance between Mr. Griffis and youthful looking Margaret Emerson. Maggie and the ambassador have been friends of long standing, so no one really took the chatter in a serious vein. I understand Margaret's glamorous daughter, Mimi and her handsome general are still living in Germany where Eddie Alexander is stationed. Remember years ago when the two were married everybody placed bets as to how long the merger would last. The former wife of Bob Topping and the serious army man, "friends" said, simply could not make a go of it. Mimi has shown what a serious person she can be, by acting the role of army wife to perfection. Other socialites would do well to follow her excellent example.

And writing of Margaret Emerson and her daughter brings to mind that Margaret's son's step-son, young Peter Howard, is not doing so well romantically. Peter came back from Europe to join his mother, Mrs. George Vanderbilt and her husband at their South Carolina plantation and told everyone he was positively the choice of socialite-actress Betsy von Furstenberg, but it seems Betsy is having none of Peter or his Vanderbilt connections. She has publicly admitted her heart belongs to Nicky Hilton Jr., the hotel heir and former husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor. Friends say Betsy couldn't be more attractive, but at the same time scatter-brained is the adjective pals use to describe her antics. Everyone from New York to the coast is wondering who her next love will be, as Betsy always manages to windup on front pages exploiting her romantic side.

Ludlow Stevens, whom you will remember from backgammon tourneys at the Everglades Club, is vehemently denying rumors of a recent elopement. The elusive Mr. Ludlow swears to all interested parties he is unmarried and will remain that way as long as he can help it.

The smart set from Newport reports that Robert Goelet is having quite a romance with Agnes Herrick who hails from Cleveland.

Rumors that Mrs. Dorothy Spreckles would become Mrs. Charles A. Munn were stymied when Dorothy hied herself back to California following the close of Charles's houseparty at Palm Beach.

I suppose you knew Christine Cromwell Hoffman is now in the Virgin Islands where she is obtaining a divorce from Dick Hoffman. The granddaughter of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge does seem to have an unhappy time with her marriage whirl.

From all reports the Vincent Astors will not go to Montego Bay this winter, but instead have taken a house at Tucson, Arizona. Too bad—with so many of your Palm Beach socialites flying back and forth from the Jamaica paradise, the Astors probably would have dropped in on you.

Society and theatrical circles are excited about the fact that Russell Nye of "Call Me Madam" is rumoredly engaged to a wealthy New York girl with plenty of social position. Russell is keeping quiet about the whole thing, and intimates are whispering that it isn't true. Russell is a sweet person, and everyone who knows him couldn't like him more. Did you meet him when he came to Palm Beach to be at the Everglades Club as the guest of the Winston Guests? From all I hear he was entertained by some of your best people, including the very snooty Bob Sweeny and his glamour girl wife Joanne.

Dora dear, my news is running out. Please write me the gossip of sunny Palm Beach where gigolos can become society leaders in a matter of months, and soon again I shall return with the gossip of Gotham.

Much love,

JOAN

Par Avion from Paris

AN INVITATION TO COCKTAILS at the David K. E. Bruces' Trocadero mansion in Paris is formal: Under the seal of the United States is engraved "The American Ambassador and Mrs. Bruce request the pleasure of the company of Mr. and Mrs. .... at a reception . . ."

It is a small party; not more than a hundred people. Before they can begin to feel lost in the big entrance hall, a beribboned Marine officer springs forward to say: "I am Colonel Lyle. May I introduce you to Mrs. Bruce?"

Mrs. Bruce, girlish and dark-haired, waits in the first of three drawing rooms. "I have no Ambassador for you yet," she apologizes. "He had two late appointments, and in this traffic I don't know when he'll get here. We don't have a helicopter yet."

Her crisp black taffeta dress is pure Paris—oval-shaped bodice and sleeves, tiny waistline, short tight skirt and a floating panel at the back that dips eight inches below the hem on the right side. Her short hair curls upward in a halo. Her name is Evangeline and she was a career girl before she became an Ambassador's wife.

Her system of keeping the line moving is certainly efficient. After greeting guests she turns them over to a relay of attractive young women who function like ushers at a wedding. The movement is toward the library where a bar, manned by three butlers, extends the length of the room. There is Scotch and Bourbon but almost everyone takes champagne. The appetizers are nice and simple, as the best appetizers are—bite-size sandwiches of rare roast beef or tomatoes. And because this is Paris there are many little fruit tarts and cakes and candies.

The rooms are French: ceilings 15 feet high, curtains of heavy satin brocade in pale aquamarine or gold, delicate pastel love seats. But the birds cut out of stone pillars around the walls are American eagles, and there is a life-size portrait of George Washington above the mantel. Books line the library walls up to the ceiling—a beautifully-bound history of France, in French; volumes about the Ambassador's native Maryland, Dr. Kinsey's Report, Hemingway's latest, a shelf of international political commentaries.

On top of the piano, ranged in protocol, are an autographed portrait of President Truman, an autographed portrait of Dean Acheson, and an unsigned photograph of Averell Harriman.

Mrs. Charles Gombault (left), wife of the managing editor of the Paris-Press, holds animated conversation with Mme. Lise Delarme, society figure in Parisian art circles.

From left to right, M. and Mme. Herve Dugardin and M. Mistler, formerly of the French cabinet, evidently discussing the theatre, as M. Dugardin is director of the Theatre des Champs-Elysees, where "Masterpieces of the 20th Century" will be held.

The arrival of the Ambassador, tall and gray-haired, in a gray business suit, broke up vacation reminiscences.

From the Bruces' it is only a little stroll uphill to the Palais de Chaillot, for one of the superb views of Paris. The terrace looks down upon the Champ de Mars and the Eiffel Tower. But for the present there is no view, it is blocked by the temporary home of the UN which has mushroomed between the Palace and the Seine. For the artistic French to give up this view, even briefly, was no small sacrifice; it is one of the many concessions they must make to an outside world without which they would be glad to live.

In Paris, anybody with an idea usually launches it with champagne. Twelve o'clock, noon, is considered none too early for such ceremonial launchings—that is how Julius Fleischmann found himself, so early in the day, clicking champagne glasses with a roomful of French socialites and art and music lovers in the Bar Club of the Plaza Athenee. The talk was about Paris' first big fine arts festival of 1952—the Masterpieces of the 20th Century—during May. Mr. Fleischmann represents America's interest in the exposition—the Fleischmann Foundation of New York is one of the American groups underwriting it. Choosing the masterpieces and presenting them is the responsibility of the Congress for Cultural Freedom. The purpose of this festival is not only to lure tourists to Paris—it is to demonstrate to the world that the Western mind and soul are still free and capable of creation. The first half of the 20th Century, marked by such violent political upheaval, has not been a happy time for the fine arts. Yet painters have gone on painting pictures, musicians composing music and writers writing. The Congress for Cultural Freedom proposes to show, under one roof, the best of what they've done. The roof is being supplied by Herve Dugardin, director of the Theatre des Champs Elysees.

At a cocktail party announcing the month-long exposition of the arts of our time, "Masterpieces of the 20th Century," sponsored by the Congress for Cultural Freedom, Nicolas Nabokov (left), director of "Masterpieces," and French composer Francis Poulenc discuss the musical events of the exposition. The inaugural concert to open "Masterpieces" will be held at a church in Paris, where Poulenc's "Stabat Mater" will be played in memory of victims of totalitarian oppression in the 20th century.

If Lawrence Olivier and Vivien Leigh can accept the committee's invitation, they will present their fabulously successful "Caesar and Cleopatra" in Paris during May. Another highlight will be Igor Stavinsky's first appearance in Paris since the war, conducting a program of his own ballets. The New York City Ballet Company will definitely do two programs, including Prokofiev's "Prodigal Son" with decor by Rouault.

The Vienna Opera and Philharmonic orchestra will give the first performance in Paris of Alban Berg's "Wozzeck"; the RIAS orchestra from Berlin will do some Russian numbers forbidden in Russia, and the St. Cecelia choir and orchestra will come from Rome for two presentations of works of Milhaud, Stravinsky and Italian composers. Two new French ballets, now in work, will have their premieres during the Festival and it is probable that Gertrude Stein's and Virgil Thompson's "Four Saints in Three Acts" will be revived with a cast of American Negro singers. The original cast would get a warm welcome from all who saw it in America in the 30's.

Like a glade full of little white bushrooms, was the way a man described the main floor of the Theatre Michodiere at the opening of Yvonne Printemps' new play, "Le Moulin de la Galette". The mushrooms were the small round white hats worn by half the smart women of Paris. They are of satin, or thick furry plush; some paved with sequins and pearls, some plain and merely anchored with two big black hatpins or veiled in black.

The Vicomtesse de Noailles, famous Paris patroness of the arts, and Mr. Julius Fleischmann, of Cincinnati and New York, at a cocktail party given to announce "Masterpieces of the 20th Century," a month-long festival of the arts of our time to be held in Paris in May 1952 under the auspices of the Congress for Cultural Freedom, an organization of western intellectuals banded together to oppose totalitarianism. The cocktail party was held at the home of M. Herve Dugardin, director of the Theatre de Champs-Elysees in Paris, where most of the musical events of the exposition will be held.

A PLEASANT BUILDING of cool, modern architecture, housing one of the most remarkable collections of painting and sculpture, the Norton Gallery of Art situated in the heart of the Palm Beaches close to the shore of Lake Worth is indeed a compliment to everyone. It stands as evidence of one man's faith in a community; provides a civic center for the Palm Beaches which carries on throughout the entire year in activities programs; and quite in keeping with the quality of such a resort as Palm Beach where a large proportion of its winter residents are familiar with the famous galleries of Paris, Florence and Vienna, affords a collection that is rewarding to all who visit the gallery.

Presented to the Palm Beach Art League, a small group of artists and laymen who became custodians of the collection when the building was opened in 1941, the donor, Mr. Ralph H. Norton has steadily progressed in step with the growing Palm Beach communities. Each year sees new acquisitions, enlarging the status of the gallery through his generosity; and each winter brings a series of selected exhibitions and musical and lecture events.

In addition, the Gallery supports a progressive art school and a lively little theatre group for which one of the latest additions to the building provides a workshop.

From an original collection that comprised about a hundred paintings and a few pieces of sculpture, there are now close to three hundred paintings in the mediums of oil and watercolor, and about fifty pieces of sculpture.

All carefully selected with a goal in mind to encompass the world of art at an international level, the Norton Gallery of Art Old Masters group begins chronologically with the most recent addition (Dec. 1951) the magnificent "Mother and Child" by Marten van Heemskerck. Van Heemskerck was a Dutch painter, who painted in a splendid Italianate manner, and was said to have been an associate of Michelangelo. In this country not much attention has been paid to the lowland painters who so enthusiastically absorbed the Italian traditions of the time. It is realized, however, if this work of Heemskerck is a representative example, that they were unquestionably competent painters fully as capable as their Italian contemporaries in expressing this favorite subject with grandeur, power, and the monumentality desired by the times.

Americans of sincere effort find a place on the gallery walls from Childe Hassam to Charles Sheeler. Most recently acquired in this field are oils by Sheeler, Fred Conway, Anthony Toney and Dean Ellis.

There are many representative canvases by other contemporary Americans—Walt Kuhn, Eugene Speicher, Leon Kroll, Robert Henri, Ernest Lawson, George Luks and John Sloan, and in the sculpture group there are three John B. Flannagans, the latest called "Ram," done from fieldstone.

Included here also are William Zorach, Ann Norton (Mrs. Ralph H.) Brenda Putnam, Henry Moore and the Norton School of Art's instructor in sculpture the renowned Jose de Creeft.

Notables of international scope and representative of other lands include Picasso, Brancusi, Edgar Degas, and Wilhelm Lehmbruck, Jacques Lipchitz and the great French contemporary sculptor, Aristide Maillol whose "Ile de France," has just been acquired.

The graceful bronze torso, has been placed in the gallery housing the French modern paintings and now stands as though it had always occupied this important position. Maillol was primarily concerned with the human figure, endowing his solid forms with a kind of vitality and freedom that expresses the artist's sympathy with the Mediterranean and ancient Greece. Romanesque and other primitive influences are recognizable in Maillol's work, but so too is a lithe rhythm and grace that is French and unmistakably Maillol. The "Ile de France," a breathtakingly beautiful youthful form, is an outstanding work by the sculptor and a great addition to the Norton Collection.

The arrival of a second Lehmbruck to the collection is entitled "Mother and Child," one of the last works by the German expressionist before he died. Conceived in an aura of tender emotion it is a work that possesses great attraction through combining sweet gentleness with strong compassion.

Something of this same power that grows out of compassionate regard is evident in the small gouache on burlap entitled "Old Married Couple" by Paul Klee. Basically this work is a delightful abstraction of line and color, but underneath it lies a sympathy, nostalgia, and even a sadness that can come only with human understanding.

"Mother and Child", by Wilhelm Lehmbruck, a work of cast stone.

This is the second Paul Klee to bring distinction to the Gallery where among other important French moderns are works by Chagall, Braque, Matisse, Monet, Pissarro, Rouault, Redon, Renoir and Utrillo.

Also just acquired in the sculpture group which is integrated as a unit in order to present to visitors the impact of sculpture as an art form is a bronze "Kneeling," by Alexander Archipenko, and "Sea Quarry," also a bronze by Theodore Roszak.

Diversification on a generally high level keynotes the character of the entire collection and quite naturally is carried into this year's acquisitions.

The German Expressionist Max Beckman who lived in America for the last years of his life is included with "Blue Iris," a characteristic example of his wonderful sense of color and individual organizational talents. And there is a still life in oil by Marsden Hartley, a fine, late work; and a Yasuo Kuniyoshi done in 1945—"Rotting on the Shore," in that artist's more familiar point of view and palette of colorful grays.

Bringing freshness and beauty to the galleries with the new collection, in the words of Willis F. Woods, director of the Gallery and School of Art, "there is cause for jubilation for although all additions to the collection have been made with thought of quality uppermost, it occasionally happens that not until the work is actually hung is its importance fully realized. When it becomes apparent that the painting or sculpture has brought something rare and new to the collection as many opinions confirm these our latest have, there comes a joyous realization of a job well done.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora,

Despite the fact Congress isn't in session the season's usual parties have been going on at an exhausting pace.

Starred at a host of farewell parties before the New Year were Mrs. George McGhee and the former Assistant Secretary of State who was recently named Ambassador to Turkey. I don't know how the McGhees stood up under the parties, the Christmas rush in the icy horrible weather, and still managed to get their five children ready to take off right after the New Year.

Mrs. McGhee is one of the best looking and best dressed women in our State Dept., and is known for her clever management of a tight schedule and her efficient work with charitable organizations.

Among the many parties honoring the McGhees were the buffet supper given by Turkish Ambassador and Mme Feridun Erkin, an after 6:00 reception by the Pakistan Ambassador and Mme Ispahani, a dinner by the Egyptian Ambassador and Mme Rahim, another by Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Robinson, besides too many more to mention.

Another very popular couple who will be taking leave of the capital where they have served for the past eight years are the Ambassador of New Zealand, Sir Carl Berendsen, and Lady Berendsen. They plan to spend a third of their time at their home in New Zealand, a third at their home in the United States and the other third on the sea getting from one place to the other.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Purdy, popular members of Washington society, left right after Christmas to be the guests of Mrs. Thompson Montgomery in Palm Beach and to attend the wedding of Nancy Morrison and "Tommy" Montgomery. They will return to Washington the middle of January, but expect to return in March for a month at the "Breakers." The Purdys entertain frequently in their handsome home here. Major and Mrs. Franklin Babcock and Brig. General and Mrs. Richard Jordan were their guests recently.

Mrs. Edwin A. Merritt, long time resident of Washington, left after Christmas for her Pinetree Drive home in Miami Beach where she plans to stay until early summer.

New Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense, former Ambassador Wm. D. Pawley, went to Florida before Christmas to attend the "Spinsters' and Bachelors' Ball" at Miami Beach which was a charity affair in memory of a former member, Mr. Pawley's son, Clifton Dobbs Pawley, who died of polio in Mexico City last September. Funds for the ball went to a Children's Hospital where polio victims are treated.

It was quite an impressive receiving line the other night when a highranking cabinet officer from "Down Under" was entertained in Washington where he used to be Australia's Minister. Ambassador and Mrs. Percy Spender gave a gay welcome-back party in honor of Australia's Minister of External Affairs, the Rt. Hon. Richard Casey, and Mrs. Casey. The Caseys flew in from New York to spend a few days with the Spenders before winging their way on to San Francisco, and from there to Canberra. Incidentally, both the Caseys love to fly so much that they each fly their own plane.

The Robert Le Barons (he is Deputy Secretary of Defense for Atomic Energy) said goodbye to their many friends until after the first of the year at a cocktail party which they gave at the Fort McNair Officer's Club. They're off for a cruise in the Caribbean.

Another popular young couple who left with their three children for a bit of yachting in the Fort Lauderdale, Palm Beach area, are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Scrivener of Washington and South River, Md.

One of the biggest pre-Christmas receptions was hosted by General and Mrs. Clifton B. Cates at the attractive residence of the commandant at the Marine Barracks in honor of General Cates' successor, Gen'l L.C. Shepherd, Jr. and Mrs. Shepherd. Some 500 guests turned out from service and official circles. Among the many there were Secretary of the Senate and Mrs. Leslie Biffle who have just returned from Europe. Senator George Smathers who recently became a Colonel in the Marines, and his beautiful wife, Rosemary Townley Smathers. Of course Ann Willis Cates, the Cates pretty dark haired daughter, was there. She left on the Vulcania on January 3rd for four months in Europe.

Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Lovett made one of their rare party appearances and glimpsed from Capitol Hill was the controversial Senator Joe McCarthy who, like Senator Smathers, was a former Marine.

After a holiday in South Carolina and a visit at Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim's plantation at Poco Sabo, General Gates will take up his new post at Quantico. General Shepherd took over as Marine Commandant on Dec. 31st.

The Finnish Minister and his tall wife, Mme. Nykopp and their daughter, Miss Fritz Nykopp, who is a student at George Washington University, gave a large reception in December. It was their first big party since the arrival of this popular couple last summer. Mme Nykopp who has made a host of friends already in Washington was lovely in a simple black dress, the square neck of which was highlighted with diamond clips.

In town for two weeks and stopping at the Cosmos Club is one-time Washingtonian, Berryman Ridges. Mr. Ridges was in town to give his support to an exhibit of his Hans Christian Anderson collection of memorabilia at the Corcoran Art Gallery. He showed this collection with water colors done by his friend, artist Baron Maydell.

The news up here is that ex-envoy and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies are considering giving up "Mar-a-lago", their villa on the Palm Beach Gold Coast. The villa is a 40 room show place on the multi-acred ocean front. The Davies who are members of the Sailfish, the Everglades, the Bath and Tennis, and the Palm Beach Country Club, will be coming to Palm Beach from time to time, but considering all the travelling they do, guess they have decided they don't need all that space.

The present plan is to raze the mansion, but if the cost is prohibitive they will try to get a zoning permit to divide the villa and gardens into a subdivision. The Davies have one of the most beautiful estates in Washington, their enormous place in the Adirondacks, and the yacht "Sea Cloud" which boasts six master bedrooms. Early this year Mrs. Davies sold "Brookville", her 173 acre estate out on Long Island, to the Long Island University.

Believe this just about covers the Washington scene for the moment, write me now.

best to you,

GARNETT

Nassau . . .

THE NEWS THAT THE KING AND QUEEN may soon visit Nassau has overshadowed even the excitement of Christmas and New Year. According to a special cable from London to one of Nassau's local papers, a visit is likely, although as yet there has been no official confirmation from Buckingham palace officials. King George has not been in this part of his empire since the year 1927, when he visited Jamaica as the Duke of York.

Since the formal opening of the House of Assembly, with all the attendant ceremony and pomp and circumstance, the season's activities have begun to mount to its present crescendo. The large hotels — the British Colonial, with its new beach, and the Fort Montagu, with its new bar and grill, and the redecorated Royal Victoria are now open and filled with guests from all parts of the world, so that their registers now read like a combination of Who's Who and Debrett's Peerage.

On Christmas and New Years, visitors came for the Junkanoo Carnival as well as for the first two. Junkanoo is that wild, fantastically-garbed parade which is held by the natives in the early morning hours, on Bay street. From four in the morning until around nine o'clock, the island resounds with the rattling of "shak-shaks" and the pounding of drums as the parade shuffles back and forth within the confines of Bay Street. Prizes are awarded for the most original costumes, which usually feature massive headdresses — some ten feet high — and you see everything from a model of one of Columbus' ships to a giant turkey mounted on a column and born on top of a scaffold on a native's head.

Hostesses had Junkanoo breakfast parties, and the balconies of both the Windsor and the Prince George were full of interested spectators. The Prince George featured a "Junkanoo Breakfast" on its menu and that morning its dining room was full of merrymakers wishing each other "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year".

On Christmas Day, Lady Oakes sponsored the second Horse and Dog show which was held at Oakes Stables. One of the most colorful features was the dress parade of the newly-formed Dale Hunt, which gave Nassau its first sight of a traditional English hunt, complete with pink coats for the hunters and a huntmaster and hounds.

Hobby Horse Hall opened January 4, the first Friday in January, and for many weeks the jockeys and miniature horses, practiced with the starting gate, which was inaugurated last season. In the afternoon, you see the sleek brown heads of the horses bobbing in the surf as they take their afternoon dip in the ocean across from Fort Charlotte.

The Nassau Playhouse, which last season was so popular here and which this season has an opposite number in Palm Beach, will bring Claudette Colbert here in a play. Other players have not yet been announced by Philip Langner, the Playhouse' director, but last year such popular personalities as Edward Everett Horton, John Loder, and Tom Ewell were among those who were here.

Lord Percival Lee Perry, head of the Ford Motor Company, has opened his home on the east of the island, and the Winthrop Bradley's are in residence in their winter home here in New Providence.

The lovely home of Mrs. Robert Coulson, "Folly", on East Bay street was gay for Christmas, and Lord Beaverbrook, "The Beaver", as he is affectionately known, came in last month to take residence in his newly-decorated home on East Hill St.

The Countess of Seafeld arrived here several weeks ago to supervise redecoration of her new home — which she purchased here last winter, and Lady Bain is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Noble, at "Many Waters", her new home at Cable Beach.

The Mayor of Miami, Chelsie Senerchia, paid Nassau a visit right after his election and was entertained at cocktails at Government House and was guest at several very informal affairs, since he let it be known he had come over for a rest from his strenuous political life. And, also from Miami, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pancoast spent several days at the new "Picaroon" guest house on Harbour Island.

U.S. Senator and Mrs. Spessard Holland visited Nassau just before the Christmas holidays and were entertained at Government House and at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Sands, of Nassau. From London, Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson — he is a member of the House of Parliament — arrived in Nassau for the Christmas holidays. They have bought the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Miller of Toronto — "Star Acres" and Mr. Robinson will leave for London as soon as he helps Mrs. Robinson get settled in the new house.

Mr. Erik Wijk, of Sweden, stayed at the Bahamas Country Club for a fortnight. Mr. Wijk is president of the Swedish-American Line. And the Honorable Ernest Bertrand, of Montreal, Canada, Justice of the Court of Kings Bench vacationed at the British Colonial Hotel.

Lady Oakes' Horse and Dog Show featured a traditional English hunt, pre-view of the newly organized Dale Hunt members. Here, Lady Oakes takes one of her horses out for a canter.

The rhythmic melodies of Bahamian troubadours have long been popular with and confused by Americans vacationing here who have always insisted that "they play Calypso in Nassau".

At one time the folk music of these islands was almost certainly identical with the ballad-like improvisations in African rhythm which one hears so much in Trinidad and Jamaica. Today the unmistakable relationship is there, but in the Bahamas, so close to the American mainland, the indigenous music has been assailed by Dixieland jazz and Cuban and South American rhythms. Each of these three has left its indelible mark on what was first pure Calypso, that primitive never-to-be-forgotten beat born of tom-toms in the African jungles.

Today, however, the music of the Bahamas is essentially and strictly Bahamian. That is the only word which will truly classify it for nowhere else will one find the same tempo, lilt-ing, Afro-Cuban, tinged with Old Spain on one bar and New Orleans on the other.

Beautiful Hialeah Park, as seen from the air, with the lake in the infield and flamingoes inhabiting the island in the foreground, is one of Miami's tourist attractions whether the track is open for racing or not.

MIAMI ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

WITH THURSDAY (Jan. 17) opening day at Hialeah Race track, Miami's winter season officially gets under way. To Miamians, Hialeah opening and start of the winter season have been synonymous.

Opening day this year will be a gala one featuring the $10,000 Inaugural Handicap over six furlongs.

Among the Palm Beach set expected to participate in opening day festivities are P. A. B. Widener, III, the Joseph P. Kennedys, the John C. Clarks, Stephen "Laddie" Sanford, noted polo player, Mrs. Isabel D. Sloane, head of Brookmead Stables, Mrs. Widener Wichfeld, Charles and Gurnee Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Guest, and the Cortwright Wetherills. Mrs. Wetherill is the former Ella Widener.

The $10,000 Royal Palm Handicap, Jan. 19, next featured race at Hialeah, will be followed on the 23rd by the Palm Beach Handicap, also featuring a purse of $10,000.

Palm Beach patrons to Hialeah will see such outstanding horses as Delegate, one of America's top sprinters, Bold Primate, Greek Ship, Alerted and Oil Capital, 1950 winner of the $50,000 Flamingo Stakes.

One of the highlights of the Miami musical season is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 21, when Artur Rubinstein, world renowned pianist appears as featured artist with the University of Miami symphony orchestra. The concert slated for Dade County Auditorium, includes Schubert's Unfinished Symphony No. 8, Symphonic Work by Paul Hindemith and Concerto No. 2 in C. Minor by Rachmaninoff, which will spotlight Mr. Rubinstein.

Four days later, on the 25th, Marian Anderson, noted singer, will appear at the Dade auditorium. She will sing

"Recite Rondo Ch'io mi scorda di te" by Mozart, "Am I Thus Forgotten," "Suleika," by Schubert, "Wide River" and "If He Change My Name," by R. McMimsey.

Winter visitors to Palm Beach and Miami will find the city's calendar of events filled with jai alai, greyhound racing, fishing tournaments, nightclub entertainment galore, parties, swimming on Miami's sun-splashed beaches and golf tournaments to satisfy all vacationists.

Spectatorwise, the 20th annual Helen Lee Doherty Challenge Cup amateur golf tournament, beginning Jan. 23, at the Miami Country Club, will boast top names in the feminine golf world. Large entries forced tournament officials to limit the meet to six flights this year. Officials anticipate, however, more than 150 golfers will participate in the medal play qualifying rounds. Claire Doran, Cleveland, Ohio, 1951 winner will defend her title over the difficult 6,326 yard tournament course. Match play will be observed.

In addition, the University of Miami's basketball team meets the University of Tampa, Jan. 18, and Western Kentucky on the 25th, at the Coliseum.

Although the holidays are over and the holiday rush has subsided somewhat, of interest to many was the unusual way which a few Georgians chose to arrive in Miami for the Orange Bowl festivities. The Richard L. Hulls and the Inman Brandons, both of Atlanta arrived on their yachts. The Hulls docked their 46-foot "Josuno" Christmas night and the "Sea-fire" with the Brandons aboard later in the week.

Still more winter visitors to Miami brought along their yachts. The Earl B. Melraths, Buck County, Pa., have arrived in their "Melfor" and the "All Alone" with Mr. and Mrs. Allison Laytham aboard is now in Miami. The Laythams have been vacationing in the Magic City for several years. Also arriving after the New Year were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Wheeler, New York, aboard their 80-foot "Tamarac."

Sportsman Builds Speed Cars

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT could learn something about guarding capital secrets from Briggs Cunningham, Greens Farms, Conn. and Palm Beach sportsman who has a 1952 sports car in production right now but details of the model are top-super secret.

In addition to the cars planned for the 1952 Grand Prix, a model C-3, closed coupe, designed for high speed touring and a new convertible coupe, as yet unnamed, are in production at the Cunningham plant. The plant, small as such factories are considered, is a hive of activity, day and night, turning out an anticipated 25 cars in the coming year. But Mr. Cunningham expects to hit the one car weekly mark in the year 1953.

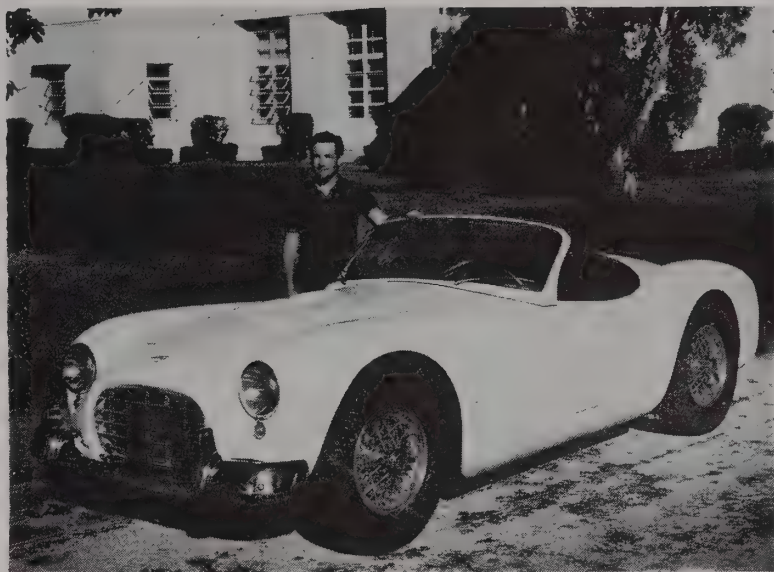

Briggs Cunningham has turned a hobby into employment, better engineering and a very good chance that America will hold an international sports car victory—the Big One, in 1952.

In a little factory on the other side of the lake, where the first Cunningham cars saw the light of day early in 1951, the sports cars that will carry America's colors into this year's Grand Prix, queen of the road races, are being readied. In the grueling twenty-four hour endurance race at Le Mans, France, Briggs Cunningham, with more time for preparation than he had in 1951, will show the hitherto unopposed European sports car manufacturers that American know-how did not die with the last previous venture, that ended when Cord suspended production in 1937. The One Million Francs (about $3,000.) first prize of Grand Prix is to auto racing what the Lipton Trophy is to yachting.

Only sixty entries are permitted to start in the Grand Prix, the cars being picked in a world-wide scramble for the privilege of racing. Last year a Cunningham car stayed in second place from the fifteenth to the twentieth hours of "the big race", and one finished eighteenth after enduring the entire day and night. Improved and prepared, three Cunningham cars placed first, second and fourth in the Watkins Glen, N.Y., Grand Prix. They took honors from a field of thirty foreign cars, the only cars previously thought capable of this sort of competition. After the Watkins Glen race, the three Cunningham cars were sent to California for sale, and are now all in Hollywood.

Road racing in general is little known in the United States as a sport. At Le Mans, crowds reaching 300,000 persons, watch some portions of the race, and in 1951 over 50,000 stood all night in a pouring rain to keep from missing a single lap. A week before the race is scheduled, fans pitch their tents nearby, eating their meals at campfires, or in the tiny cafes, as the little town of Le Mans steadily swells to bursting with fans of the fast and sturdy cars. A slow but growing acceptance of the sport in the United States is being promoted, with Briggs Cunningham in the forefront of the sportsmen-engineers. Bill Spear, Phil Stiles and George Schrafft, all well known in Palm Beach, raced in the 1951 Grand Prix de Le Mans, Spear driving an Italian Ferrari; Stiles and Schrafft a Crosley.

When Mr. Cunningham and entourage of twenty-five drivers, mechanics, engineers and technicians embarked for Europe last year, they were accompanied by 100 cases of auto parts and equipment for the three cars to be raced. All boxes of spare parts were marked with the same colors as the cars themselves, blue and white, traditional American auto racing colors. The European papers were unanimous in declaring the American racing team the best equipped in Grand Prix history.

An interesting phase of "the big race" is the rule covering mechanical repairs. A car is permitted to have as many spare wheels as desired in the "pit", but only a jack, tire-changing tool and lug wrench in the way of tools. All other tools, spare parts, and one spare wheel, are carried in the car. Since weight in the car is a large consideration, only an expert can determine what each particular car must carry as a minimum necessity, depending on the car's personal eccentricities. Tools for car repair are, as a consequence, being constantly refined and reduced in size and weight.

Upon their return to the United States, members of the Cunningham crew pitched into the enormous job of tearing down all three cars used in France and completely rebuilding them for the Elkhart, Wisconsin road racing events. The job had to be done in three weeks. Midnight oil was burned at the factory as engineers studied problem parts, bending over drawing boards with new refinements to make the sports car more durable, as well as speedy.

Another little known, in this country at least, side of the Grand Prix, is the proficiency developed, not only in handling a powerful car under road conditions, but in mechanical improvements in the cars, and eventually in all cars, as a consequence of the strictly road racing conditions. The Cunningham car has air-cooled brakes permitting it to stop in 303 feet, from a speed of 100 miles per hour, less than half the minimum stopping distance after brakes are applied to a standard car at that speed. In the same test, at 100 M.P.H., a Ford stopped in 487 feet, and a specially braked Cadillac took 517 feet to stop. A Cunningham car driven at 100 M.P.H. can be braked to safely turn a right-angled corner in less than one-quarter of a block. Lights, tires, frames and weight distribution all have very important testing and improving done in Grand Prix racing cars.

Famous Women Prefer

IF YOU THINK THE FAVORITE COSTUME of the majority of famous and "best dressed" women is a devastating and sophisticated formal evening gown, you are wrong . . . very wrong. According to a survey made in this category, careerists and socialites alike prefer, guess what . . . smart and comfortable "at home" clothes. Hostess gowns and pajamas of the Oriental type, fashioned of good fabrics and styled for relaxation!

Getting down to details, the popular fabrics for such clothes are velvet, crepe, taffeta, silk brocades, cotton. Preferred colors include white, black, red, yellow, blue. And this applies to both casual and the more formal stylings.

In almost every instance, the survey showed this statement: "The minute I get home, I change into a dressing gown or house coat." Women, such as actresses and musicians, who work and rehearse at home claim this type of costume is a virtual uniform. The majority of women queried on this subject commented: "I buy 'at home' clothes in greater quantity than dresses for daytime and evening, suits, etc."

Many of the celebrated women interviewed consider "relaxation clothes" as a sort of soother-downer and choose them accordingly . . . as to color and material. Such as Mary Martin, who made such a tremendous hit in "South Pacific", who has a wardrobe of negligees and dressing gowns, made of shantung and silk jersey, in cloud white, sky blue, leaf green and earth brown. "Because these colors of nature are the ones that relax me." They are styled as house coats of ankle-length, or bias-cut sashed robes . . . her favorite attire for the hours between matinee and evening performances, when she is appearing on Broadway.

An unexpected sense of fantasy in dinner-at-home clothes showed up in the negligee wardrobes of a number of celebrities who are noted for ultra-simplicity in dress. Hattie Carnegie, topflight designer, said: "I like to relax in Chinese silk pajamas or straight floor-length coats made of beautiful colors and fabrics. For dinner at home, I prefer two-piece costumes . . . either a full ankle-length skirt and little jacket of silk brocade, or slim black trousers teamed with a very elaborate embroidered jacket of pastel satin. For my country home, my favorite dinner suit is black slacks and a Tyrolean velvet jacket that I've had for years."

Luli Kollman, Viennese born socialite and novelist, has a smart wardrobe of dinner-at-home clothes which includes Persian embroidered coats and trousers and Mandarin robes. "I adore princess-styled coats of fabulous satin or chiffon, over exotic Persian trousers. Also authentic Mandarin coats of gorgeous brocades. Yellow is my choice of color for costumes of this type. . . . I find it cheerful and restful," she volunteered.

Louella Parsons, noted columnist, prefers black velvet "tea gowns" for her interviewing and column writing at home; black with a touch of lace. "They don't look boudoirish and yet they are very feminine and wonderfully comfortable. For traveling, I like tailored flannel robes, with a huge flourishing monogram on the pocket."

Said Adele Astaire Douglas, socialite and former actress of note: "Since I like the tailored type of clothes, my house coats and negligees follow this simplicity of line. Pastel tones are my preference and my favorite is a sheer wool robe lined with chiffon. I practically live in it during the winter. For summer, I am fond of small-patterned prints in thin silk.

The most stimulating color I think is red . . . it is smart looking and really gives you a lift."

"I do a great deal of my rehearsing at home," commented Jane Pickens, noted singer, "and therefore have definite preferences about the clothes designed for house wear. My favored morning robes are of flannel with three-quarter length sleeves, large pockets and a generous swirl of skirt. Since I am usually out for luncheon, I have another type of negligee or house coat for afternoon . . . before dressing for dinner. These are made of soft materials in pinks and blues. I particularly like clingy fabrics in which to relax and read, especially velvet, in 'dressed up' stylings."

Jinx Falkenberg McCrary, popular radio commentator (Tex and Jinx are one of the most famous Mr. and Mrs. teams) and former movie star, loves bright colors and wears them all day, every day. "The more casual my negligees are, the better I like them . . . solid colors in simply cut styles, but not too tailored. In blue, I prefer brocade; in yellow, glazed chintz or crinkly taffeta; heavy white cotton with eyelet embroidery and sometimes, red ribbons here and there for gay contrast. I like a fitted bodice, long full skirt and short sleeves, because such styling gives the appearance of a dress."

"My at home clothes are such as an essential part of my wardrobe, I have given them special names," remarked Austine Hearst, socialite-writer. Among her collection she cited "Show Off" for entertaining at home; "Slow Down" for relaxing. For the former, lilting colors, trailing sleeves and sweeping skirts, fashioned of taffeta or other luxurious fabrics. The "Slow Downs" she noted are of the simplest materials, such as terry cloth, seersucker, nylon and Chinese silk; always in pastel tones. "I have no favorite color," she said, "but do prefer solid colors to prints or checks."

Jonathan Dickinson Park

A WONDERFUL WILDERNESS of 11,124 acres, within an hour's ride of Palm Beach, will one day become available to the public, as one of the finest state parks among the 36 now owned by the state of Florida.

South of Stuart, across from Hobe Sound, the vast tract which came into prominence during World War II when the Army created Camp Murphy, it was purchased from the federal government in 1947 and named Jupiter State Park by the Florida Board of Parks.

Just a year ago it was decided to rename it Jonathan Dickinson Park in honor of the intrepid Quaker who surviving shipwreck, near the site in 1696, lived to write an American classic—"God's Protecting Providence."

The second largest of state parks in Florida, it encompasses a vast and wonderful wilderness of back country, which when ready for visitors will offer almost every form of outdoor recreation plus an area of great interest to scientists, sportsmen, and nature-lovers.

Its sand dunes are among the most beautiful and unspoiled in the state, and "Hobe Mountain," within its confines, 72-feet high is the highest point on the east coast.

Development of the park, when funds are available, and visitors to the region, without destroying the natural beauty of it all.

When completed and opened, Jonathan Dickinson Park will offer as much from a scenic standpoint as any area along the east coast of Florida, and historically it is a leader in lore and legend marking the site of one of the longest death marches in modern history.

The famous "Dickinson's Journal", which scholars have edited over the years—the most recent having been done by Evangeline Walker Andrews and the late Charles McLean Andrews, professor of American history at Yale University, is a journal of the Quaker merchant's hardships suffered when sailing with his wife and small son from Jamaica to the new colony of Pennsylvania in 1696, they were shipwrecked on Jupiter Island "in a gale,"—we call them hurricanes now.

It is of special interest to note here that Professor and Mrs. Andrews were spurred on to reprint and edit the Dickinson's Journal because of their friend, a familiar figure of the Palm Beaches, Mr. Louis Capron.

will create roads and foot trails to provide access to all attractions, natural and man-made. The long-range plan calls for boating and swimming facilities, youth camps, a lodge, riding stables and sand skiing.

And for fishing folk the area will be a paradise, the upper Loxahatchee yielding the finest black bass; the Gulf Stream for bigger fighting fish just off shore; and Hobe Sound, home of the smaller gamey species close by.

Every effort, the park board advises, will be made to create a park usable by residents of the southeast coast, of the Journal, pointed out to his friends vacationing at Jupiter Inlet that they were living on ground made historic by a shipwreck that occurred some two hundred and fifty years ago.

Thus it was the good fortune of the Andrews to see and explore the Journal for the first time in its own setting, as it were, on top of the ancient shell mound at Jupiter Inlet, where the lovely Loxahatchee meets the ocean.

"Often," they write in the introduction to the Journal, "we found ourselves talking of these astonishing people, who seemed entirely real even after so long a lapse of time. As night came on we could almost see the Indians and their prisoners cowering below us, almost smell the smoke of their fires, almost hear the outlandish noises that terrified the ship's company of the barkentine Reformation nearly two and a half centuries ago."

And here in the very location where Dickinson and his party fell to the hands of savage Indian tribes, even today you may sit on the beach where the Loxahatchee, draining the magic Everglades, enters the waters of Jupiter Inlet, and become aware that on the north and south are long, silent stretches of coast little changed over the centuries except where winds and waves have taken a hand in carving new cutlines and here and there obliterating old landmarks, destroying an island, perhaps creating a new one.

For all of that, you might be looking through the eyes of men who knew these shores back two and a half centuries ago, looking with the vision of mariners whose chief idea it was to avoid, if possible, the dangerous coast of Florida and its warlike Indian tribes.

The company of 25 Quakers, together with seamen and slaves, were thrown ashore in a savage, new world where primitive Indians who once lived in the Jonathan Dickinson state park area "came running fiercely and foaming at the mouth."

The shipwrecked party armed with muskets, had to make a choice whether they would fight overwhelming numbers or place their trust in God.

"We sat ourselves down," Dickinson wrote in his

the fierce and primitive tribes.

The Quakers, captives of the Indians, wanted to be guided northward to St. Augustine from where they hoped to reach the Carolinas and eventually Pennsylvania. But the Indians took them south to a large Indian town at Jupiter which was at that time called "Hoe Bay."

It is believed that through gradual usage and lingual error "Hoe Bay," is the Hobe Sound we know today.

Eventually, and through prayer, as Dickinson reiterates many times in his journal, the party was escorted northward by their captors to St. Lucie Inlet.

Sailing out of the inlet today, serene and safe, it isn't easy to imagine the hapless band of Quakers stripped naked by the Indians, referred to by Dickinson as "cannibals," then tauntingly given leaves torn from their bible by the savages to cover their nakedness.

"Through all of this," writes the Quaker, who later became chief justice of Pennsylvania, "we kept our human dignity and close touch with a God who did not fail us."

Little by little the shipwrecked group inveigled the Indians to guide them northward. They were forced to walk the beach, and for food given only fish guts which the tribesmen tossed them as the spirit moved them.

Plagued by mosquitoes and half starved, (one of the company froze to death in a "blue northwester,") which struck as they approached north Florida, the Friends finally reached St. Augustine where they were transported to the Carolinas, in dugouts, by more friendly Indians, the Yamassees, and thence to "Charles Town" with the aid of Spaniards journal, "expecting cruelty and hard death, except it should please the Almighty God to work wonderfully for our deliverance. In this deep concernment, some of us were not left without hopes; blessed be the name of the Lord in Whom we trusted."

And while the Dickinson journal constitutes most that is known of the tribal life of Indians inhabiting the Florida east coast at that time, the actual theme of the account centers about an unswerving faith in God, Dickinson attributing such faith to his and his party's final deliverance from who lived in the region. From here Dickinson wrote:

"I and my family set sail and had a fourteen day passage to Philadelphia."

Thus, in keeping, with all other Florida state parks strictly intended to preserve historic and scenic areas rather than to provide formal gardens with park benches, Jonathan Dickinson it may be observed, will be among the richest. And one day, as has been advocated by those in charge of the park development, there may be an annual Jonathan Dickinson pageant of nationwide significance.

Beyond impressive facades in Palm Beach's Ocean Boulevard such tranquil and tropical vistas exist. Here a part of the spacious grounds about "The Fourth Estate," home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry is pictured the swimming pool and patio, guarded by vine-covered walls and generously appointed with comforts for outdoor living.

A profusion of palms, quaint little lakes, a Japanese tea house, and flagstone path-ways attract the eye in a Palm Beach tropical wonderland in So. Lake Trail. Pictured above are but glimpses of the beauty that becomes Nature's when man lends a hand in ornamental guidance. At the Byron Miller estate now occupied by Mr. Coleman Cooper such scenes are at every turn where paths lead from a vast smooth grassy expanse bordered deeply with specimens of the many-colored Croton.

Gloriously in bloom—the melaleuca leucadendron or paper-bark tree, one of the most dramatic found on the Palm Beach horticultural scene. Of a very large genus originating in Australia and East India even the lowly myrtle is a relative. Gracefully set on spacious grounds of the former Byron Miller estate in So. Lake Trail now occupied by Mr. Coleman Cooper, this particular melaleuca is an especially fine specimen.

"Architecture is frozen music" said an eighteenth century philosopher and this truth is well illustrated in the recently acquired residence of Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell and her daughter Miss Ann Mitchell at 1520 So. Ocean Boulevard.

The building designed in 1924 for Franklin P. Smith of Chicago by Marion Sims Wyeth is in Florentine style and is now undergoing repair for winter occupancy by the new owners.

The 125 feet of ocean frontage as well as the 600 feet of depth from ocean to lake can be observed from many vantage spots in all rooms on the main and second floors and from the picturesque gardens.

Featured in remodelling will be the coordination of color harmony of the spacious patio and French styled loggia both set in unusual hand wrought iron grills designed and made by the F. P. Smith Iron Works, owned by the first occupant.

In the attractive terraced gardens, banked with tropical plantings are two circular fountains on the center walk leading to the lake landing, while shrubberies serve as flowered frames for sculptures of classic cherubs on pedestals, after the style of Donatello.

The aerial photograph here shown indicates the effective planning of house and gardens which Mrs. Mitchell and daughter expect to take possession in early spring before going to their summer home in Greenwich, Connecticut.

Gaiety Reigns at Palm Beach Biltmore

OPENING ITS DOORS early in October, Dan Taylor's impressive Palm Beach Biltmore hotel with its twin penthouse towers dominating the skyline of this internationally famous tropical isle has been the scene of numerous glittering parties.

Dan Taylor, who purchased this mammoth hostelry some three years ago, spending a cool three million in rejuvenating Florida's largest resort, played host to over four hundred guests at his annual cocktail party in mid-December. Held on the beautiful Tropical Terrace, overlooking picturesque Lake Worth, intracoastal waterway southwards, guests included many of Mr. Taylor's friends from Cuba and Norfolk, Va.

"Escapees" from Finland's sunless three months are the Bjorn Strandells, of Helsingfors, Finland, at the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel to soak up some of that good Florida sunshine.

In a gay mood at sidewalk cafe party of the West India Room in the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel are Dwight Paul, Center; Mrs. Henderson McLean, of Washington (left), and her house guest, Mrs. Elder Mehle, also from the nation's capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taylor, William Taylor, George Lanning and a host of other well-wishers flew in from Norfolk for the gala affair, also attended by the Leslie Taylors, who reside here. Traveling via the new "Q" Aerovias from Havana were such Cuban society notables as Mr. and Mrs. Jose Gorin, Mr. and Mrs. Enrique Rodriguez, Emilio Sanchez, prominent sugar king of the island; Mrs. Sanchez, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dussaq and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Buttari. James J. Farrell, general manager of the Biltmore for his third year, was also on hand to greet many of the guests.

First of the major nitery openings drawing a large throng of Palm Beach colonists was the formal debut of the new West India Room, nestling in the lower lobby of the Biltmore. Operating under a swank new policy with Thomas Doherty, formerly social secretary of the Everglades, as manager, the West India Room is featuring the superb French cuisine of chef Georges Mouton, of Ciro's, Paris, and other top-notch dining places, with John Ricca, for many years with Bradley's, as maitre d'.

Completely redecorated by the noted decorator Christoph Castou, it includes a romantic "Sidewalk Cafe" in the French manner, surrounded by illuminated tropical shrubbery. At the opening were such well-known personalities as the Dennis Hoeyes, with Mary Howes, Mrs. Ola Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Neal O. Miller, the Guy Verne Fergusons, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney King Russell. Mrs. Hoey is a poet of note, writing under the name of Bayka Russell, and Mr. Hoey a well-known star of the motion picture world and legitimate theater. Mary Howes will direct the new Palm Beach Playhouse this season.

Most important news awaited by all race fans on the island is the news that Dan Taylor will again operate his fabulous race train from West Palm Beach direct into the grounds of the Hialeah race course. Known as the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel-Hialeah race track train, it will comprise three air-conditioned coaches and four de luxe club cars, with reserved seats, for the serving of beverages and sandwiches. The first run from the Florida East Coast Railway station will be on Thursday, January 17th, opening day of Hialeah, and again that week Saturday, January 19th. Thereafter this race special will operate every Monday, Wednesday and Friday during the Hialeah meet, departing at 11:30 a. m. and returning from Hialeah at 5:10 p. m. Round-trip coach tickets may be purchased either at the F. E. C. station or the transportation desk of the Biltmore, while reserved-seat tickets are available only at the Biltmore.

The Biltmore has been the mecca this year for interesting foreign personalities. Mrs. Ernesto Vallenilla and her daughter, Christina, of Caracas, Venezuela, have been enjoying a sojourn here. They will depart on the Ile de France in mid-January to spend the winter skiing in Switzerland. Mme. Jacques Bollinger, of France, who heads the great Bollinger champagne dynasty in Ay, paid a flying visit to the Biltmore prior to sailing for her homeland. Visitors from Athens, Greece, spending their first Yuletide holiday in Florida were Mr. and Mrs. George Dracos. Mr. Dracos is general secretary of the Association of Greek Manufacturers and was among 360 delegates from 18 countries coming to this country for conferences on the Marshall Plan.

Honeymooners from the snowbound city of Chicago are Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Egan, of Oak Park, Chicago suburb. They will be joined by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Egan, who were here last season. Many family groups are favoring the Biltmore, and recent arrivals from Sayville, Long Island, are Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Tuck and their children, Fred, Merle and Nancy.

The Biltmore yacht moorings will again be home for many of the country's pretentious yachts headed southward. In port are the popular John Porters, of Chicago, aboard their "Sea Dream". Other yacht returnees included the "I-Go-II", skippered by James V. Igoe, of Shrewsbury River, N. J., and the "Majubob", owned by Robert Harriss, of Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y. A frequent yacht visitor is the ninety-foot "North Star", from Miami, with S. A. Lynch at the helm. Another large yacht is the "Nor-Wer III", making its first season at the Biltmore docks. It is owned by Norman Quasebarth, of Arlington, Va., and Washington, and has been the scene of numerous yachting parties.

There will be cocktail dancing nightly on the Tropical Terrace of the Biltmore as well as in the West India Room from 5:30 until 7:30. The popular Sunday afternoon fashion shows will highlight the gay resort life centering around the Biltmore's Tropical Terrace, where sumptuous and bountiful buffet luncheons tempt the midday diner.

Park Avenue, New York, "socialites" on the Tropical Terrace of the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Neil S. Walsh, whose daughter, Joan, is attending the Graham Eckes School here.

PATIO

DINNER PARTIES AND DANCING gave the popular Patio Restaurant at Sunset and North County Road a grand sendoff on what promised to be the greatest season in the history of the resort.

Opening its doors on December 22, it marked the first time that the Patio was open before Christmas. And the early opening made it possible for the management to have a party on the "night before Christmas."

The early opening was attributed to the larger number of people in the resort this season, and many there were on hand for the first night of dancing to the delightful strains of maestro Val Ernie's popular society orchestra.

They were pleasantly surprised with the new decor of the Patio. It was done over by Jerry Valentine, well-known interior decorator. An appearance of spaciousness was attained through the removal of pillars around the dance floor. The new color scheme of black and white is very distinctive, and the open roof and plantings result in a truly tropical atmosphere.

Noted for its fine French cuisine, the Patio has been a popular dining spot for all its many years in Palm Beach. It has come to be known as the place to see and the place to be seen, but that is only one of the reasons it is so popular with resorter and short visitor alike. Prominent persons of society and the business, sports and entertainment fields make it a must stop when in the area.

Some of Palm Beach's best-known names were on the guest list opening night. They included Mr. and Mrs. Michael Phipps, Mrs. Raymond Royce Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Coe, Mr. Milton Holden, Mr. Marshall Heminway, Mrs. Daniel Topping, Mr. and Mrs. J. McAuliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell and Mr. Christopher Dunphy.

There were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Norberg, Mr. Oscar Seebass, Mr. Henry Lustig, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Turnure, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Ferst, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Cosgrove, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Johnson, and Mr. A. B. Chandler, the former commissioner of baseball, who is a regular visitor to the Patio when in the resort.

MIRAMAR

NANDO'S ULTRA-SMART MIRAMAR once again welcomed a noted array of Palm Beach socialites opening night, and since then has catered to capacity crowds.

As is its usual custom, the Miramar specializes in authentic Italian food, a continental atmosphere with old world charm, and service unequaled in the Palm Beaches.

From the moment you enter the restaurant, you sense an atmosphere of welcome and cheer, and the restful and unusual decor of the Miramar is in itself an attraction which makes the Miramar the most noted of the after-dark spots.

This year there is the Florentine Room, a masterpiece of production, available for private parties, large or small, and for late supper gatherings.

The mood created by the Florentine Room is in complete accord with traditions emphasized by the Italian renaissance. An unusual effect there is the glass panel along one side of the room, depicting in glorified color the coats of arms of distinguished Florentine families. The ceiling, an innovation in the Palm Beaches, has unusual arrangements of vines and twigs from which grow clusters of grapes and other tropical fruits. Other decorations include heavy chains grouped around the rooms. These, as were all modes of decoration, were imported from Florence during the summer.

This year Eddie Zimmerman, well known to the winter colony, is host at the Miramar, while all facilities of the restaurant are under the direct supervision of restaurateur Nando di Filippo.

Noted at the Miramar were Mr. and Mrs. Avy Barrell Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gray S. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheldon Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Mario de Tulio, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman, Mrs. Columbus Healy, Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mr. Kingsley H. Murphy, Mr. Elmer Rich, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prior, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Schwill, Princess Jane Obolensky, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Shevlin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Sweeny, Mrs. Mary T. # Palm Beach Hotel

THE BUSIEST SOCIAL SPOT in socially active Palm Beach this season is a sprawling, peaches-and-cream building nestled among the stately royal palms on Sunrise Avenue near North County Road.

One look at its delicately ornate facade—at the arabesque columns draped with lush bougainvillea, at the pretty little white balconies peeking through the palm fronds—and one knows that the Palm Beach Hotel must be synonymous with gay, active winter vacations. And it is.

Certainly the first month of this season has borne out the Palm Beach Hotel's claim to the "never a dull moment" slogan. The hotel opened December 14th, and guests have been caught up in its social whirl ever since.

Of course, the busiest time was spent during the recent holiday season. The Palm Beach Hotel was filled to capacity, mostly with family groups whose youngsters were enjoying winter recesses from school or college. And, with full, separate programs of activity for each age group; ("juniors," the preschool and elementary school children; "preps," the younger teen-agers, and "collegiates") as well as the adults, each member of each family well could write to friends back home, "Having wonderful time . . ."

Three expert counselors were on hand to supervise the morn-to-twilight activities for the children, that started Saturday, December 22nd with a "Coketail Party"—while the older folks were enjoying their first formal cocktail party.

There were many highlights for the youngsters after that. An excursion by boat took them to the alligator and monkey farms the afternoon before Christmas. That evening, a Christmas Grab Bag Party, with songs and recitations by the children rewarded with a round of egg-nog, sent them off to bed almost too busy thinking of the wonderful time they had spent that day to wonder about Santa's visit that night.

But they discovered in succeeding days that it was Christmas every day at the hotel. Later that week, the tots went on an all-day excursion to the Florida jungle that included a thrilling visit to a hunter's lodge. All the children "dressed up" for a masquerade party the next evening and the following morning had one fine time learning all about rods, reels, and tackle at the fishing expedition.

The night before New Year's Eve was another big one for the juniors and preps—and their parents. A "Talent Sprouts" variety show presented on the West Patio stage received an enthusiastic ovation from the proud parents. The fun-filled vacation ended for most of the school-age children with their own New Year's Eve party. But activities for youngsters continue right through the winter season.

The college folks on hand for the holidays thought they had the best time of all and they may well have been right. For not only did they participate in the regular guest activities, but they also enjoyed a share all their own.

Most of the Betty Co-eds and Joe Colleges arrived the weekend before Christmas. That Sunday evening they met one-another at a Collegiate Get-Together Cocktail Party in the delightful West Patio.

The next evening, they boarded a cruiser at the Palm Beach Ferry Dock for a moonlight sail on Lake Worth. A bike trip around the Palm Beaches, complete with picnic lunch, followed on Wednesday. Friday evening, they gathered in the West Patio again, this time to enjoy a satisfying dinner-dance. Sunday eve it was a gay, informal beach party with roaring bonfires and all the fixings. Books and final examinations were forgotten completely in the bustle of activity throughout the vacation.

There was enough bustle for the older folks, too, intermingled with the welcome rest and sunshine at the Cabana Beach Club and Olympic Pool. In addition to the gay cocktail parties, formal dances, gala shows, champagne hours, and other events that are seasonal features at the hotel, there were a number of special events for the holiday.

A glamorous fashion show was held one evening in the West Patio. A group of lovely models, including Caroline Stroupe, "Miss Palm Beach," displayed the collection of sport and dressier dresses, beach togs, and accessories.

One of the brighter spots on a bright calendar of events was an aquashow presented by the Pete Desjardins troupe. Held under the stars at the Cabana Club, the show featured such water wizards as Katherine Rawls, twice a member of the United States Olympic team; Bob Maxwell, the world's outstanding acrobatic diver, and Earl Clark, nine-time national diving champion. Also on the program was a graceful water ballet group and the famed "Aquamaniacs." A delightful post-show, poolside repast and dance topped off the colorful evening.

Of course, the peak of holiday joie de vivre was realized on New Year's Eve. It started with an informal champagne cocktail party at 6:00, which was followed by dinner. At 9:45, the guests, by now formally dressed for the evening's festivities, gathered to dance in the West Patio to the music of Dick Gasparre and his society orchestra and Paul Barad and his Latin American ensemble, both of which play at the Palm Beach Hotel throughout the season. A variety show followed and lasted until midnight.

The New Year was welcomed in the gayly-decorated Main Dining Room and then the fun really started: a midnight steak supper, more entertainment, and dancing and merry-making until the wee hours.

Yes, another busy season is under way at the Palm Beach Hotel.

AWAY WE GO: It's off for a spin under the palms. Lake Worth bike trail is a cyclist's dream. Dr. and Mrs. Julius Hopkins are at right.

THE ENTRANCE AND CENTER FACADE of the Palm Beach Hotel captures the spirit of the hotel itself. Faced with pink stucco, set off with white balconies and decoration, the entire mission motif is one of life at its sunny best. The Palm Beach, on Sunrise Avenue between Bradley Place and North County Road, opened its season in mid-December and was filled to capacity during the holidays.

Jamaica, B. W. I.

JUST THREE HOURS SOUTH OF FLORIDA by air lies one of the most attractive of all tourist centers in the western world.

It is the tropical island of Jamaica, known for years to many discriminating North Americans who vacation in the warm climes during the winter season. During the last few years, the picture-book island has been steadily increasing in popularity with North Americans.

Jamaica is one of the few exclusive places where prices have not shot upward as they have in this country and also in other foreign resorts in the Americas. This is due chiefly to the devaluation of British money so that the American dollar buys in Jamaica much more than it does in any other place at the present time.

Five airlines connect Florida with Jamaica, with Pan American World Airways leading in its frequency of service. Pan American flies from Miami directly into Montego Bay, the noted North Coast town known locally as Jamaica's "Little Palm Beach". Other airlines include Royal Dutch Airways (KLM), British West Indian and Caribbean International Airways, all operating from Miami, with Trans-Canada flying direct from Tampa to the island. The cruise steamer, Nuevo Dominicano, operates monthly between Miami and Kingston, Jamaica's capital city.

Every form of outdoor, sunny weather recreation is at hand in Jamaica, including the unique thrill of "rafting on the Rio Grande". This form of entertainment is found in no other place in the world.

You ride on a large bamboo raft, poled by a muscular native, and float down the beautiful river between banks of gorgeous tropical flowers and trees. You shoot through the gentle rapids at a lively speed, but without any danger. The trip is exciting and fascinating without any of the discomforts of similar sports.

What impresses visitors from northern countries more than anything else in Jamaica is the complete dependability of its sunny and pleasant weather. There are no precious vacation days lost there during the winter season on account of undue cold or rain.

The Jamaica Government Railway is now operating Diesel-coach trains on its Kingston-Port Antonio Line. The British-built coaches, with de luxe equipment and leatherette-upholstered seats, will each accommodate 70 passengers and can haul a trailer coach carrying 90 more. Running time has been reduced from 3 hours and 50 minutes to 2 hours and a half, thanks to the greater speed of the Diesels and their ability to surmount grades, such as those encountered during the climb over the Blue Mountains to Port Antonio, without a helper locomotive.

The Jamaica Government Railway expects to extend its Diesel service to the Kingston-Montego Bay Line as soon as sufficient equipment is available, and it is expected that use of the most modern power will reduce the present running time of 7 hours to about 4½. On this line the high point is 1705 feet above sea level.

The savings in operation will be of economic importance to the government-owned line because a passenger Diesel will run at least twice as far as a steam engine on one fueling. The low center of gravity of these trains enables them to take curves at higher safe speeds, which is an important consideration in negotiating the many twists and turns that are encountered on the lines to Port Antonio and Montego Bay.

The Upton Country Club, 2½ miles inland from the White River bridge, on the Ledge Road, and within five miles of Ocho Rios, on the north shore of Jamaica, B.W.I. has opened this month, with nine holes ready to play. The course sweeps through a beautiful expanse of park land which has a remarkable resemblance to an English landscape and the layout takes advantage of natural water hazards.

The club was built and will be directed by its owner, Philip K. Saunders, retired wealthy British industrialist, the inventor of several types of valves which are used throughout the world in industrial and construction projects, including some in Jamaica.

The small town of Little Bay, in Westmoreland, on the southwest coast of Jamaica, B.W.I., has been transformed into a beach resort. A main resort building has been constructed which contains baths supplying four varieties of water; sea water, mineral water, and hot and cold fresh water. This central edifice is surrounded by a number of small cottages designed for vacationists and honeymooners. There is also a swimming pool, in which mineral water alone is used, and a hard-surface tennis court. Deepsea fishing is excellent at Little Bay, as various kinds of game fish, occasionally including large tarpon, run in the waters offshore and are landed by amateur and professional fishermen.

Visitors to the tropical island of Jamaica, B.W.I., over the Christmas holidays had opportunities to see the "John Canoe" dances which were revived this season on a larger scale than ever before at a number of hotels.

The name "John Canoe" is believed to have derived from the French "gens connu" or perhaps "gens inconnus", meaning "unknown people", which has been corrupted into "Junkanoo" on the island of Nassau, where the dances are performed as an annual carnival.

These picturesque dances were brought from Africa by the slaves, several centuries ago, and have persisted until this day among their freed descendants.

The carnival is essentially a masquerade, at which the principal performers are known by such names as "John Canoe", the Queen, the Devil, "Horse-head", "Cow-Head", and "Actor Boy" or "Koo-Koo". There are also what are known as "Set Girls" and, oddly, they are all men! The Devil appears in old black rags with a big chain around his waist and his face smeared with lamp-black, showing his white teeth and red eyes, with a sword in his hand. The captain or leader blows a whistle to start or stop the music or call his band to order.

"John Canoe" is the most conspicuous character in this ballet, but "Actor Boy" is the most gay and dashing attired.

Clarence A. Shelley, one of the founding members of the Portland Fishing Club at Port Antonio, Jamaica, B.W.I., while fishing late in the evening off Alligator Head on the San San estate, late in August, caught a 20-lb. tarpon with a rod and light line, under the impression that he was fishing in a school of "jack". Not only was he alone and in the dark but he was on a rock 25 feet above sea level.

Gladys Cooper, famous English actress, who is building a home at Montego Bay, Jamaica, B.W.I., adjoining property of Sir William Wiseman of New York and London, has gone to England for rehearsals of the new play "Relative Values", recently written by Noel Coward at his home in Jamaica, thus bringing together in one production two famous personalities who have homes on this island.

Miss Betty Rosenquest of South Orange, N. J., Number 12 ranking tennis star of the U.S.A., is now living in Montego Bay, Jamaica, B.W.I., after her recent marriage to Mr. E. Carol Pratt of that town. Becoming a resident of Jamaica, Mrs. Pratt became a member of the Fairfield Country Club's mixed and women's teams.

20 YEARS AGO

SOCIETY YOUNGSTERS were not thinking about the social whirl, back in the thirties . . . they were having fun and gaining laurels in all kinds of sports. The entire colony was talking about Sally Hall, sixteen month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hall, who gained the distinction of being the youngest swimmer in Palm Beach. Sally could not only "swim like a duck", but could float and do aquatic tricks with approved form.

Younger by a month, but equally enthusiastic, was Billy Oakes, youngest of the Harry Oakes children, who would jump out of his nurse's arms and run for the pool, if not watched carefully. He made a habit of riding across the pool and back each day on the shoulders of the swimming instructor. Billy was not the only "fish" in this family . . . Nancy, seven years old; Sidney, four, and Shirley, three, were all perfectly at home in the water. And Nancy was champion in her class in calisthenics.

A future swimming champ, according to predictions . . . Peter, nineteen-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer, who was as fearless in the water as his three-year-old sister, Patsy. Other promising swimming pupils in this age group were the Alfred G. Kay youngsters, Warren (Bill), Audrey and Anita.

Most of Palm Beach's younger generation "took to the water" as eagerly as their immediate elders took to dancing. For instance Charlotte, twelve; Bobs, seven, and little sister, Miriam Morrison, never missed a day at the pool regardless of the weather. Other "regulars", either in the swimming pools or ocean were: "Kinks" (Alfred) Dolge, five, and his brother, Peter, four; Annette and Wiley Reynolds, twelve and thirteen; Marie and Hood Basset, similarly aged; Alice, Joan, and four-year-old "Buzz" Wyeth; the Farrell children

. . . Ritchie and Fairfax, fourteen and twelve, and their ten-year-old brother and constant escort, Joel.

Many of the youngsters, while not neglecting their swimming, devoted as much time as possible to other sports . . . boxing seems to have been the most popular. There were a number of very creditable bouts by both girls and boys; annual public boxing bouts, however, were confined to small boys. Among the younger generation on the distaff side who could "land a mean punch" were twelve-year-old Emeline Moody, a three-and-a-half-year-old, and Patsy Clifford.

Other potential Jack Dempseys . . . Richard Kelly, "with as fast a right cross as any five-year 'paperweight' in Palm Beach, and when he faced Carol Hammerstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein, just a year his senior and a good straight puncher with either hand, there was plenty of action. Richard also excelled at baseball and football." Frederic Gwynne, who went in for football, soccer and track events, was another member of the young fry (five and a half years old) giving a good account of himself as a boxer.

Marta Sweatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sweatt, liked to catch the fish she emulated in the water, and during the 1932 season, out in the Gulf Stream, she hooked and landed almost without help, a fair-sized sailfish.

Clyde Roche had the most extensive vocabulary of any child in the resort at the time . . . he was twelve then . . . and had "authoristic" ambitions. He advanced as far as the possession of a typewriter and a "study," but refused to display any finished work, according to his writing parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche. Another potential member of the Four Arts was Leela Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, who at five had an exceptional talent for drawing and painting.

FLICKERS, FLIVVERS, AND FLYING MACHINES were still new gadgets on man's horizon. The world was but twenty years away from the invention of the first successful American gasoline automobile and 'nuclear' and 'atom' had not been merged in the dictionary under 'N'.

Journalists wrote copiously of the more than dawning machine age, and those in Palm Beach were no exception. Thus as the season opened, first issues of the Palm Beach Daily News and Life magazine carried glowing accounts of the automotive industry's progress, pointing to the exportation of $20,000,000 dollars worth of automobiles in 1911 "as the most notable achievement of our foreign commerce in many years."

Super highways were still to come. But, "while carriage roads have not been perfected sufficiently to meet the demands of the autoist," reported the Palm Beach paper, "Florida nevertheless is taking a serious attitude with respect to road building, and those who have made the trip by auto from Jacksonville say that with few exceptions it is possible to reach a speed of thirty miles an hour."

"This is remarkable progress when you realize that just last year such a trip would have been impossible (1911). Right now it is nothing to get into a car and spin down to Miami and back the same day, and it is reported that as many as ten cars in a single day pass Sewalls Point enroute to South Florida.

As for the flying machine, it was looked upon in 1912 as "a new sport," and the arrival of Walter Brookins, a young aviator trained by the Wright Brothers, to Palm Beach rated a front-page story with banner headline.

"With the opening of the Royal Poinciana and a new Palm Beach season there arrives on the scene America's latest sport, the flying machine. Mr. Walter Brookins, a pioneer in aviation from Dayton, Ohio, who flew his aeroplane from the west shore of Lake Worth yesterday (Sat., Jan. 20), drawing a large gathering of guests as he made a landing on the north side of the golf grounds will make his winter headquarters here, taking up passengers and training those who wish to learn the art of flying.

"He is the first man to arrive in Palm Beach via aeroplane, and his first pupil will be Mr. Patrick Grant" (Harvard football star of 1911).

Mr. Grant, one finds in the perusal of 1912 columns had a little difficulty getting started, for, writes the Daily News:

"Patrick Grant who was to have gone up with Aviator Brookins yesterday proved too heavy as little air was stirring. It is hoped there will be more wind in a few days so that the young man may begin his lessons."

In Palm Beach at least, gentlemen outdid the ladies in taking to the air, the only women "brave enough to fly with

Mr. Brookins being Mrs. John Shepard, Jr., of Boston and Miss Emma Brown of Newcastle, Pa., Mrs. Frank Langdon Humphreys of Morristown, N. J. (her son, Malcolm Humphreys is a well known artist residing today in Palm Beach), and Mrs. William Haberle of Syracuse.

The resort received national recognition for the progressive part it played in promoting aviation and after Mr. Charles G. Dawes, later to become vice president of the United States and American Ambassador to Great Britain, took his first aeroplane ride while visiting Palm Beach, it appears that a number of other important and aviation-minded men were attracted to what metropolitan newspapers were referring to as "America's southern headquarters for aviation," —Palm Beach, Fla.

Robert F. Collier, the New York publisher cancelled a trip to California in order to come down and look over possibilities of making Palm Beach official southern headquarters for aviation, and toward the close of the season, Greely S. Curtis took leave of aeronautical experiments at Marblehead, Mass., in order to come south and study for ten days with Mr. Brookins.

And while Collier, the paper states, went about planning a Palm Beach "aeronautical station where hangars would be constructed along the shores of Lake Worth so that wealthy sportsmen might bring their flying machines here as easily as their automobiles, Mr. Curtis released momentary news to the effect that there was an aeroplane being constructed under government specifications "with a 70-horsepower motor, a carrying capacity of 450 pounds, and capable of flying from 40 to 50 miles an hour."

Needless to say Collier's dream never materialized. But it is interesting to note today, as jet planes zoom through soft clouds over Palm Beach at 500 miles an hour, that it was here where a number of the first steps from chug to zip were taken.

The young Burgess-Wright aviator Brookins, the very first student the Wright Brothers ever had, and the first to fly a mile high in an aeroplane, set a new world record in Palm Beach during the winter of 1912 when he went up 1,600 feet—"the highest flight on record in a hydro-plane with a passenger."

Aero club presidents, and vice-presidents from all the principal cities of the country assembled throughout the season of 1912 in Palm Beach, all agreeing that here where the country "was flat the greatest progress in aviation might be made."

Much work would have to be done to create smooth landing fields they said. But in the meantime the "hydro-aeroplane," actually much safer anyway, because of its attachment for landing on water, could be used.

It was a 'big deal' forty years ago when the first airplane arrived in Palm Beach, and to photograph the above picture of it the cameraman nearly fell in Lake Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Peter Grace, of Old Westbury, Long Island, snapped by the photographer just before taking a stroll around the resort, while on a holiday at The Colony.

OPEN ALL-YEAR-ROUND, The Colony has become one of the important hostelrys in the resort. The atmosphere is more like that of private club than a hotel . . . reminiscent of the hospitality of a southern manse. With gracious service, the "hallmark" of this smart "home away from home".

Mr. Bernard H. Cooley, manager of The Colony, reports extensive bookings for the winter season and noted that last summer and fall found an unusually large number of guests in residence. "Evidence that Palm Beach is definitely becoming a year-round town and not just a winter resort."

In close proximity to "just about everything" . . . beach, golf clubs, shopping and business districts, night clubs . . . it is one of the most strategically located hotels on the island. The Colony is also rapidly becoming a favored focal point of interest for social activities.

The Colony Terrace Club operates on a different plan this year. By popular demand, it will function as an exclusive club rather than a night club . . . the setting for special cocktail, luncheon, dinner and late supper parties.

Dining at The Colony, in the relaxed homelike atmosphere, is a delightful gustatorial experience. Superb cuisine and beverages, featured in French and American menus. Analogous to entertaining friends in your own home.

Music during the cocktail and dinner hours is furnished by The Colony's popular Ricci and Rosati . . . strolling musicians in the continental manner. Herbert Ricci, pianist of note, plays everything from Beethoven and Bach to Be-Bop and "Dixieland" interpretations. Alexandro Rosati, famous European violinist, is equally adept and also augments his "violinistics" with accordion numbers.

Among noted guests at The Colony this season, for long and short holidays in the southland: Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Grace, of Old Westbury, Long Island; the Hon. W. Morgenstierne, Ambassador from Norway to the United States; former Ambassador to the Argentine, James Bruce, and Mrs. Bruce, of New York City; Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett, also of Manhattan, wife of the famous opera singer; Mrs. Dodge Sloane, of New York, for a 10-day visit; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Maguire, of the same place; also Mr. and Mrs. F. Dwight Foster.

Miss Margaret Truman and Mrs. Truman were at The Colony for about a week during the time Miss Truman gave a concert here. They later flew to Key West to join the President, who was on a working vacation at the "little White House". Mr. and Mrs. Claude Durham Smith, of North Carolina, are at the hotel for their usual seasonal sojourn.

Also here for the season . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edmund F. Cassell, of Providence, R. I. For a week's stay, Miss Delia Rigal, star of the Metropolitan Opera, who flew down from New York for a holiday between operatic roles. Mayor J. P. Drost, of Borculo, Holland, stopped for several days while on a good will tour of the States. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Doehler, of New York, spent the Yuletide holidays at The Colony.

Mr. Charles Ventura, society editor of the New York World Telegram-Sun, and Mrs. Ventura were at the hotel for a fortnight's stay. A group of military men, "buddies" in the South Pacific during World War II spent a week end at The Colony.

Glamour Invades the Hospitals

WOMEN HAVE ALWAYS been glamour conscious! It makes no difference whether they happen to be social butterflies, movie stars, career women . . . or ship-wrecked on some desert island . . . the paramount consideration ever since Eve, has been personal appearance.

Until fairly recently, nothing had been done about beauty service in the hospitals. And, there is no more important time to give a lift to the spirit than when one is ill and hospitalized. It is most surprising that something wasn't thought up, in the way of glamourizing in this category, a long time ago.

If you happened to be whisked to a hospital unexpectedly and while lying in bed with nothing to do, thought "how wonderful it would be to have a manicure, shampoo, fresh hair-do or make-up", all it ever amounted to was wishful thinking. You knew it would build up your morale, but since nothing apparently could be done about it, the only solution was acceptance of the fact that you probably "looked a mess" and would have to wait until you were able to return home for your glamourizing.

Now all of that has been changed. Both St. Mary's and the Good Samaritan Hospitals have installed "bedside beauty service" with trained beauticians and offer just about any beauty service hospital-confined women may desire. According to physicians and nurses connected with these institutions, the psychological effect of "Dr. Glamour" is amazing. "It improves the patient's morale and accelerates recovery. A woman regardless of age, feels better when she knows she is well-groomed".

This unique idea which originated three years ago and which is sponsored by more than four hundred hospitals throughout the United States, has the complete approval of the American Medical Association. Medical centers where this service is being successfully operated and considered to be of therapeutic value include: Chicago, New York, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, San Francisco, St. Louis, Detroit, Atlanta, Louisville, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Ann Arbor, Michigan and Washington, D.C.

The beauticians must conform to hospital routine and standards and recognize and observe hospital ethics. They are never allowed to accept clients, without first having the approval of the doctor in charge. The service is not exhaustive . . . on the contrary, it is planned even for the critically ill, where a shampoo is often a necessity, due to long-term illness.

A special "no rinse" detergent shampoo eliminates the use of water. The hair dryer, designed especially for the sick, can be adjusted to whatever position the patient must remain in. Operators are trained to give shampoos and style hair, in such a manner that the patient will not be disturbed; tri-section shampoo. Because of the specialized methods used, even eye surgery and cardiac cases may be glamourized with safety.

This new beauty service is especially popular in the maternity department of hospitals, according to reports from the Good Samaritan and St. Mary's. Women often have to be rushed to the hospital in a hurry, with no time or inclination for hair-dos, manicures and the like.

The attractive chrome and aqua "portable beauty salon" which holds all of the essential equipment and long-armed adjustable dryer, was designed to be moved about through narrow corridors and can be easily maneuvered into rooms and wards. It is completely sterilized before being taken into a patient's room. Beauticians also "scrub up" prior to their glamourizing duties, just as the doctors do. Incidentally, these attractive and cheerful operators do not wear the traditional "hospital white", but pale pink nylon uniforms . . . very trim and smart.

Convalescent patients, who are not confined to bed all of the time, may have their beauty routines in the hospital salon. Spacious and effectively decorated in a color scheme of pink and grey, the same careful and scientific services are available here. In both Palm Beach hospitals, "all glamour treatments" are subject to the approval of the doctor in charge and can only be given with his consent.

For patients recuperating from a major operation or serious illness necessitating a long hospital stay, there is a special machineless permanent. Those on the mend, who feel in the mood, may have anything from a facial, contour hair cut, pedicure, eyebrow arch, tint-bleach touch up and scalp treatments, to dry combing-brushing.

"Hospitalized grooming" by the way, is not confined to the distaff side. Men patients find a shampoo, hair cut and manicure, a marvelous morale booster and take advantage of the new service.

Mother Josephine Marie of St. Mary's Hospital, noted in an interview about these much-discussed hospital beauty treatments, "Our cases have expressed their gratitude to the hospital, for installing this new service. And, our medical staff have also declared it is of inestimable value . . . both from a psychological and hygienic standpoint."

Mr. John F. Wymer Jr., administrator of the Good Samaritan Hospital stated, "I am very pleased with the results of the 'bedside beauty shop experiment' so far and in my opinion the benefits derived by the feminine patients as a morale booster are unlimited. The modern hospital of today, must take into consideration the psychological as well as the physical progress of its patients".

Beauty certificates as gifts to hospitalized friends are a welcome innovation . . . when you are searching for "something different" for a patient who has a room full of flowers.

Everglades Club Has Brilliant Opening

THE EVERGLADES CLUB opened for the season with the traditional dinner-dance New Year's Eve and more than 700 persons dined and danced the "old year out and welcomed 1952". Yuletide decorations were effectively used throughout the entire Club . . . a smart color scheme of red and silver, featuring glittering Christmas trees; festoons of multi-colored balloons which were released at midnight to float all over the place; tall standards and low bowls of red gladioli, silver leaves and "snowballs", garlands of laurel.

The Meyer Davis Orchestras under the direction of Billy Marshall played for the dancing in the glamorous Orange Gardens, which continued into the small hours of the morning. Edward E. Bartlett Jr., president of the Everglades Club welcomed the huge crowd and extended New Year Greetings, after which the orchestra played "He's A Jolly Good Fellow" and there was thunderous applause from the huge crowd. Lamar Harmon, manager of the Club, also gave a brief talk, in which he outlined the routine activities on the agenda for 1952.

Among those attending the formal opening:

Ambassador and Mrs. Charles Ulrick Bay who were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Skelly, of Montreal, Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tiesdal and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Dunn.

In Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham's party were her sister, Viscountess de Maublanc, of Paris, France; Count Sarmi of Rome, Italy, and Mr. Jack Treat.

Mrs. Urban Harris' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ives and Mr. and Mrs. Willaford Ransom Leach. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Leach's daughter, Miss Anne Winship Leach and Mr. Kenneth Ives, Jr. joined the party for dancing.

Mrs. Paul Healy entertained for Mr. Fred Roy, of Washington, D.C., house guest of Mrs. English Gordon. Her other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Richardson, Mrs. English Gordon, Mr. Hampson Gary, Col. Ted Herron and Mr. Edward Haynes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sonquist, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah D. Maguire, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Terry and their houseguests, Mr. John J. Ryan Jr. and Mr. Ray Emory; Mr. Elmer Rich and his guests, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Pueston, Mrs. Richard Hackett, Mrs. Muriel Dalzell and Mr. E. Leonard Beard Jr.

Mr. Herbert Pulitzer Jr. had as guests Mr. and Mrs. David Frost Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. T. Randolph Potter, Mrs. Phillip S. Hardy, Miss Olive Mills Massie, Miss Anne Long Sory and Mr. William Pierson Rayner.

Together were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Pierson Jr., Cmdr. and Mrs. M. L. Rutherford and Mr. Sydney Schultz of Miami.

Mrs. John T. M. Mitchell had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cooper and Mr. Frederick Mercer.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson H. Gates entertained their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Dempsey.

At Cmdr. Dwight C. Paul's table were Mr. and Mrs. Sydney King Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schenck, Maj. and Mrs. Talmadge Boynton, Mrs. Banks Bertchmann and Mr. Robert W. Woolworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCoskry Butt were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Swyers, Miss Mary Catherine Kentz, Miss

Donna Swyers, Robert McCoskry Butt, Jr., Odum Boone and Mrs. Emil Butt.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Stout entertained Mr. and Mrs. Karl A. Dolge, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pence, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Coates Gross and Mrs. L.D. Elwood.

Mrs. Thompson Thomas had as guests Dr. and Mrs. Albin D. Jansik, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pavitt, Mrs. Kay Schultz, Mr. Harold Tolchard and Mr. Henry Lee Creary.

A group dining together were Mr. and Mrs. J. Dinsmore Tew 2d, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Bateman, Miss Barbara Bateman and Frank H. Galloney 3d.

Mr. and Mrs. John Van Gonsic had in their party Miss Joan Van Gonsic, Miss Cynthia Van Gonsic, Mr. Matthew Spear and Mr. Eugene Gerard.

A dutch treat party noted there included Mr. and Mrs. James A. dePeyster, Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Swan, Mr. and Mrs. Neal O. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Grace.

Mrs. Raymond Royce Kent entertained her house guests, Mr. and Mrs. William Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. John Peddy and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Keats.

Guests of Col. and Mrs. Edward Pardee Johnston were Lady Doris Orr-Lewis, Maj. and Mrs. J. A. Gimenez, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cutter and their house guest, Mrs. Henry O. Lowell, Mr. Jean Lambert and Mr. Pierre Roussel.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Winfield Chapin had as their guests Comdr. and Mrs. A. Winfield Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Van Pelt Quackenbush and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. Eben Howes Ellison were hosts to Dr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Lindsay and Mrs. Herbert E. Gale.

Others noted: Mr. and Mrs. Lumen O. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Max Pray, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Ridder, Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. O. Frank Woodward 3d, Mr. Charles A. Van Rensselaer 3d, Mr. Louis A. Vallier, Mrs. A. Kinnard Tod, Mrs. Richard Sheridan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Schellentrager, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Turnure, Mrs. Thompson Montgomery, Mrs. Edward C. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Prettyman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Robertson.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston L. Biddle 2d, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Roche, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. V. Schulke, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Pettit, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prior, Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Mrs. Frederic Owsley, Mr. and Mrs. George Bentley Meyer.

Plans for this season's activities at the Everglades Club according to Mr. Bartlett will include one charity event . . . a benefit ball given for the Good Samaritan Hospital; the Wednesday Tombola-luncheon-fashion shows; a gala George Washington Birthday dinner-dance.

"The Terrace will operate on a much larger scale this season," Mr. Bartlett said, "in compliance with a more formal program for this important part of the Club." Also to expedite service here, new kitchens have been installed, featuring all of the latest ideas in modern equipment and appliances, arranged to be independent of the main club's facilities in this category.

As in former years, there are Backgammon tournaments on Tuesday nights, and Canasta, Saturday nights. The popular Vaudeville-dinners will be featured Thursdays, with outstanding stars of the theatrical and night club worlds to entertain.

Sports Start Early in a Big Way

PALM BEACH IS DUE for the biggest season it has ever enjoyed in sports — that is, if the opening weeks are any criterion.

The Breakers' Palm Beach Golf Club, where Miss Bess Fenn is in her 27th year as head of the professional staff, had 65 golfers playing the beautiful layout the first day. And Jack Ross, pro at the Everglades Club, reported that 48 on opening day in November was a record.

There was a little lull before the Christmas holidays, but then came the youth from school and they participated in a couple of round-robin tennis tournaments at the Bath and Tennis and Everglades clubs.

Patricia Sayad and Noel Scullin won that at the Bath and Tennis, and Alex Hufty and Ridgley Foster took the Everglades Club competition.

At the Bath and Tennis, the juniors teamed up like this: Benita Bryant and Harry Phipps, who lost by 6-2 in the playoffs to Miss Sayad and Scullin; Paula Schulke and Terry Fuller, Alex Hufty and R. Reynolds, Elaine Dominguez and Dave Farrar, Diane Smith and Bobby Hasler, Elodie Huntley and Gene Foster, Arline Cone and Jimmy Ballentine, Lynne Fuller and Luis Dominguez, Archie Peck and Bill McGee, Carolyn Rittenour and Tony Phipps, George Ross and John Hasler, Virginia Todd and Bill Richardson, Bonnie Richardson and Ridgley Foster, Dorsey Scullin and Bill Sayad, and Beth Brokaw and Jim Rich.

At the Everglades Club they were like this: Alex Hufty and Ridgley Foster, Pat Sayad and Terry Fuller, Carolyn Rittenour and John Hasler, Paula Schulke and Tony Phipps, Barbara Howard and Luis Dominguez, Benita Bryant and Noel Scullin, Dorsey Scullin and Bill McGee, Jane Huntley and James Ballentine, Jeanie Ballentine and Archie Peck, Lynne Fuller and George Ross, Jim Rich and Bobby Hasler, Debbie Morrish and Bill Sayad, Virginia Todd and Gene Foster, and Joan White and Peter Kauffman.

Tombstone golf competition got under way first at the Everglades Club, and the interest was keen right from the start. Picking one of the mixed foursome tombstone tournaments at random, it is found that Mr. and Mrs. John Cushman were the winners. They were permitted 49 strokes and they made that handicap take them to within 17 yards of the 11th hole. Back of the winners by 19 yards was the team of Mrs. Hal C. Rich and Paul Cushman, who were allowed 46 swings.

Twenty-three teams participated in this particular tombstone tournament. Following the two top teams, in their order of finish, were Mr and Mrs. Ronald Balcom, Mrs. J. E. McAuliffe and J. E. McAuliffe, Jr., Mrs. John J. Van Gonsic and F. Sullivan, Mrs. Hamilton Pell and Herbert Farrell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Prudden, Jr., Miss Barbara Hasler and J. J. Van Gonsic, Mrs. E. C. Oelsner and C. V. Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maddock, Mr. and Mrs. William Klopman, Mrs. Frank Quigley and James Maddock, Dr. and Mrs. Harold W. Corya, Mrs. Hu Woodward and Frank Quigley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shevlin, Mrs. W. W. Roberts and Hal C. Rich, Mr. and Mrs. S. Peabody, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. W. Harold Hoffman, Mrs. R. Gorton and R. P. Kelley, Mrs. A. Carnadas and R. P. Kelley, Mrs. A. Jesse Spalding and Mrs. George S. Ross and Walter Ross.

Putting tournaments at the Everglades Club took up where they left off last season by shattering a record on opening day. Forty men and women answered the call for the first tournament, topping the first day of last season by an even dozen. Honors in the first putting tournament this season went to John Cushman, LeRay Berdeau, Mrs. William Fisher and Mrs. James Howard. Cushman's 34 was low for the men, and Mrs. Howard paced the women with 37. Berdeau and Mrs. Fisher were nearest the pin in an extra shot for hole-in-one contestants.

There were 43 holes-in-one made by the 40 players, with Cushman's four aces being high. James Cheek, a guest, had three. Others who participated in the first tournament were Kingsley Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. John E. McAuliffe, Mrs. Charles Long, Mrs. McAlpin Bell, William McKim, Herbert Farrell, Jr., Mrs. John Cushman, Mrs. Carl B. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham, Mrs. Edith Hasler, Mrs. Hu Woodward, Mrs. R. C. Heather, Mrs. I. NeSmith, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Field, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Corya, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hobler, Mrs. James Riley, Mrs. F. C. Charlotte, Mrs. John Hayward, Mrs. J. J. Van Gonsic, Mrs. David Cluett, Mrs. P. P. Prudden, Jr., Mrs. P. P. Prudden, Sr., Mrs. M. Nohowel, J. J. Feeley, Minturn Post Collins, Robert Bissett, T. Woodward and Charles Brennig.

The putters have a new green at the Everglades Club. In fact, a number of changes were made on the back nine during the off-season so as to make room for the addition of another wing on the golf terrace and the construction of the new putting green.

In a recent tournament, Mrs. Edith Hasler set a new record for women on the green when she won with a 35. The victory was quite an accomplishment for the enthusiastic Mrs. Hasler. One of the resort's better tennis players for a number of years, she started putting last season and only this year took up the game of golf. Two weeks earlier she had won in a tombstone tournament, and in the following two weeks she won the hole-in-one contest putting and was on the winning mixed doubles team in a round-robin tennis meet at the Everglades Club.

Whitehall had a Christmas golf tournament for guests at the Palm Beach Country Club. Mrs. H. J. Cohen was the women's winner with a net of 32 on a gross of 38 in the nine-selected-holes event. George Goldstein was the men's winner with a net 28 on a gross of 37.

Norman Schmid walked off with the first golf title of the Old Guard Society's season, defeating John Butler by 3 and 1 in the finals of the Handicap Match Play Tournament at the Palm Beach Golf Club. Consolation honors went to Fred Willard by virtue of his 3 and 2 victory over William Klopman. Others who entered the tournament were John Cushman, Richard W. Woolworth, Albert Drake, Hal C. Rich, Dan Scott, Gil Brewer, James D. Sturrock, Gil Drake, John Butler and M. E. Rinker.

A Palm Beacher's car was the winner in the main event of the Sports Car Club of America two-day race program at Palm Beach Shores early in December. Johnny Fitch, of Stamford, Conn., drove Bill Spear's Ferrari to victory, although it was the first time Fitch had raced a Ferrari. Spear also drove a Ferrari in the race and finished fifth.

Fourteen cars started in the big race, which was shortened 15 minutes to one hour and 45 minutes because of darkness, and 11 were in at the finish. First to go out was the blue Healy driven by Phil Walters, of West Palm Beach. Walters led for 14 laps, but gave up the lead to Fitch on the 15th when his motor began heating, and he pulled off the course on the 16th lap. Walters was one of the favorites in the race. Another besides Walters and Fitch was Tommy Cole, and he was forced out early, too. He drove a Chrysler-Allard, and was forced out as a result of a collision on the first turn as the race got under way. In the dash for the turn, Phil Stiles, Palm Beach, driving his Ford Riley, hit the rear of Cole's car and skidded into the sand. Stiles went on to finish fourth behind Fitch, Freddie Wacker, of Chicago, and Briggs Cunningham, of Palm Beach, but Cole, who was driving practically one-handed because of an injury to one hand, had to give up after his car caught fire from a leaking gasoline tank.

Fitch completed 56 laps and averaged 60.6 miles per hour. Trailing Fitch in their order of finish were Wacker, Cunningham, Stiles, Spear, George Huntoon, Dave Viall, Alexandria, Va.; Paul O'Shea, Water Mill, L. I.; Alfons Koster, Sayville, N. Y.; Sherwood Johnston, Winchester, Mass., and Jack Rutherford, Palm Beach.

On a sadder note, Palm Beach sports lost a real friend with the passing of George A. Nicol, Jr., December 16. He was a member of the Seminole, Bath and Tennis and Everglades clubs and the Old Guard Society of Palm Beach Golfers.

Gulf Stream . . .

DELRAY BEACH AND GULF STREAM are enjoying a full and colorful season. Although the season is still young, there has been much activity especially during the holiday season.

The Gulf Stream Golf Club opened formally on January 1st for its twenty-eighth season with J.G. Reiter, formerly of the Greenwich Country Club, as the new manager. The Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club which opened some time ago, also plays an important role in this community's activities.

Polo, number one spectator sport in the hearts of the winter colonists, is attracting large crowds. The splendid eighteen hole Gulf Stream golf course is dotted with players often reveling in the shade of clumps of royal and cabbage palms artistically set in clumps along the fairway. Busy, too, is the Delray Country Club course; and many a deep-sea fisherman sets forth in the sparkling dawn each day, in pursuit of abundant game fish offshore.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart B. Iglehart are again at "La Centinela," for the season. Mr. Iglehart, one of the country's best known polo players, also has a cattle ranch between Stuart and Okeechobee City, where he spends much time. His son, Stewart, who attends the Green Vale School, at Glen Head, N.Y. was their guest for the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. B. Iglehart, of Westbury, L. I. will spend most of the winter with them.

Gen. and Mrs. Arthur H. Carter, of Greenwich, Conn. who spend the winters at their home in Gulf Stream had as their house guest during the holidays, Mrs. Albert Bradley, of New York and Greenwich, who was extensively entertained during her stay in Gulf Stream. Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Grant, gave a dinner for her at their home in Vista del Mar; the Burton Howes gave a luncheon for 15 in her honor at the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club, and Mr. and Mrs. James N. Wallace also entertained for Mrs. Bradley with a small cocktail party at their home in Gulf Stream.

A wedding of great interest taking place in Gulf Stream on Dec. 22nd, was that of Mrs. Rosalind Brown Townsend of Greenwich, Conn. and Mr. Angus Duncan Mackintosh of New York City, which took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lewis H. Brown. The bride's father was the late Lewis H. Brown, chairman of the board of Johns-Manville Co. The groom is the son of the late Robert William Mackintosh of Buffalo and the late Mrs. William Robinson Rucker, Jr. of Philadelphia, and the nephew of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, of Washington, D.C. They remained as guests of Mrs. Townsend's mother until January 2nd when they left for 1133 Park Ave., New York where they will make their home. Mr. Townsend is affiliated with Goodson-Todman, television producers in New York.

The William Seward Webbs, of Bar Harbor, Maine, opened their home in Gulf Stream in November where their son, William G. Webb, a student at Yale, joined them for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Pope who went to Mexico for the holidays have returned to their home in Gulf Stream.

The J.D. Stetson Colemans of Chicago and The Plains, Va. members of the Gulf Stream Golf Club, are at their ocean front home in Gulf Stream.

Mr. Tom Mercer Girdler, chairman of the board of Republic Steel, and Mrs. Girdler, are occupying their new home in Gulf Stream after summering in Europe.

Mrs. Anne Fontaine Maury Adams' daughter, Miss Nancy Fontaine Maury a sophomore at Sweet Briar College,

Delray Beach

Va. and her son Charles Walker Maury, who is attached to the Naval Academy Preparatory School at the Naval Training center in Bainbridge, Md. were her guests during their Christmas vacation at her home in Gulf Stream.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Haydock, of Cincinnati, Ohio and Traverse City, Mich. are at their home in Vista del Mar, Delray Beach. They are members of the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. H. Grant are at their home in Delray Beach to spend their ninth season, coming from their Normandy Farms home in Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Grant, a director of the Board of General Motors, also has his own business in Dayton known as Reynolds and Reynolds. During the summer, Mr. and Mrs. Grant joined Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, of Palm Beach on a South American cruise and also on a holiday in Europe. They have had as their guests their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. Randolph Holliday, of Wilmington, Del. They expect their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Grant, Jr., with their son Richard, 3rd, who come south each winter aboard their yacht, in the near future.

The James Elwood Jones, of Wilton, Conn., who are in Delray Beach for the season, gave a cocktail party during the Christmas holidays for fifty guests.

Judge and Mrs. Burchard Dutcher, of Scarsdale, N.Y. are at their home on Vista del Mar where they will have as their guests during the season, their daughter, Mrs. Eric Hager, and young son, Eric, of Rye, N.Y.

The Forrest Lattners with their daughters, the Misses Martha and Susan of North Ocean Blvd., Delray Beach, spent the holiday season in Greenwich, Conn. Both Martha and Susan attend Graham-Eckes School in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Martin Van Buren Morris and daughter Ducey are at their home on Waterway Lane.

After a summer in Monkton, Md. Mr. Thomas Collyer Eastman is again at Sea Sage, his place on South Ocean Blvd. Delray Beach. He is a member of the Gulf Stream Golf Club as well as the Brook, Racquet, Southside Sportsmans Clubs in New York.

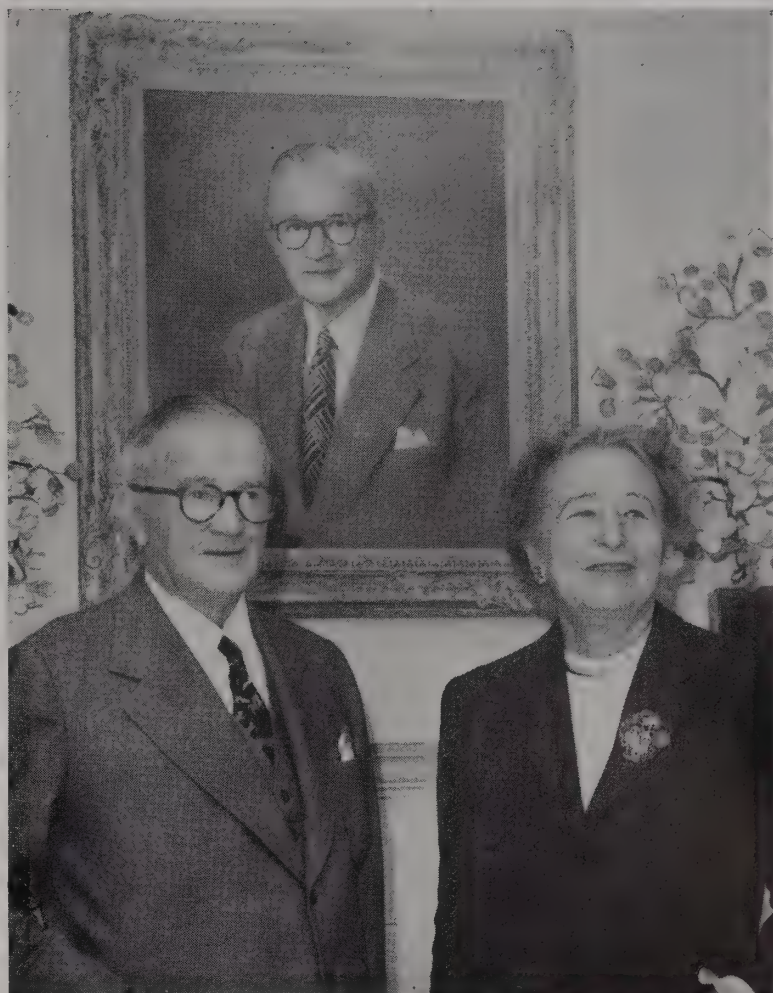

Mr. and Mrs. T. Donaldson Sloan, Jr. are at their home on Miramar Drive, Delray Beach, but are building a new villa in Gulf Stream which they will occupy in the spring. Mrs. Sloan, who was the former Mrs. Benjamin Page Bake-well, and Mr. Sloan were married last spring in Delray Beach. They divided their summer between California and Honolulu.

The C. C. Prentices of Lake Forest, Ill. have built a beautiful new home on South Ocean Blvd., Delray Beach where they are spending the season.

Mr. Harvey S. Ladew, who has a summer home in Monk-ton, Md. is at Pied a Mer, his home in Gulf Stream where he has been coming for many years. He is a member of the Everglades Club in Palm Beach as well as the River, (N.Y.) and Maryland, at Baltimore.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish Morris who summered with her daughter in Southampton, L.I. is again at her home in Delray Beach for the season.

The William T. Jebbs and family, the L. Seton Lindsays, Capt. and Mrs. Earl M. Major, and their daughter Miss Jane. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Judson, Mr. and Mrs. Burton A. Howe, Mrs. Frederick Herreshoff, Mrs. Howard S. Forman, Mrs. Charles F. Deshler, and many other colonists are also at their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. H. Grant, of Normandy Farms, Dayton, Ohio, are spending their tenth season in Delray Beach. They are popular members of the Gulf Stream Golf and Bath and Tennis Club and the Everglades Club.

Hialeah

America's leading stables, horses and riders are at Hialeah, as usual, for the January 17 opening of the 40-day meeting, which annually highlights the Florida winter season. Racing except Sundays through March 3, with stake events every Wednesday and Saturday. The 15 stake races will be climaxed by the $50,000 Widener, February 23, for the handicap stars; and the $50,000 Flamingo, March 1, for the champion 3-year-olds.

PUZZLE:

FIND THE EXECUTOR...

When the time comes to settle your estate, will your executor be away somewhere—on important business, perhaps . . . ?

Could be—if you name a relative or friend. Your estate may be without a guiding hand just when it needs it most—when tax and other problems arise, and prompt action would mean real savings for your family.

And—you don't want to put a relative, or friend, in a position where he must neglect his own affairs to handle yours . . .

Executorship is our business; we're always here, ready to do what is needed when it's needed—promptly, and economically.

A former Palm Beacher buys a Boca Grande home designed by a former Palm Beach architect. On a one-acre estate where a terraced lawn is banked by a concrete seawall, the attractive British West Indies Colonial home will be occupied this season by Mrs. R. Stuyvesant Pierrepont, Sr., of Far Hills, N. J., and, for many winters, Palm Beach. Mrs. Pierrepont, a civic leader of Palm Beach, recently purchased the estate, according to Previews, Inc., the National Real Estate Clearing House. The estate, with 125-foot frontage on the Gulf of Mexico, is beautifully landscaped with a wide variety of tropical trees and shrubs, including orange, lime and grapefruit trees.

JOHN B. REID says

Pertaining to
DELRAY BEACH SHORES

May I:

Have your attention for a few minutes of your valuable reading time and present for your pleasure — "an announcement of our present new project — and "news" of our next development" — and extend to you a cordial invitation to "inspect our properties at your convenience".

Delray Beach Shores:

A complete residential community. Something new and something different — "each lot a water-front property", and located less than one-half mile South of Delray Beach on South Ocean Boulevard. This development is practically complete with only 70 water-front homesites, and located just across the street from the ocean, with one-half mile of choice property — of which one-quarter mile faces Ocean Boulevard and one-quarter mile on the deep Florida Intra-Coastal Waterway. Lots now priced at $6,000.00 each, and upwards.

Then -- our next -- "And we hope, history-making development" --

Immediately South of the above, and of similar size —

We are proud to present --
"The Presidential Colony of America."

The land has already been conveyed to this company. Strictly an apartment area. Each building will be carefully planned and erected to "typify the particular period of architecture of each President", and to be named in sequence for each of our former Presidents. For instance — "The Mount Vernon" for George Washington; "The Brick Colonial" for Thomas Jefferson; "The Log Cabin type for Abraham Lincoln"; and so forth.

Each building is to be of two stories in height, and to consist of four to twelve units in each building.

Our Executive Office will be "an exact replica" of The White House and will be used in the future as "The Administrative Building".

Plans for "this coming historical development" are now in progress for 1953 completion.

IT'S A "CADILLAC AMONG CADILLACS"!

There are many ways in which we could describe the new Golden Anniversary Cadillac. We could say, for instance, that it is the most beautiful Cadillac ever built. Or, we could say that it is the most luxurious of all the Cadillacs. Or, again, we could say that it offers the finest performance in Cadillac's great history. But it seems to us that the best way to describe this wonderful Golden Anniversary creation is to say simply that it's a Cadillac among Cadillacs. We know, of course, that this is a tremendous compliment to pay a motor car. But we know, too, that it is a compliment most richly deserved. Why not come in today to see and drive this great new Standard of the World? We know you'll agree that it is a fitting climax to fifty years of ever-increasing quality and prestige.

Gabrielle's seaside restaurant in The Breakers Cabana Club, is the popular rendezvous for sun-worshippers, who like to lunch informally after a dip in the ocean, or Roman pool, which borders this attractive spot. Afternoon snacks are also popular with Cabana Club members!

Known in Palm Beach for many years, Gabrielle's superb food is a conversation piece in the resort . . . synonymous with Mme. Gabrielle, is the delectable coconut cake, for which she has long been noted.

With informality as the theme, patrons are permitted here in their bathing suits and sun clothes. The gay umbrella-topped tables, add color to the picturesque setting.

Banked on either side by the Atlantic and the huge swimming pool and partially encircled by the exotic Cabana Club colony, Gabrielle's is one of the most strategically located restaurants in the resort. A favored gathering place for refreshment and conversation!

This smart outdoor "snack bar" has been associated with the Cabana Club for a number of years. And, popular with Breakers guests, who like lunching al fresco.

Lunching at the Breakers Seaside Cabana Club is gay and informal . . . the perfect place to relax after a dip in the ocean or the magnificent Roman pool of the hotel. Gabrielle's has been famous for food for many years and the diversified luncheon and snack menu is a conversation piece in the colony.

Rum Lines

The Original Planters' Punch

This one is from the plantation formula of the old-time Jamaica sugar growers: Mix 1 part fresh lime juice, 2 parts sugar, 3 parts Jamaica rum, 4 parts water and ice; add a dash of Angostura; stir, serve very cold in a tall glass with cracked ice, and add a Maraschino cherry.

Rum Collins

In a tall ice-filled glass, mix the juice of 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 jigger Jamaica rum; fill with carbonated water, stir, decorate with a Maraschino cherry and a thin slice of lemon. Drink through a straw.

Latin Manhattan

Trader Vic again to the rescue of parched throats: Stir these ingredients, with cracked ice, in a mixing glass: dash of orange bitters, 1 ounce Italian vermouth (sweet), 1½ ounces Jamaica light rum; strain into chilled cocktail glass. Twist lemon peel over drink but not into it.

* * *

Rum Rickey

Put 1 or 2 lumps ice in a tall glass; add juice of ½ lemon or lime, and ½ glass Jamaica rum; fill up with cold carbonated or plain ice water and serve with a straw.

* * *

Rum Highball

Put 2 or 3 lumps ice in a tall glass; add 1 ounce Jamaica rum and fill up with any cola drink; add a slice of lime or lemon.

* * *

Rum Julep

Crush 4 or 5 tender sprigs of mint, with 1 teaspoon sugar and water, in a tall mixing glass; add a cocktail glass of Jamaica rum, use plenty of ice, shake well, and strain into a tall glass filled with chipped ice.

* * *

Other popular iced drinks during the winter season in Jamaica, Bermuda, Nassau, Florida, and other year-round southern resorts are the Rum Mint Julep, Lime Rickey, Rum and Cola, Rum-Ade; and the Northside Highball that is a specialty of the Myrtle Bank Hotel in Kingston, Jamaica.

Incidentally, during your winter visit in the south you can bring in duty-free from the foreign-flag islands one gallon, or five one-fifth bottles, of Jamaica rum, and you save further by the lower price of the rum when bought in Jamaica, "where de rum come from".

Cottage Colony

Society Life

AS MORE WINTER WEARY REFUGEES pour into Florida, and head for Palm Beach, the social life of the cottage colony gains momentum as the days roll by.

One of the most sought after young men recently here from London was William Hanson. The English socialite stayed at the Colony Hotel, but spent a great deal of his time with lovely Charlene Wrightsman at her father's palatial ocean front villa. William Hanson's brother James is rumoredly engaged to Audrey Hepburn (no relation to Katharine) who stars in the hit play "Gigi."

In the living room of their Reef Road home Mrs. Gilbert G. Drake points out magazine pictures to her three young children, Gilbert Nathaniel Drake, Thomas T. Drake and Althea Susan Drake.

Much social activity centered about the Spanish Consul-General Pelayo Olay who was here for the Exhibition of Spanish Paintings at the Society of the Four Arts. Senor Olay was the guest of Maj.-Gen. and Mrs. Ralph K. Robertson at "Casa Della Porta" and was feted by members of the colony's most noted society.

Col. and Mme. Louis Jacques Balsan gave a luncheon at "Casa Alva," their Hypoluxo Island estate, honoring the Spanish dignitary. Other guests were Mrs. Margaret Emerson, Baroness Gourgaud, Mr. Carl Trent, Mr. Edward T. Howe and Mr. Harvey S. Ladew.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Noyes, who are occupying their new home at Delray Beach, gave a dinner for Senor Olay and also entertained for him at luncheon. Maj.-Gen. and Mrs. Robertson were hosts at a dinner complimenting the consul-general and others who entertained for him were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Francis Hutton and Mrs. Frederic Owsley.

Smart setters surprised Mrs. Crawford Hill on the occasion of her birthday anniversary recently when they gathered at the Hill home on Via del Lago for a dinner followed by dancing.

Small dinners seem to be the medium for entertaining this season, with winter colonists also gathering at each others' homes for cocktails. Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Bell were hosts to a few friends for dinner at their home on Via del Lago. Mr. Charles A. Munn has entertained small groups at "Amado"; as has Countess Dorelis at her home on Adam Road.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody of the Chicago contingent entertained with a dinner at her home on Via del Lago, and Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell was host to a company of friends at his home on Via del Mar.

The younger set, always finding innovations to add gaiety to their routine, is now taking the Charleston seriously, as their parents doubtlessly did more than twenty years ago. Also of great interest to the young people are the boxing matches, a Friday night sporting event at the American Legion Arena at West Palm Beach. Boxing fans entertain with dinners first, later take their guests to the arena. Mr. Herbert Pulitzer jr. and Mr. William Pierson Rayner were among the many who had small dinners at home.

An addition to the young crowd is Mr. King Stone of Warrenton, Va. who is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes at her home on Peruvian Avenue. Mrs. Stokes recently feted her nephew at a series of supper picnics at her beach cabanna.

English nobility was represented with the arrival of Mrs. Edward Russell, the former Lady Sarah Churchill, daughter of the Duke of Marlborough. Mrs. Russell, accompanied by her children, Alexandra and Mimi, was the guest of her grandmother, Mme. Balsan and Col. Balsan.

Lady Oakes came over from her home at Nassau to be the guest of her long time friends, the Walter W. Fosketts at their Clarke Avenue home. Coming with Lady Oakes was her sister, Mrs. E. DePlace of South Africa. Joining the houseparty of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps at "Heamaw" was Mrs. Sturat S. Janney of New York. Members of the horsey set in Palm Beach include Mr. Amory L. Haskell and his daughter, Miss Isabelle Haskell who came from their place at Red Bank, N. J.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst came from New York to occupy the house she has taken on Via Bellaria for the winter. Mrs. Hearst's sister, Mrs. Anita Irwin, accompanied her south. One of society's most noted members, Mrs. Hearst is expected to add eclat to the current winter season.

Mrs. Richard Frick and her daughter, Catherine, and son, Billie, and Mrs. Oliver Rea, with her children Edith and Peter, are shown in a family group in the patio of "Lagomar".

Representing the musical world was Alec Templeton, distinguished concert pianist who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Grant at "Surf Cottage." Mr. Templeton is familiar to the winter colony as he has appeared at the Society of the Four Arts.

The Stephen Sanfords are more or less commuting this year between "Rattlesnake Ranch" and "Los Incas," their ocean front estate. Other cottage colonists who hunted during the quail season were Mr. Herbert Pulitzer jr. who went to Sarasota where he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Drexel Duke who have taken a house this year at that resort; Mr. George S. Ross and Mr. Harold Wilson Sweatt who went to Punta Gorda where they were joined by Mr. Ward Ames.

Trips to the keys for fishing also occupies Palm Beachers. Recently going down were Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall B. Wood jr. and Mr. Henry C. Gibson jr.

The R. Laurence Parishes arrived from "Rock Ridge Farm," their place at Brewster, N. Y. to occupy for the season their ocean front villa, "Casa Esmeralda." They toured Europe during the autumn and divided the month of August between Murray Bay and the Seignior Club.

Mrs. Middleton O'Malley-Keyes, who spent the summer on the French Riviera, has come from Nassau to open her home on Brazilian Avenue. Mrs. Maitland Alexander arrived from Sewickley Heights, Pa. to join her son, Mr. A. Laughlan

Here following their wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Welles. The former Under Secretary of State and Mrs. Harriet A. Post were married in New York January 8 by State Supreme Court Justice William C. Hecht jr. The simple ceremony was performed in the Manhattan apartment of the bride's mother, Mrs. George B. Post. Mr. and Mrs. Welles are occupying their home on Via Bellaria, and have been feted at several dinners.

Another marriage of interest to the winter colony was that of Mrs. Ann Lippincott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Porter Cassidy of Easton, Md. and Mr. Charles Morgan, son of Mrs. Charles Morgan of New York and the late Mr. Morgan. The couple was married December 29 at the Easton home of the bride's parents, and directly after the ceremony they came to Palm Beach where they occupied the guest cottage on Mrs. Cordelia Scaife May's estate, "Sandreef." The bridegroom is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan and the late Mr. and Mrs. John E. Cowdin, all of New York.

While they were here, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Pardridge were hosts at a dinner in their honor.

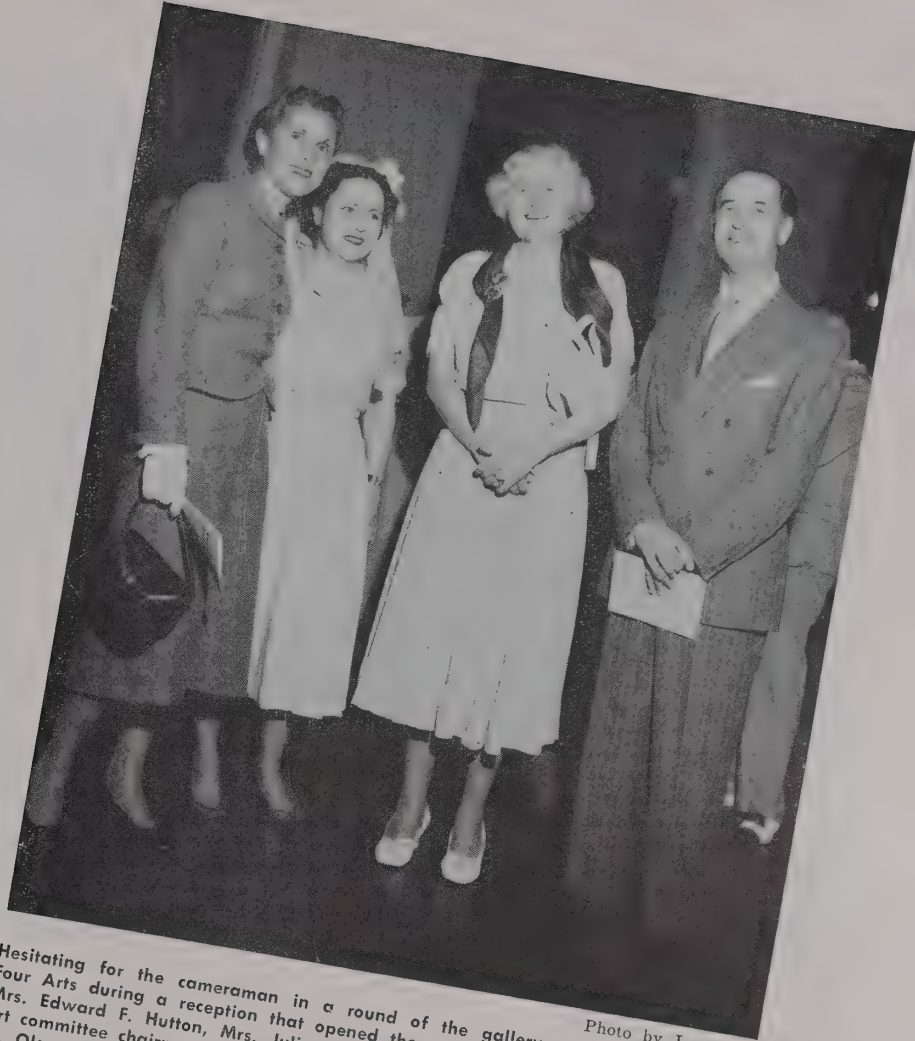

Col. and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick of Chicago, who were at their home at Ocean Ridge earlier in the season, will be absent this year. They will go to Africa where they will spend the greater part of the winter.

Colonists Snapped at the Society of the Four Arts

Hesitating for the cameraman in a round of the gallery at the Society of the Four Arts during a reception that opened the notable Spanish show are (l. to r.) Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Julius G. Noyes of Delray Beach, Mrs. Paul Moore, art committee chairman in charge of arrangements for the show, and Senor Pelayo G. Olaj, consul-general of Spain in New York, here as the guest of Maj.-Gen. and Mrs. Ralph K. Robertson.

Talking over the Spanish exhibition at the Society of the Four Arts' preview tea for members are (l. to r.) Mr. LeRay Berdeau, Mrs. Ralph K. Robertson, Mrs. Harold Fowler and Frederick William Flott, Jr. assistant to the ECA special representative in Spain, here as the guest of Maj.-Gen. and Mrs. Robertson.

A NOTABLE EXHIBITION just now showing at the Society of the Four Arts presents the works of Spanish masters from the fourteenth century to the present day. Arranged by the art committee, Mrs. Paul Moore, chairman, the Society expresses appreciation to a large number of important galleries and private collectors through whose generosity the exhibition was made possible. They include the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art, the Cleveland Museum of Art, the Toledo Museum of Art, the Detroit Institute of Art, the Worcester Art Museum, the John and Mabel Ringling Museum, Sarasota, Fla.; the Norton Gallery of Art, E. and A. Silberman Galleries, and Jacques Seligman and Co.

Private collectors of Palm Beach include Mrs. Ralph K. Robertson, Mrs. Paul Moore, Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, and Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell.

And from New York paintings lent were from collections owned by the following:

Senor Pelayo Olay, consul-general of Spain in New York; Mrs. John Work Garrett, and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill.

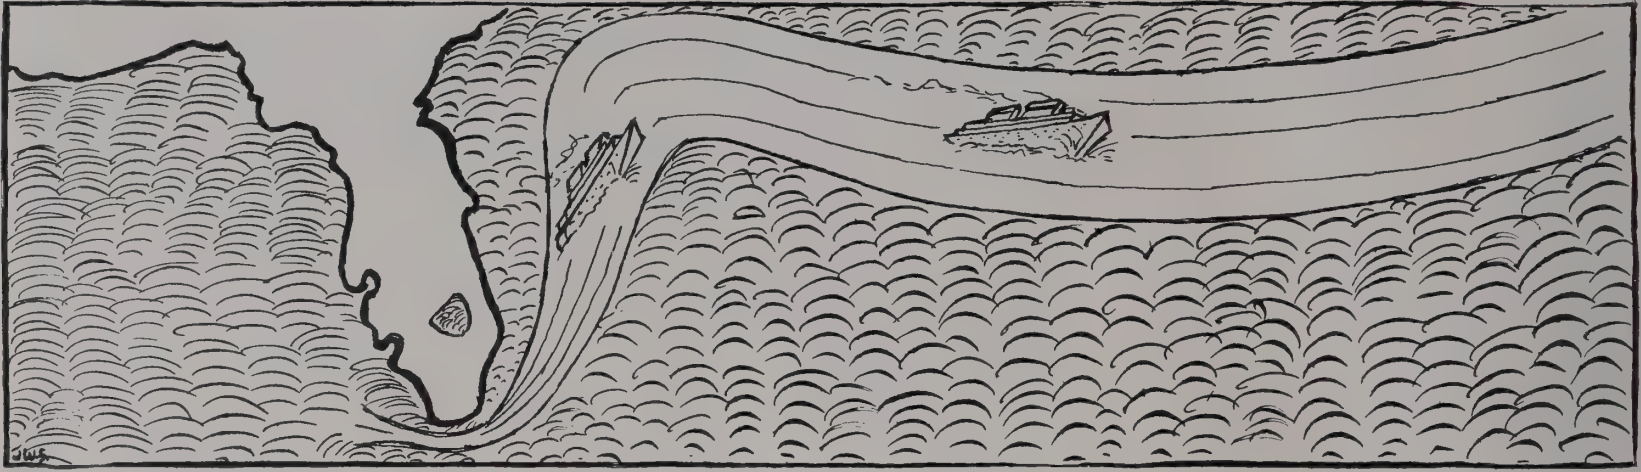

"The Boy With a Linnet" — Francisco de Goya, lent by the Cleveland Museum of Art.

"The Epiphany", by Fernando Gallego—from the collection of Edward Drummond Libbey, lent by the Toledo Museum of Art.

Nature's Great Guns - The Gulf Stream

THE GULF STREAM, great international highway of the marine world, especially friendly to Florida, and clearly visible to landlubbers of the Palm Beaches as it drifts on its uncertain course just three miles from shore, is a conundrum and but a partly solved riddle of nature.

Exactly where it meanders, and why, in its run of over 3,000 miles, traveling as, and how, it pleases, is still as conjectural in the minds of men as when Ponce de Leon first introduced it to white men—the Spanish explorer looking for the Fountain of Youth and finding instead “a current so strong we could not proceed further even though there was a good wind.”

A warm Mississippi in the cold Atlantic, the Amazon a mere brook by comparison, the mighty river, a display of nature's “great guns,” is a never-ending challenge to man, who both praises and blames it for a thousand good fortunes and aberrations of nature.

A gigantic deep blue pathway, carrying its own salt content and its own warm air, a sharp line of demarcation separates the stream from ocean water to east and west. So definitely, in fact, that passengers in an aeroplane flying at 5,000 feet can recognize it, and navigators crossing the sharp line can feel their ships pull with the powerful current.

Long before the founding of oceanography, inquiring minds sought to decipher the Gulf Stream, and since the beginning of time it has played an important part in the lives of men. Ben Franklin made it a military secret of the Revolutionary War; and in our time Murmansk became an important Russian seaport because warm gulf waters made it accessible in winter.

It carries a livable climate to lands that without its beneficence might be inhabited only by Eskimos. Great Britain reaps the benefit of the Gulf Stream's warm water from the tropics—Scotland especially, where the climate is mild and rainy; all western Europe, too, feels its warm winds.

A “Rover Boy” of nature, and master of oceanic swing, no shipmaster can accurately calculate where or in what direction the capricious river runs. But one thing that is known for certain is that the Gulf Stream is born in the Florida Straits—the child of Caribbean waters pushed there through passages between the chain of islands stretching down to the coast of South America.

Full of capers, and prone to kick over the traces, just as sometimes people do, the stream, recently found by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute to have a “core” 10 to 15 miles wide swinging in a snaky pattern a thousand miles long, is the creator of enormous eddies that sometimes break away from the mother stream and circle in a fixed position for weeks at a time while the Gulf Stream hastens on a hundred miles distant.

Such discoveries were made by the Woods Hole scientists, who also recently reported observing a European-bound vessel ploughing against a current five miles an hour, the skipper believing they were in the Gulf Stream, whereas the shipmaster was fighting a losing battle with a mere eddy.

With its stagnant and extensive sargasso, the stream teems with plant and animal life. In it swim the gigantic Portuguese men-o'-war, their huge tentacles reaching 60 feet below the surface. Flying fish take off from its crests, and lolling in its warm water are dolphins, bonitos and barracudas.

The fascinating story of the eel was discovered as a result of scientific research of the Gulf Stream, and about the same time it was found that just as the wind carries seeds of plants, sowing them far and wide, so the Gulf Stream transports a fish through the sea. Scientists also became certain eels are born in salt water in the ocean abyss near the island of Bermuda.

To this deep part of the ocean swim the full-grown eels from all the rivers of America and Europe, where after spawning they die far down in the sea.

Why they go there is unknown, just as it is a mystery how the young eels find their way back to the waters of their fathers. But that they do is an established fact, the larvæ carried into the Gulf Stream choosing sides, with the American eels swimming to the west, the Europeans to the east.

Praised, blamed, and the cause of wonderment, the grand old river is erratic. The Prince of Monaco attributed disappearance of sardines from his shores to the Gulf Stream, and residents of the New Jersey shore were startled a few years ago to find tropical fish in their waters.

Great Britain was suspicious of the stream when in the winter of '46 and '47 she suffered the greatest cold weather in her history. But in '45 the stream got no credit for a mild winter, with tropical fish darting through the English Channel.

Early springs, severe winters, hurricanes, and all disorders as well as favors of nature in the path of the stream are credited to it, with inquiring minds ever seeking to confirm such beliefs.

The first systematic investigation of it was inaugurated in 1845, and through the intervening century much water has flowed by the Florida capes . . . a billion tons a minute, in fact . . . and from it little information has been netted, and a deal of mystery still veils the Gulf Stream as men still pry to discover its secrets.

Par Avion from Paris

THESE ARE TENSE DAYS in the workrooms of the fashion houses: by the first week in February Paris must be ready once more to dazzle the world. Twice a year this miracle is expected, and twice a year the French couture manages somehow to do it. Not a "new look" every time (impossible) but out of the collections must come enough conversation pieces to make news around the world and to turn women's thinking into new channels.

Three weeks after a new model makes its breathless Paris debut it can be worn by a favorite and special customer of the house. First to see it is the press, then the buyers, who order copies and rush them home by plane and ship.

Only those who go behind the scenes can appreciate the increasing strain under which these name designers and their staffs work as the time approaches to unveil a new collection. Each house has assigned to it a day and an hour for its first showing. Should it miss its cue by not being ready, an entire season's work would be lost and the future threatened. One of the most successful designers—a man—has been known to ease this last-minute tension by sitting down and having a good cry.

Invitations to see the new collections are issued upon request, with preference given to well-known or well-recommended customers. The fashions we'll be seeing in a few days will be worn in Palm Beach before the season's over, and thereafter at all the smart summer resorts and race tracks.

While it's all very elegant, Chez Dior and Fath, etc., Americans in Paris go, for a real shopping spree, to the Army's Post Exchange. Like a country store, there is in the PX the happy co-mingling of unrelated merchandise and customers who know one another. People rub elbows as they try on sports dresses, winter coats, cardigans and housecoats, and compete for standing room before the one triple mirror. While baby is being fitted for shoes, someone is measuring curtain material along her arm, a soldier is sniffing perfumes and an officer with a chestful of medals is saying defiantly, "I don't know anything about derniers. I just want some nylons."

The wife of a minor diplomat was trying on a ready-made New York suit (a good little Henry Rosenfeld), unable to make up her mind whether she liked it or not. "Mrs. Eisenhower had it on yesterday and she liked it," the salesgirl remarked.

"Why didn't she buy it?" the woman wanted to know.

"She didn't have enough money with her," said the girl.

That did it. The customer hastily counted out her scrip and took the suit with her.

For the French salespeople who work in the PX, it isn't so much fun. They are not allowed to buy any of the attractively priced merchandise; not even candy bars to take home to their children. Their day off is Monday, when the Paris stores are also closed, which leaves them no time to shop.

A French salesgirl, wrapping up yards and yards of emerald green rayon taffeta for a customer, stroked it admiringly and asked, "Is it for an evening gown?" "No, for a curtain," said the American, feeling a little guilty. In a French store it would have cost three times as much.

Between their own commissary in the Embassy and the PX, American government personnel can be independent of the celebrated foods of France. Many are. At all hours of the day they stream out of the commissary in the wake of delivery boys carrying overhead, like African safari porters, big cartons of canned American foods. For them special bread is baked of bleached American flour. In a country famous for its fromage, they eat processed American cheese. They buy canned string beans from Iowa when the French market is offering its famous sliver-thin string beans picked fresh that morning from gardens just outside Paris.

It seems to be their firm conviction that if the commissary closed, they'd starve to death in a week. Most of them have never seen Les Halles, the great Paris wholesale market where enough food is sold every morning to feed all of Texas.

Like the orange gardens of the Everglades Club is the Mogador's setting for the second act of "The Merry Widow." The oranges that bloom nightly in the young widow's garden aren't better, but they're certainly bigger than the Palm Beach variety. Grapefruit, maybe.

must do their waltz over and over—she in black velvet with billowing black lace petticoats sparked with jet, and he in the best-tailored evening clothes currently to be seen on the Paris stage. Because he is a handsome six-footer, dances well, wears his clothes with distinction and laughs at his role as well as in it, Marcel Merkes is a great success as the Prince. Marina Hotine is every inch the joyeuse widow, and Fernand Gilbert an engaging Baron Popoff.

Perhaps it is the third act, set in Maxim's, which makes Parisians feel they get their money's worth. Not only can they enjoy the lights and music of Maxim's, and the vicarious pleasure of seeing champagne in silver buckets on every table, and long pink feather boas around the shoulders of all the feminine customers, but they see a floor show—a show within a show—that is certainly equal to any they would get in a nightclub. At any rate, they come out of the Mogador feeling quite joyeuse.

The mild air coming in through the wide-open windows of the Palais de Chaillot these winter days prompts wishful thinking about the next UN Assembly. Why not come back to Paris? people are asking. Delegates and the secretariat are beginning to feel at home in the five-story, U-shaped building that embraces the terraced fountains of the palace and looks across the Seine to the Eiffel Tower. The pastel walls, bright modern tapestries and mauve velvet couches make a pleasant working home, and it's all so convenient with a bank, a postoffice, restaurants, a theatre, a museum and three bars, all under one roof.

For their part, the French are reluctant to take apart this pleasant building which they put together with such Paris never entertains in the grand manner without its Garde Republicaine. efficient speed after the UN's rather belated decision to come here. The original plan was to take it away in sections and make school houses of it. Instead, it may stand until next winter, to house another Assembly.

One factor in this rapport between Paris and the visitors has been the weather. During November and most of December it was possible to eat, or at least to drink, out of doors. On Christmas Eve, people coming out of the churches after midnight mass and a feast of music, found cafe tables set out of doors, with white tablecloths, ready for reveillon. A little blowy, but Parisians don't mind that.

In Paris, pony tails and horse tails are accepted hairdos among teenagers. But the young American colony was completely undone by the appearance, at an eighth grade dance, of a Junior Miss, age 13, wearing a pony tail AND a gold tiara. A newcomer, from Texas. The boys were breathless and the girls, speechless.

Glamorous Seafaring Yachts

ALTHOUGH IT IS A LITTLE early in the season for the greatest concentration of our nautical fraternity, many of the finest yachts on the eastern seacoast are already berthed snugly against their piers along both sides of Lake Worth. There could hardly be imagined two more beautiful views than the ones presented to the yachts on the Palm Beach side of the lake, of the West Palm Beach skyline, and the yachts at the Marina and Palm Beach Yacht Club docks of distinguished Palm Beach.

In the early morning when mist often hugs the water of Lake Worth and the pink sun is smiling optimistically in the east; at dusk when there is a rare lavender haze that stretches from shore to shore; at night, with a theatrically orange moon riding low in the sky and the merry lights of multi-windowed hotels decorate both shores, it is a privilege just to be alive on board a yacht. At these times, the peace and tranquillity that comes to the yachtsman, even tied up at his pier, surpasses analysis.

Cruising north or south in the center of Lake Worth on a sunny, breezy day, feeling like a king at the very least, when majestic drawbridges rise in the air in response to the signalling "toots," is exhilarating. To be tucked in bed in a cozy cabin, while gentle swells keep the craft softly in motion and little wavelets slap the pilings alongside is soothing. Truly "there is nothing like a"—yacht.

For all the wonderful things modern yachts can do, a blessed event among them is still rare, and much attention is caught by the handsome "Bink's" little pale green and white "Binky," snuggled alongside "mamma" at the Australian Avenue dock. The Orland Greene's pleasure in their sea-going home has been doubled by the addition of the little sea-skiff.

"The Captiva" has been cruising with Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, original owner, and her sister, Mrs. Edward F. Swenson, aboard. "The Gurnet," another Australian Avenue docker, is cruising around the Pompano fishing spots. Edward M. Farnsworth, owner, is from Boston, Mass.

Rumor around the Brazilian Avenue dock is that Henry O. Rea will rename his newly acquired "Linwood," the new name to be "Edora." By either name, it is a good omen, as the yacht was recently seen sporting five sailfish (caught and released) signals, after a day of fishing by Mr. Rea and his step-son, George Frick.

Commander and Mrs. Pell Miller, Washington, D. C., have been guests on board the "Good Hope," the Robert O. Scholtz's graceful sailboat, at the Brazilian Avenue dock. Mr. R. A. O'Conner of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, has been giving his "We Go" a good workout in the best fishing waters, leaving the Brazilian dock in the morning and returning the same night as a rule.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Heermann, whose "Clare H, IV" always has two growing palms on the dock alongside, are entertaining Judge and Mrs. J. Cullen Ganey, of Philadelphia for several weeks. With their guests, the Heermanns will enjoy a leisurely cruise through the Keys in February.

The Canadian registry "Osceola," belonging to the James Norrises of Toronto, Ont., has been spending some time at Ft. Lauderdale, now having returned to its berth at the foot of Australian Avenue. Also at the Australian dock are the "Mystic," with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glendinning on board; and neighboring "Sumoria," belonging to Harold P. Whitmore. Mr. Whitmore is the present owner of Worth Avenue property formerly belonging to Mr. Glendinning's father. Nominated for the most intriguing name at the Australian dock is the "Pink Lady," a Chris-Craft belonging to the C. E. Pink family. "Pink Lady" soberly enough brought Mr. and Mrs. Pink and children down through the inland waterway, behaving every inch a lady.

Many former admirers are inquiring the whereabouts and "whatabouts" of "Mon Lei," exotic houseboat belonging to the late Robert Ripley. Sadly missed from these waters are the "Mon Lei," and her colorful owner.

"Helena," a habitue of the Palm Beach Yacht Club dock, has been to the Islands with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mele, owners, on board. Mr. and Mrs. William Hauser, on board the sloop, "Mary Eleanor," are cruising in the Keys, but expected back at their Palm Beach Yacht Club berth soon. J. "A book, a loaf of bread, a jug of wine"—in Palm Beach waters it reads, a row of stately palms along the shore, a commodious yacht, a tropical sky, smooth waters and a seasoned dachsy skipper like 10-year old Fritzie pictured here with his folks, owners of the "Ouananiche", Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Matthes of Cleveland. Well-known members of the Palm Beach yachting colony, Mr. Matthes, an expert on navigation is a frequent contributor to yachting publications and is now working on a piece he plans to call "Coast to Coast in Two Days." Just now cruising coastal waters, the Matthes plan their destination, the Usetta Island Club on Florida's west coast. They are members of the Cleveland, Sandusky, and Catawba Cliffs yacht clubs.

hotel, is planning a number of fishing trips on board his yacht "Pleiades."

The oddly named "Car-al II" owned by the Allen A. Johnsons, of Birmingham, Ala., is expected at the Brazilian Avenue dock momentarily. After a stay in the Palm Beaches, they will go to Miami.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. T. Remington, happy Palm Beach year-rounders, have "Kenhyrd" docked at their Everglades Island home. He is Lt. Commander Remington of the Palm Beach Power Squadron.

Only owners on board at the West Palm Beach Marina docks one day recently were Mr. and Mrs. James C. McRoberts, with their "Frances T," out of Spring Lake, New Jersey. Mr. McRoberts heads a famous New York detective agency.

The Roscoe Anthonys are readying their "Blue Heron" for a cruise later in the season. There are extensive repairs underway, to make for better boating in May, when the Anthonys take their annual cruise in the Islands.

The P. S. Spregue's "Lion's Whelp," tied up at the Palm Beach Biltmore dock, is named, interestingly enough, for the ship that brought Spregue ancestors to America long ago. The present "Lion's Whelp" is a very big and very beautiful kitty of a yacht.

At the Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club, the Herbert A. Bedfords' "Alex"; James B. Bell, Jr.'s "Blondie" and Gilbert Drakes' "Alsue" are entered in the Sailfish Derby after extensive pre-derby readying activities. F. Dwight Foster, carbon paper manufacturer docks his "Carbon Copy" at the Sailfish Club when not out in the briny deep. The J. Kirby Tomkins, of Philadelphia, are on board their "Bettijack IV," at the Sailfish Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Kroehler, Hinsdale, Illinois, have as guests on board their "Lark," at the Sailfish Club dock their sister-in-law, Mrs. Kenneth Kroehler and son Peter, and Mrs. Kroehler's mother, Mrs. H. Staecker. Franklin P. Wilson, owner of the yacht "Commander" has been elected president of the Palm Beach County Regatta Association, representing the Sailfish Club in the racing organization. The A. S. Davies, Palm Beach, have returned from a cruise in the Islands on board their yacht "Faye-A-Way," and Mr. and Mrs. Gene T. Dyer have been entertaining friends with several cruises on board their "Genie."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Regenstein, Chicago, Ill. and Palm Beach, have sold their Australian Avenue home and moved into the Lake Drive Apartments, where they can look out at their pretty yacht, "Box Office," docked at the Brazilian Avenue dock.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora:

WHAT WITH THE NEW YEAR, Winnie, and the opening of Congress, the town's really been jumping.

Starting with the New Year, as usual Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, the former Princess Emina Toussoun, of Egypt, gave their much looked forward to dinner on New Year's Eve. One hundred and thirty of their friends came to dine and dance and welcome in the New Year at their best party yet.

The stately looking hostess was stunning in a Patou gown of white, the bodice of which was highlighted with midnight blue paillettes. There was a divine Czechoslovakian duo playing gypsy tunes, a fine orchestra in the drawing room, red roses everywhere, and a goodly number of the diplomatic corps sprinkled in with Washington society. Ranking guests were Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne and the dean of the diplomatic corps, whose daughter, now Mrs. John R. Coleman, is a resident of Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rees, of Alexandria (Egypt) and Paris, arrived just before the party and will be the house guests of the Bretsches for several weeks.

Mrs. Dwight Davis also gave her usual small and select dance, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacCracken gave a dance for their deb daughter, Nell. Among the other parties on the New Year slate was the small dinner dance given by Ecuadorian Minister and Senora de Moscoso in honor of the popular Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Edward G. Miller. Gloria Moscoso is the sister of the President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza.

Crowding the spotlight with Winston Churchill were Sir Thomas Beecham, Britain's noted conductor, and Loretta North, Australia's most beautiful girl, believe it or not, with two kangaroos, Joe and Matilda, who were very much at the party the Australian Ambassador and Mrs. Percy Spender gave in honor of Miss North.

The Joseph E. Davies entertained at a dinner to welcome Mr. George Bunker and his bride, who is Promila Marie Jose Coelho, of Portuguese and East Indian parentage. Mr. Bunker is the son of Signora Augusto Rosso, wife of the former Italian Ambassador to the United States. When the Rossos were stationed in Moscow the two beautiful Ambassadors, Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Rosso, became great friends. Mr. and Mrs. Bunker will be leaving for their home in France soon.

Lovely Loredana Luciolli, who is one of the capital's best-looking hostesses, and her Italian counselor husband, Mario Luciolli, were among those entertaining at dinner for the retiring French Attache and Countess de Boisgelin.

Count and Countess de Boisgelin sailed on January 12th for Paris, where the Count will take a new post with the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Another party hosted by the Luciolli was the luncheon given in honor of playwright Giancarlo Menotti, who was in Washington for the opening of his play, "The Medium," at Washington's only legitimate theatre, the "Gayety." The talented Mr. Menotti wrote also "The Telephone," "The Counsel" and has a new one now called "Amal and the Three Kings."

The Ambassador of Mexico and his pretty American wife, Amanda de la Colina, are back from a long visit in Texas, where they were honored guests with Ambassador and Mrs. William O'Dwyer at the annual Black and White ball given in San Antonio. Having met the beautiful Mrs. O'Dwyer at the American Embassy in Mexico City recently, I can well imagine how stunning she looked at this ball in a black satin and jet gown with a huge bustle. The dress was loaned to Mrs. O'Dwyer by actress Dolores del Rio, who had worn it in the filming of a recent picture.

Senora de la Colina is one of our most talented Ambassadors as well as a successful hostess. One of her recent parties was a farewell given for the departing Sir Carl and Lady Berendsen. Amanda de la Colina in years past received great recognition for her paintings, but has now turned her hand to composing. She is very proud that the Army Air Force Band, which is really a full-sized orchestra, headed by Col. George S. Howard, accepted one of her compositions and played it at a concert in Washington and over a national hookup. This same composition will be played all over Latin America and later on a world tour.

The rafters of the old "Gayety" rang with "Ole!" as Jose Greco's Spanish Ballet group burst onto the stage and gave a thrilling performance on opening night. The group, which has had enormous success in New York, was entertained by his Excellency the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. de Lequerica at a small supper party after the performance. The Ambassador had a group of localites in his box that evening.

Glogau
Signora Mario Luciolli, distinguished wife of the Counselor of the Italian Embassy in Washington.

And prominent lawyer Mr. Charles Patrick Clark entertained in his box recently arrived Mr. Angier Biddle Duke, who is attached to our Embassy in Madrid. Mr. Duke will be dividing his time between Washington and New York for a month before returning to Europe.

Wedding bells rang out at St. Bartholomew's Church in New York on January 12th for Joan Aylesworth Landor and Arthur Wendell Gardner, of the United States Coast Guard. He is the son of former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Arthur Gardner, of Washington, Watch Hill, and Palm Beach. The bonnie bride is the daughter of Mrs. Finney Landor, of Washington and Sharon, Conn.

Among the many parties surrounding the nuptials was the buffet supper which Mr. and Mrs. Gardner gave for the prospective bride and groom at the River House the evening before the wedding.

The Gardners, who give some of the most fascinating parties in the nation's capital, gave a small dance at the F Street Club for their sub-deb daughter, Miss Suzanne Gardner. Suzanne, who is named after her popular mother, is a student at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn.

A pretty and somewhat shy presentee in the debutante line up during the holidays was dark eyed Miss Irene W. Pawley of Miami and Washington. Her distinguished looking father formerly a United States Ambassador who is now special consultant to the Secretary of Defense, and lovely blonde Mrs. Pawley, gave the fete which was a 10:00 o'clock ball at the Hotel Shoreham.

Miss Pawley was in a snowy white strapless dress with a bouffant skirt. Her step-mother wore a stunning silver satin French import highlighted with brilliants. Others there of the Pawley clan were Irene's brother, Wm. D. Pawley, Jr. who had arrived from Mineral Wells, Tex.

We sat at a table with Chief Justice Thomas Clark and Mrs. Clark the Secretary of the Senate and Mrs. Leslie Biddle, and Senator George Smathers and his good-looking wife. Saw Admiral and Mrs. Foskitt with their two daughters, and the Ecuadorian Ambassador and Mme. Peneherrerera, and dozens of beautiful young girls, including Mrs. Clifton Pawley.

Irene is already back at her studies at Holton Arms School in Washington, where she is majoring in art and music, having previously attended Miss Harris' School at Miami.

Best wishes were in order for Mr. and Mrs. B. Poli Sheahan when their little son, Poli 2nd, was baptized at St. Patrick's cathedral in New York City just after Christmas.

Mrs. Sheahan who is the former Miss Shirley Akers was married in Rome at a big wedding some two years ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd De Soto Akers of Washington and Miami Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Lawson-Johnston, who came on one of their infrequent trips from their home in England, have been in New York and are expected momentarily in the capital. Time was when this popular couple came here every year, spent six weeks in New York, stopped here for a visit among her old friends, then went on further south. However, this is their first trip to this area for two or three years.

Mrs. Lawson-Johnston has not lived in Washington since her marriage to Mr. Lawson-Johnston, even though she has visited here on many occasions. Before her marriage, when she was Mrs. Lyman B. Kendall, she not only was prominent in Washington but a great favorite. When Mr. Kendall's health failed, they sold their place, "Kentsdale," and took an apartment in New York, where Mr. Kendall died a short time after. Their daughter, Jane, who was a deb in 1926, had then married George Grant Mason III. Jane, who is now the wife of George Abell, visited in Washington and Miami last spring. They have a delightful home in Paris now, after living several years in Munich. The Abells will be in the United States again this spring as Mrs. Abell's son, Anthony Mason, will be graduating from school.

Mrs. Lawson-Johnston before her marriage to the late Mr. Kendall was a charming drawing room singer, and in those days it was a popular form of entertaining to give a dinner party followed by a program of music. Mrs. Lawson-Johnston was an artist at singing and it was in this role that she took the spirituals of the American Negro into the drawing rooms of London's nobility. Most of the songs she learned during her childhood in Georgia.

Mrs. Lawson-Johnston has lost none of her interest in music. Since her arrival in New York she was among the guests at luncheon of Mrs. Manville Dresselhuys, chairman of the subscribers for the annual Bagby concert in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria.

People are still talking about the coming out party of Jane Kendall in 1926, when Mr. and Mrs. Kendall gave a costume ball and large house party at "Kentsdale" over that week end. Mrs. Kendall was in a Du Barry costume she had worn at one of the festivities at Palm Beach and in which she was awarded the prize for the most beautiful costume. Jane wore the gown her grandmother wore when presented to the Court of St. James's. Oh, for those good old days, when taxes weren't astronomic and people could enjoy life!

With that last thought I will leave you. At least you have the sunshine for solace.

Much love,

GARNETT.

Senora Rafael de la Colina, talented American born wife of the Mexican Ambassador to the United Nations.

EDITION 1952! By the "master coatsman" Philip Mangone. Twin capelets drape the shoulders of the loose-fitting maroon, white and red plaid coat, which features a wide full-length back box pleat, simulating a panel. A buttonless garment, with slanted self-banded pockets and cuffed sleeves. The epitome of chic and available at Mme. Mogabgab's.

VERY FRENCH, this imported silk organza ball gown, by Philip Hulitar, noted American designer. Lilacs are the theme, both in color and pattern, accented with a huge spray of the flowers on one shoulder and the mauve tones of the several "petticoats". The irregular hemline and smart stole treatment are style news!

THIS FABULOUS ARRAY OF DIAMONDS from Koslow would enhance the most pretentious evening gown! The necklace with pear-shaped drop is made of marquise, baguettes and round stones; exotic earrings harmonize. The bracelet and highly styled clip echo the chic theme. The large pear-shaped diamond ring is exceptionally beautiful!

A NEW VERSION of the "little white dress", designed by Carolyn Schnurer and included in the 1952 resort collection at McDonald's. The fabric is white cotton, with gay-colored butterflies as the decorative pattern, in a unique treatment. Note the flattering neckline, fitted bodice and very full skirt.

A colorful ensemble from the B. H. Wragge resort and spring collection. The white linen coat dress with daisy-embroidered buttonholes, hip pockets and short slit sleeves, is teamed with a chic red and white, fish bone tweed wool box jacket. A versatile resort costume and available at the Ruth Chagnon shop in Delray Beach.

Scouting the Shops

"AS TIME GOES BY: Greenleaf & Crosby have some exquisite new diamond wristwatches, that are as functional as they are ornamental. A smart narrow width, "glitterized" with round and baguette stones. In line with the trend for massive jewelry . . . aquamarine and diamond clip-brooches, in abstract design with matching earrings.

PARAFFIN BATHS: Followed by massage, for slenderizing . . . in the Elizabeth Arden manner. They are also said to be health-promoting! And, for smooth limbs when following the Palm Beach stockingless trend, there are effective wax treatments.

TOPFLIGHT AMERICAN DESIGNER: Beautiful fabrics plus outstanding craftsmanship . . . distinguish the Traina-Norell clothes. They are dramatic but never theatrical! Always trend-setting, in a dramatically simple, yet intricate styling.

CANASTA ACCESSORIES: To make your game more interesting, Worrell's have some smart new ideas. Such as the bleached wood card table and matching chairs . . . with expansive cane backs and foam rubber seats. The upholstery is tangerine with a gold thread for the glitter touch. And, tangerine is returning to vogue, according to Mrs. Worrell; also, the various shades of rust.

CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS: Are featured in the outstanding collection of French oil paintings at Plummer's. Such famous names as: Lieberts, Gagni, Schiefer, Blondin, Reverbeiri; in landscapes, heads, French scenes. You can use one or several of these colorful paintings, as a nucleus for smart decor themes.

"COOL CHOCOLATES": Simply out of this world . . . the attractive and delectable candies, at the new D. Lorraine Yerkes Confectionery Shop, S. County Road. Have you tried the "white" chocolates? They look cool and are wonderfully creamy and soft. The French fruit circles with different motifs, are also as good to look at as they are to munch!

DEEP GOLD AND EXTREME: The chic Ceil Chapman evening gown at Norman's . . . styled with very full skirt, as per the present trend and strapless bodice of asymmetrical lines. No glitter or dazzle needed!

THE DIAMOND LOOK: Is everywhere in the 1952 fashion scheme . . . for glitter that is exclusive, L. Barton Brookov, has a wonderful collection of diamond necklaces, bracelets, earrings, rings, pins, clips. And, the more massive the better, according to present trends.

NUBBY LINEN JACKETS: Sponsored by Finchley's, for men who want to be among the "ten best-dressed" in the resort . . . worn with contrasting slacks. Also new and smart, the silk shantung slacks teamed with silk Javanese-printed sports shirts.

FROM DIAMONDS IN THE ROUGH: To fabulous jewels of breath-taking beauty . . . is the saga of Harry Winston Inc. New York. They are also the owners of many of the most famous diamonds in the world!

AN OLD SCOTCH CUSTOM: Everyone in the resort has been talking about the fascinating window at Scotti's, featuring a colorful Scotch kilt, accented with 18 carat gold and jeweled motifs. The original kilt belonged to a great-great-great uncle of one of the executives of "21" Brands, a Mr. Duncan MacIntosh.

KEEP A PICTURE: Of important events in your winter holiday and Miller and Wallace, have the cameras and all of the necessary equipment. They also do wonderful custom photo finishing.

BANKING AND PARKING: Both problems are solved by the First National Bank for your convenience. Park your car in their lot and use the patio entrance of the bank. Or, if you are in a terrific hurry . . . bank from your car, at the auto-teller window.

FLOWERS AND SHRUBS: Enhance even the most pretentious property and the Island Landscape Co. are the people to call, to take care of your landscaping problems. They have landscaped many of the show places in the resort.

"AGED IN THE WOOD": Anyway aged . . . the liquor, champagne and liqueurs, promoted by Berlin Griffin. They specialize in the "top names" and brands . . . have for years.

"WORLD CRAFT": Is the appropriate name for the shop on Worth Avenue, which specializes in hand-crafts from all over the globe. Collectors items and gifts . . . in rare and one-of-a-kind items.

TREASURES & TRIFLES: But most of them are treasures, at this fascinating shop in The Breakers, which has the atmosphere of a museum. Antiques from all over . . . and each one distinctive!

MODERN DESIGNERS: Patricia Holsaert's new shop on Worth Avenue, specializes in the foremost examples of modern designers in . . . glass, lamps, textiles, ceramics, furniture, silver. They are also consultants for interior decorating.

TAKE A CRUISE: In your own boat . . . Chris-Craft has boats of all sizes . . . in the latest models and with all of the new gadgets and such. Beautiful, seagoing craft!

FOR THOSE WHO DEMAND PERFECTION: The Manor Industries, have artisans who create wonderful modern furniture . . . stressing purity of line, artful workmanship, incomparable materials. Woods garnered from all over the world.

JOSEPHINE MISSED SOMETHING: According to rumor, "if Josephine had known she would have used it" . . . the Empress Josephine hand lotion, sponsored by the Worth Ave. Apothecary Shop. Keeps your hands smooth and white and protects from the vagaries of the wind and sun.

CLEAN SKIN: The "Cyclax Method" claims that a "clean skin is healthy" and that health radiates natural beauty. They advocate starting the day with "a soap and water scrub up," followed by the Cyclax products, which are right for your particular type of skin. These treatments available at the Frank & Erma Salon.

AN ORIGINAL dancing gown of imported Swiss organdy in pastel background, with complementary embroidery for interesting contrast . . . made over a crinoline, for smart bouffancy. Elegant simplicity, plus youthful styling! From Herman's, who specialize in strapless dresses with built-in bra for their entire resort collection.

THE PORTRAIT NECKLINE, which dramatizes this Ceil Chapman golden brown silk organdy evening gown, from the spring collection at Frances Brewster's. The full skirt, flaring from the long fitted bodice, is worn over an attached brown taffeta petticoat. Sweet peas and accordion pleating edged in lace frame the dramatic neckline.

IN WALTZ TIME: This pale pink corded lace dancing dress, over crisp pink taffeta, from the spring and summer collection of ready-to-wear Sophie Originals and exclusive at Saks Fifth Avenue. The waist is slimmed in to a minimum, with a high-waisted girdle of velvet, shading from light grey to steel blue.

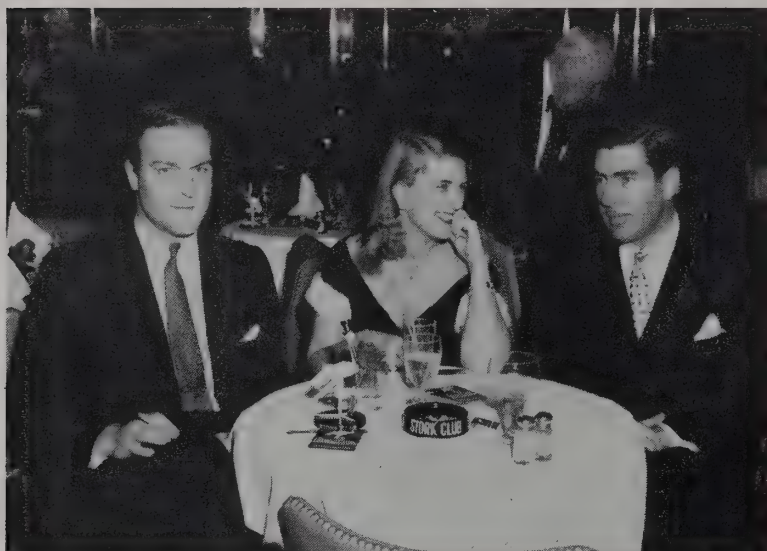

A STUDY IN BLACK AND WHITE: Designed by Sophie with Stephen Erklin, for the spring and summer ready-to-wear collection of "Sophie Originals". The shadowy skirt, topped with a strapless bodice, embroidered in shell design with black sequins! Available at Saks Fifth Avenue in Palm Beach.

New York Letter

Dear Dora,

MRS. WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, one of society's most dignified members, dazzled smart setters recently with her Free Milk Fund for Babies opera. All the nicest people attended, which proves that society will give their all for charity. Mrs. Hearst entertained in two center boxes of the Diamond Horseshoe, and had among her guests Mayor Impellitteri, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Berlin, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Pareras, Preston Davie, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr., who is the glamorous Austine; the irrepressible Elsa Maxwell, who I understand is having a beautiful feud with her friend of long standing, the Duke of Windsor; and the Duke Fulco di Verdura.

Other notables who heard the superb renditions of Ljuba Welitch in "Salome" and Salvatore Baccaloni in "Gianni Schicchi" were the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitneys, Barbara Hutton, the Walter Hovings, Mrs. William Woodward, the Bill Paleys, the Lytle Hulls, Helen Tuck Astor, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, whom I suppose will be heading your way soon to throw Palm Beach into its usual spin; Jessie Donahue and her son Jimmy and many other elegant personages.

While touring the town the other early morning whom should I run into at Eddie Condon's, where Dixieland jazz holds the spotlight, but Brenda Frazier Kelly with Patrick O'Higgins. Brenda and "Shipwreck" are still separated, but do occasionally see one another. Brenda looks too divine, and is still wearing her hair cut short, which really does give piquant to her most photogenic face. Brenda is really making the rounds with the boys, and is seen practically every night with a different escort. Have you heard whether or not she is coming to Palm Beach this season?

And speaking of Palm Beach, at a cocktail party only yesterday I heard that lovely Norma Skulstad Munro Clark had departed for your resort with full intentions of severing relations with wealthy Alfred Corning Clark. Alfred you know hails from the Singer sewing machine family, and has just oddles of sous. But for some reason, he is the most unlucky man as far as romance goes. Norma, who has herself been married twice, is Alfred's third wife, and I'm afraid she really means what she says about the divorce, consequently Alfred will be on the loose again, possibly looking for that fourth. Unless of course his mind is not running to matrimony again.

While lunching at the Stork the other day I ran into Jeanne Rhinelander, who confided she and Oakley are not getting on at all well. She told me she would not hear of a divorce, but possibly might settle for a separation. She was Jeanne Schley you know, and if I'm correct, you met her several seasons ago at Palm Beach when she was down there prior to her marriage.

And I suppose you know Adelaide Moffett is on the gulf coast of Florida tantalizing the air waves via a local radio station. Adelaide has a really good voice, and if you remember was one of the first society girls to sing in supper clubs when that was the chic thing to do. She is the daughter of James Moffett, who at one time was married to Kim Moran. Friends of Adelaide say she is planning a musical comeback. Her sister Ruth is awaiting her divorce degree from Dick Wash which should come through in February.

Did you know that Sumner Welles, who is probably honeymooning in the never never land that is Palm Beach at this writing, sold at auction the furs belonging to his late wife? I understand he didn't do too awfully well, as one mink coat went for $800.00. I suppose that will make a down payment on a new mink for his brand new wife.

A few paragraphs back I mentioned Elsa Maxwell and her feud with the Duke of Windsor. I really can't substantiate the story, but intimates reveal the quarrel stems from the about to be published memoirs of Elsa. I hear Elsa, who has been feeding off society folk for simply decades, has told absolutely all in her forthcoming book, and David is one of the victims! I really can't blame him, or anyone else for that matter, for being unhappy. After all, Elsa actually has and still is living off international celebrities. The party giving (for a price of course) Maxwell should remember her not too lush days and those who befriended her when she wasn't the power she is today.

I ran into Angie and Margaret Duke the other day and the couple couldn't have looked more devoted, dispelling any rumor of a separation. They had just returned from Spain where Angie as you doubtlessly know is a member of Ambassador Stanton Griffis' staff.

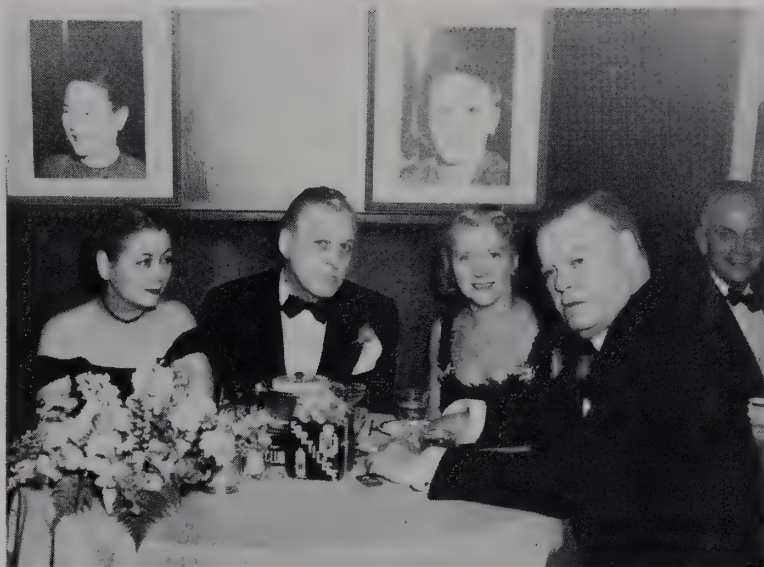

At cocktail time at the Pierre I gossiped with a friend who had only just returned from Palm Beach. She reported things were fairly quiet but she herself had a tale of woe. Seems one fairly gay evening between the Everglades Club and the Miramar Restaurant she not only lost a mink coat and one of a pair of diamond earrings, but also her hired automobile. The lovely young lady, (naturally I won't mention any names) recovered all three, thanks to the aid of buddies who remembered the trail she followed throughout the evening. After a late supper at the Miramar she decided to go on with friends and merely left her car parked near the fashionable restaurant. Luckily it was recovered the next morning, along with the earring and mink jacket.

There is talk, and mind you only talk, that Britain's King George and Queen Elizabeth will land at Nassau sometime in February. Can you imagine what would happen, my dear, if they came to Palm Beach. And of course that is not unlikely when you consider how close that British isle is to your isle of paradise. The way the smart set knocks itself out over the D & D, can you possibly, in your wildest dreams of imagination, conjure what they would do for no less than the king and queen. And think what a situation would arise if the Windsors were in the resort at that time, should the royal couple come over. My dear, that would really be a rat race.

News is now slim, but soon again I shall write with gossipy bits that I'm certain shall interest you. For the time, au revoir.

Love,

ELLEN.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ Colorful JAMAICA

THE WINTER SEASON in Jamaica, B. W. I., has opened with larger than usual guest lists in the many hotels and has been highlighted by the visits of many socially prominent persons.

Among those enjoying the beach and mountain resorts in the picture-book island is Lady Megan Lloyd George, who for 19 years was a member of Parliament.

Sir Harry Hague, accompanied by Lady Hague, is enjoying a winter in Jamaica. He is managing director of A. Wonder, Limited, London.

Sir Arthur Rogers, chairman of the board of directors of the London and Lancashire Insurance Company, accompanied by Lady Rogers, is among others enjoying an indefinite stay on the island.

Sir John and Lady Buchanan-Jardine are occupying their lovely residence and have as their guest the internationally famed portrait painter, Gary deLisser.

Others noted in the various resorts are Marquis and Lady Northampton, the Earl and Countess Beatty, Miss Florence Desmond (an English actress), Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Marston, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Burke, and Howard Greer, Hollywood designer, Capt. Edward Molyneux, Parisian designer.

Miss Monica Baldwin is here from London, she is the cousin of the late Earl Baldwin, and Miss Joan Arbuthnot, granddaughter of Sir Henry Blake, a former Governor of Jamaica. Miss Baldwin is the author of the recent best seller, "I Leapt Over the Wall".

Novelist and playwright Frank F. James, Herr and Frau Karl Leturchardt, of Germany; Prime Minister of New Brunswick, Mr. John McNair, and Beverly Baxter, M. P., and G. H. Sumpter, editor of the Otago Daily Times, New Zealand, are among other notables who are being entertained this season on the island.

Rear Admiral M. R. Gree, commander of the United States 10th Naval District, has his headquarters at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, of Washington, D. C., have rented a winter residence on the island of Jamaica for a period of five weeks. Mr. Symington, whose resignation as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was announced this week, was formerly Secretary of the Air Force and chairman of the National Resources Board.

Mr. Frazier Jelke, of New York and Newport, and his son, Frazier, Jr., were recent guests at Sunset Lodge, Montego Bay.

Lord Beaverbrook, famous British publisher, has opened his home, "Cromarty", at Montego Bay for the season.

Lady Pamela Bird and Lady Jean Campbell, of England, have joined the smart social colony at Montego Bay. Lady Pamela Bird came from Bermuda. Lady Jean Campbell is a granddaughter of Lord Beaverbrook.

Stopping at the Casa Blanca Hotel, Montego Bay, are the Hon. Harold Scott, Canadian Minister for Forests, Mines, Fisheries and Wild Life, with Mrs. Scott, and the Hon. Col. Arthur Welsh, Provincial Secretary for the Government of Ontario and Chief Commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, with Mrs. Welsh.

Cecil Parker, British star of stage and screen, with Mrs. Parker, is visiting the Coral Cliff Hotel, Montego Bay.

Raymond Gram Swing, American radio commentator and news analyst, with Mrs. Swing, is occupying their winter home in Mandeville, in the Jamaica mountains. Mr. Swing currently is engaged in important broadcasts for the "Voice of America". He covered the United Nations and NATO Conferences in Paris and Rome, respectively.

Count Emmanuel Sieves, of Paris and Buenos Aires, accompanied by the Countess and their niece, Senorita Sarah Moltedo, of Buenos Aires, has rented a residence on the north coast of Jamaica and will spend three months on the island.

Carl W. Ackerman, Dean of the School of Journalism at Columbia University, of New York, and Mrs. Ackerman are visiting Jamaica.

Ceil Chapman, noted New York designer of women's apparel, who was married recently at Greenwich, Conn., to Thomas Gillespie Rogers, in charge of eastern publicity for radio and TV at MGM, will visit Sunset Lodge, Montego Bay, within a few weeks. "Who Is Ceil Chapman?" was the title of an article in November Cosmopolitan. Also booked for vacations at Sunset Lodge are Capt. Edouard Molyneux, famous Parisian couturier; the Marquis and Marchioness of Northampton, the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, and Princess Kyril Scherbatow. Mr. Goddard Lieberman, president of the Columbia Recording Company, and his wife, Vera Zorina, ballet and stage star, with their two small sons, visitors at Sunset Lodge, returned to New York.

H. R. II. Princess Alice, and her husband, the Earl of Athlone, are spending six weeks in Jamaica, visiting for a while at Kings House, the residence of the Governor of the island, Sir Hugh Foot, K. C. M. G., O. B. E., and Lady Foot.

Mrs. Irene Castle Enzinger, of Detroit, is visiting the Fairfield, Montego Bay.

The Hon. Geoffrey Cunliffe and Mrs. Cunliffe were recent visitors at Montego Bay. He is managing director of the British Aluminum Company.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dudley, of Washington, Conn., are visiting the Fairfield at Montego Bay. Other visitors there are Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Godfrey, of Hamilton, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. K. Hammell, of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Witmer, also of Pasadena, with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Boothe, of San Marino, Calif., who were joined later by their son, Lt. Edgar B. Witmer, U. S. Air Force, who flew to the island to spend his five days leave with his parents; also Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Heywood, of Asheville, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamilton, of Washington, D. C., have taken the annex at Mrs. Joan Ogilvie's guest house, "Sterling", at Reading, near Montego Bay. Mr. Hamilton is a staff member of the House of Representatives and the United States Senate Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Judge Harry E. Watkins, of the United States District Court of West Virginia, with Mrs. Watkins, was a recent visitor in Jamaica, breaking his trip to the conference of the Inter-American Bar Association in Montevideo.

Dorothy Viscountess Portman, widow of the seventh Viscount Portman and mother of the eighth, is a visitor at the Manor House Hotel, Constant Spring.

Honeymooning at Sunset Lodge, Montego Bay, are Mr. and Mrs. Julian Beaty, the latter being the daughter of Richard Rodgers, of "South Pacific" fame.

THE GULFSTREAM POLO CLUB, adjacent to the ocean between Boynton and Delray Beach, is the home of polo in Florida, and every Sunday and Thursday during the season games are played for the wholesome diversion it furnishes both player and spectator.

In the words of John F. Ivory, the energetic leader of polo in Detroit whose son Jack is a well known figure to Florida fandom: "I know I'm prejudiced, but I think polo is the diamond of all games. The coordination between man and horse, the teamwork that comes with long hard practice, the physical stamina and cold courage that the game demands—all these things make polo a sport that is worth anybody's time. So much happens all at once in a polo game that the casual observer can't begin to follow everything. Even without an expert knowledge of the sport, however, everybody can enjoy the color and crashing action of a good polo game. And the more you know about the game, the greater pleasure you will derive from watching it. Once the sport gets into your blood, you'll never find anything to take its place."

That sums up exactly the feeling of almost everyone connected with the game.

The brand of polo played at Gulfstream is as good as can be found anywhere. Many of the nation's greatest stars have been in action here. The United States Polo Association at the present time lists three men with top 10-goal ratings, and one of them is Stewart B. Iglehart, who is handling the reins of the Gulfstream Polo Club this year. His manager is Peter Perkins, an eight-goaler, who came here first a couple of years ago with the Oak Brook Club team from Chicago after a brilliant career on the West Coast. The other 10-goalers are Cecil Smith, who used to play at Gulfstream regularly, and Bob Skene of California.

The only nine-goal player in the country is George

Oliver, and he is a favorite performer at Gulfstream. George managed the club for Michael Phipps, an eight-goal star, prior to this season, but cattle interests this winter are vying for their time in polo. However, they still manage to play a lot.

Lewis Smith, another in the small group of eight-goal players, was scheduled to play here this season when the team known as Delray Beach played Pete Bostwick's Aiken, S. C. club. Aiken was slated for games at Gulfstream Jan. 24-27-31 and Feb. 3, the latter as a benefit for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. In addition to Smith and Bostwick, who is rated at seven goals and is one of polo's better known names, club players are Terrance Preece and Seymour Knox.

On Feb. 7-10-14-21-24, the Delray Beach team of Iglehart, Phipps, Laddie Sanford, George Kent, Jr., Henry Lewis and Juan Rodriguez will take on the 1951 National Open champions—Bob Uihlein of Milwaukee, Oliver, Perkins and Pedro Silvero.

Many other players manage to get in some polo time during visits to Florida. Jack Ivory was here early in January, and the two Jim Hannahs were expected. Jules Romfh, Lyle Phillips, Billy Nichols, Mike and Tom Healy and Johnny Gayer are others who help make polo the enjoyable game it is to so many of the people who have come to love it as "the diamond of all games."

"Race Special" Established

OPENING DAY of fashionable Hialeah found a record throng of Palm Beach colonists climbing aboard Dan Taylor's Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel-Hialeah race track train for the non-stop ride direct into Hialeah's flamingo-studded grounds.

The inaugural run of this "race special" was a gala occasion indeed. Everyone knew everyone else and especially noteworthy was the intimate atmosphere of a private club that prevailed throughout. Because of their great popularity, all club car seats are reserved—thus friends are enabled to prearrange their own private parties en route with the added attraction of enjoying sumptuous sandwiches and beverages.

It was Mr. Taylor, owner of the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel, which commands an unobstructed view of Lake Worth on one side and the Atlantic Ocean on the other, who startled the quiet tranquillity of life on the "island" when he announced his decision to run this now famous "train" last season. Skeptics doubted its success, but it was an instant hit. Many racing enthusiasts urged Mr. Taylor to enlarge its operating schedule when Hialeah opened this year, so it was decided to run the "racing special" every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Departing from the Florida East Coast Railway station at 11:30 a. m., the train arrives well in advance of daily double selections. It returns from Hialeah at 5:10 in time for the "cocktail hour." Both club and coach seats in the seven-car de luxe train may be purchased through the Biltmore or at the station.

Meanwhile, the tempo of smart resort life at the Biltmore continues to be favored by a number of interesting personalities. Prince and Princess Sforza Ruspoli, of Rome, Italy, who honeymooned at the Biltmore five years ago, returned to Dan Taylor's mammoth hostelry for another visit. They were accompanied by Italy's foremost fashion designer, Irene Medici, and her husband, Sylvio. The foursome after a flying trip to the West Indies and Brazil have returned to Palm Beach for a short sojourn prior to departing for Rome. They have been extensively entertained by the Gurnee Munns and the Charles B. Wrightsmans.

Californians Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Lyon, center, of "Woodland Lodge," Orinda, California stage a luncheon reunion on the Tropical Terrace of the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel with Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Iden of Chicago, Illinois.

One of the country's best loved Catholic prelates, Monsignor Thaddeus Tierney, pastor of St. Raymond's Catholic Church in New York, has returned to the Biltmore for his annual seasonal sojourn, accompanied by Jack Fannings, also of New York. It has been estimated that fully a hundred thousand persons have viewed the life-like portrait of Monsignor Tierney, presented to him last season on the occasion of his fiftieth anniversary as a Catholic prelate by more than fifty Palm Beach friends. The handsome portrait was executed by the world-renowned portrait painter, Frederick Roscher, painter of papal dignitaries, who has returned to the Biltmore for another season. Roscher achieved international fame for his portraits of Pope Pius XII and Pope Benedict XV. A portrait of James J. Farrell, general manager of the resort, is also numbered among his collection.

The West India Room under the direction of Thomas Doherty has proved to be the nitory sensation of the after-sunset route of those seeking the ultimate in sophistication and unsurpassed French cuisine. Edward Everett Horton, star of stage, screen and radio, led the long parade of stars who will debut here throughout the Palm Beach season. Two orchestras play nightly for dancing and the cocktail hour. John Ricca, whose face is familiar to former Bradley patrons, is maitre d' and the Parisian styled cuisine is executed by chef George Mouton, long associated with such internationally known restaurants as Ciro's of Paris.

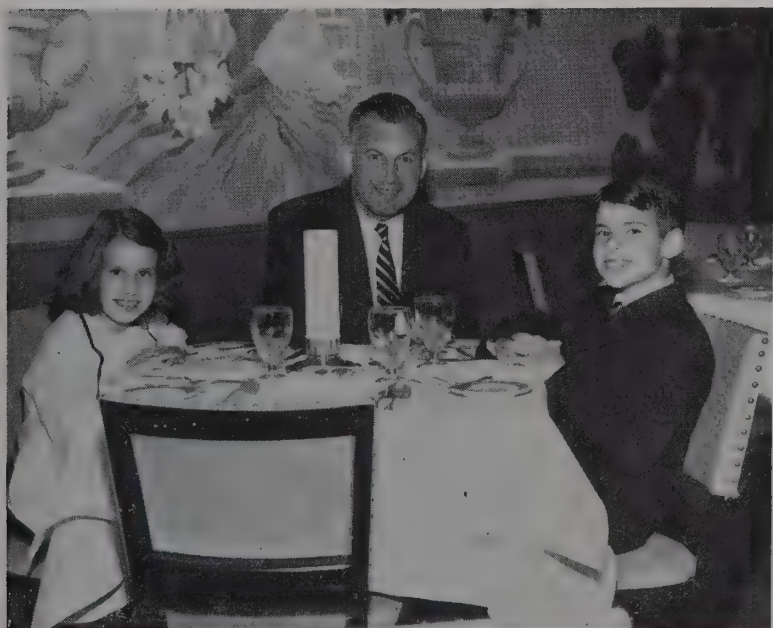

The Biltmore yacht moorings are a beehive of activity these days, with many of the country's sleek, shining sea-going yachts and cruisers plying back and forth. The "Graceful III," skippered by the Edward V. Hynes, of Davenport Neck, New Rochelle, N. Y., has been a familiar sight in the Bahamas and the West Indies. New yachting faces in port at the Biltmore are the "Co-Ed II," skippered by Col. Ed R. Fuller; the "Hypatia," from New York, with owners Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dubman aboard, and the "Laurie IV," of Boston, owned by L. R. Shumann.

The Biltmore has been particularly popular with residents from such snow-bound states as Michigan and Illinois, and recent arrivals from Chicago include Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Iden, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Byrnes and Mr. and Mrs. Gunnard Carlson. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Stevens, of Saginaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hammel, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., are also among the "snow escapees" at the Biltmore.

Highlighting Sunday afternoons on the Tropical Terrace are the scintillating fashion shows featuring fabulous fashions from Worth Avenue and weekly aquatic shows in the Biltmore's outdoor salt water pool. The evening "cocktail hour" on the Patio Terrace is a "must" with Biltmore guests and, following dinner, dancing 'neath the star-swept skies—all this, plus the "race track train," too, is what makes the Biltmore the pacesetter of smart Florida resorts.

THE GAY AND GIDDY winter social season has re-established the estates into sumptuous places for entertainment and hospitality and the hotels and nightspots as meeting places for friends and acquaintances from all around the globe. Bay street and Nassau harbour are filled—the street with every kind and make of conveyance, and the harbour with giant cruise ships on down to the smaller but regal yachts.

Hospitality and Entertainment

Hobby Horse Hall opened on January 4, the first Friday of the new year, and His Excellency, the Governor and Mrs. Neville and the Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, were honor guests. The track draws a full crowd always, of residents and visitors. The Hon. Lionel Chevrier, Canadian Minister of Transport, who came after Minister Howe, enjoyed watching the ponies at the track and going there with friends to see the racing.

The Bahamas Playhouse is soon to reopen for the second season in Nassau. It will be at the same location as it was the previous time, in the little theater-in-the-round at the British Colonial. Opening night is set for Monday, January 28. Claudette Colbert will not be able to come as was first announced, due to the fact that she has an uncompleted movie to finish, but John Loder and Richard Shepard have already arrived.

Many of last year's subscribers for season tickets renewed their subscriptions early so that they could get the same seats they had. Between acts of the play, there is much visiting back and forth and discussion of the play and the persons attending. Lord and Lady Iliffe, Sir Sydney and Lady Oakes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coulson, Sir Francis and Lady Peek and many others have already bought their season tickets for the run of plays.

The socially important Headdress Ball, sponsored by the Bahamas Humane Society, will be on February 14. Everyone is planning headdresses. Mrs. W. R. G. Holt, formerly of Canada but who is here, now, permanently at her estate "Ballycrystal," is helping create some seashell headdresses.

The Nassau Yacht Haven stays filled with white and mahogany yachts. The Louvicourt, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Newkirk, of Coral Gables, Florida and Toronto, Canada, put in recently with their guests, the Charles Moons, of Miami, and the Charles Nunallys, of Atlanta. Mr. Newkirk is an oil and mining executive, and that week seemed to have been chosen by mining executives to vacation here, for Walter Telfer, of Toronto, and the Hon. Welland Gemmel, Minister of Mines of Ontario, came to the islands.

The huge yacht of Mr. Elmer Bobst, the "Alisa IV" put into Nassau harbour en route from Bimini and Cat Cay via Nassau to Miami. On board was General Edward Clark, formerly aide to General Eisenhower and still a close friend of the general's, and other prominent guests of Mr. Bobst, and the group came ashore often for racing at Hobby Horse Hall and for dining at the British Colonial.

At the hotel cocktail bars every afternoon gay crowds gather. The Fort Montague has a new bar—the Hibiscus Bar, decorated in modern version of the colonial period, with a gay, specially woven hibiscus rug. The British Colonial recently opened a new bar which it calls the "Chanticleer," which features a brilliantly plumaged rooster. Both of these are very popular for pre-dinner cocktail parties. The Royal Victoria's palm-roofed terrace draws the people who love to listen to Blind Blake and his calypso singers as they sip their drinks. This year, Buena Vista House has inaugurated dinner dancing, and Cumberland House is the popular gathering spot for quiet dinner parties in a tropical setting.

Waterskiing gets more popular every season, and most of the visitors here go away converts to the water sport. Mr. Frank B. Sawdon, advertising executive from New York, who came here for his vacation took it up and got to be very adept. Tennis, golf, horseback riding and spear fishing are all activities which keep the sports enthusiast busy here. And the hunting season has brought out the duck hunters, who get up in the early morning hours and tramp out to Lake Cunningham or Killarney for shooting. The star racing season is here, too, and starboat owners are getting their boats into shape for competing.

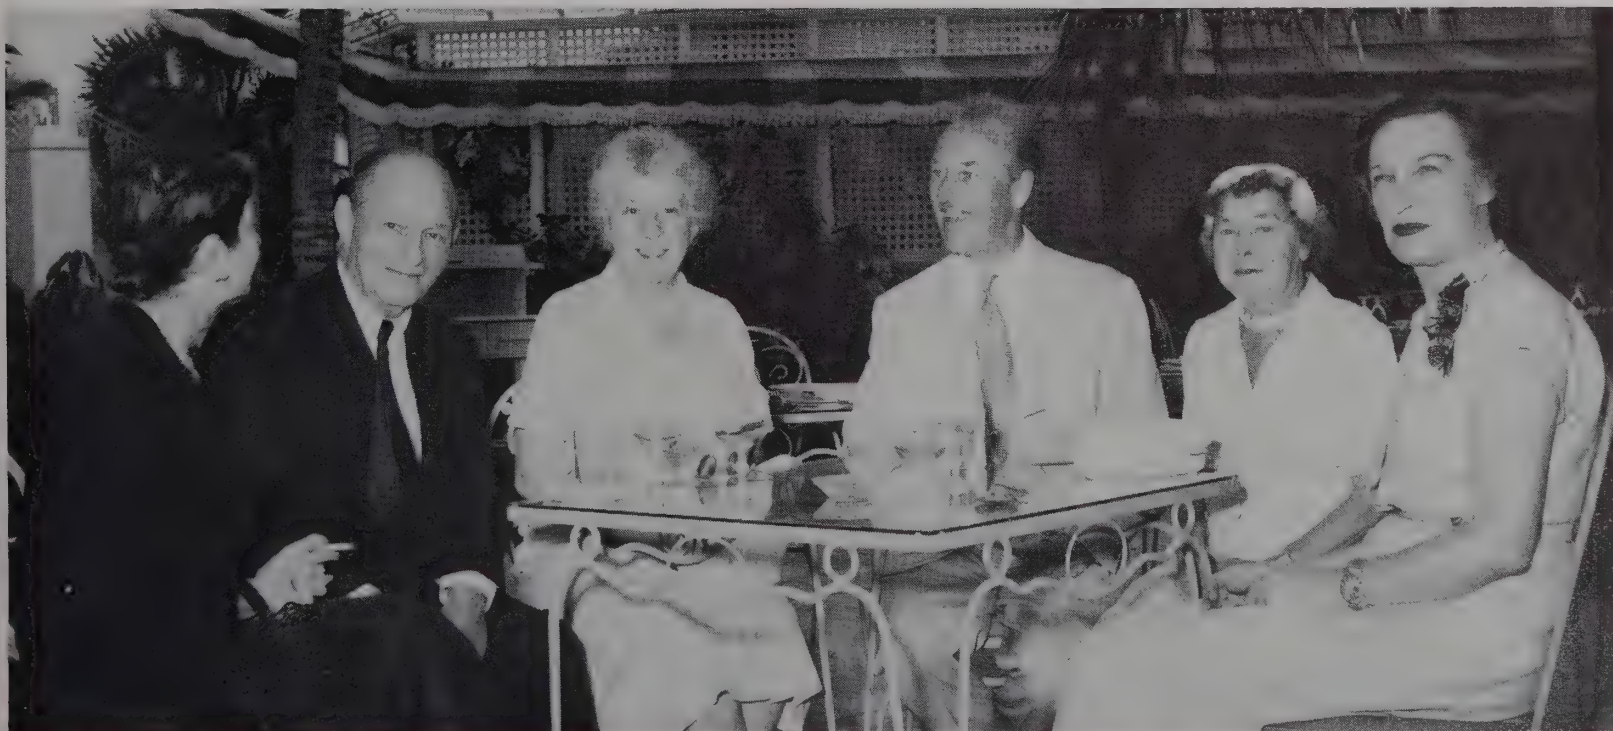

The Out-Islands grow more popular year by year, too, as new guest homes are built to accommodate visitors who would love to learn something about the more remote portions of the Bahamas. The editors of the Ladies Home Journal, Bruce and Beatrice Blackmar Gould, have become fascinated with Hope Town, Abaco, and, according to local report, are seriously considering building a vacation home there. They were cruising about the Bahamas waters for several weeks, and, when they reached Hope Town, were met there by Harlan Miller, columnist for the Des Moines Register who also writes the page "There's A Man In The House."

Governor Kerr Scott and Mrs. Scott, together with Admiral and Mrs. R. O. Davis, Commandant of the 5th Naval District, visited Nassau as part of the official party on the S.S. Ryndam's first cruise from Norfolk, Va., to Nassau.

Worth Avenue Gallery

"Blue Buildings", by Renzo Vespignani

OPENING JANUARY 28, at the Worth Avenue Gallery, a group exhibition of contemporary Italian artists will remain on view until February 6.

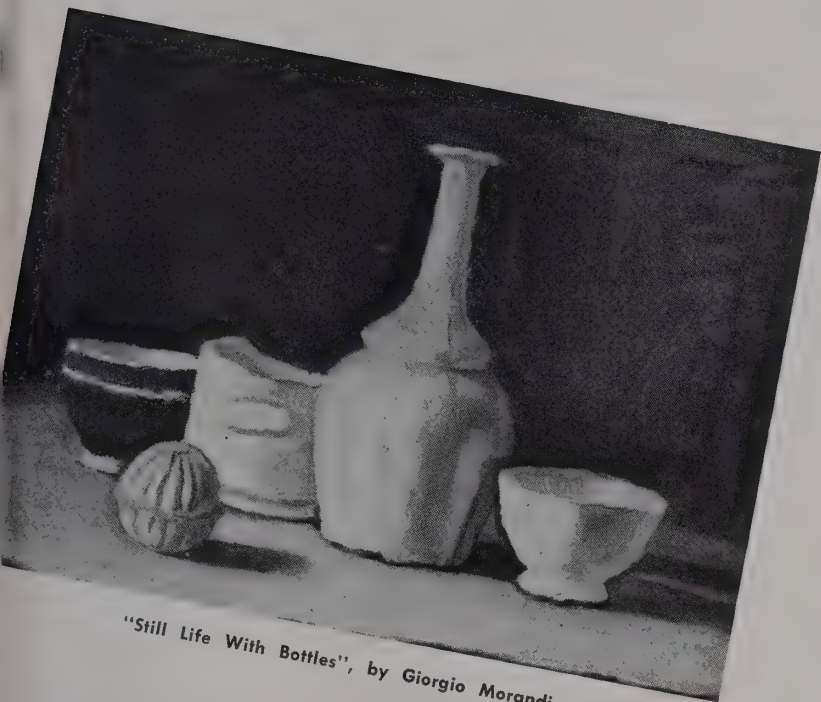

The bit of Fifty-seventh Street in Palm Beach—the Worth Avenue Gallery—again under the direction of Mrs. Duggett Benson and Mrs. Archibald Rayner, has come to be widely known among art connoisseurs of the resort, and adjacent communities, the collections exhibited there having been chosen as much for their decorative value as for their mastery of technique.

The current exhibition is an example of the calibre of contemporary painting featured annually by the Worth Avenue Gallery—in each instance the paintings being rich in texture, decorative in subject matter, and presenting traditional and non-representational work in all its ramifications.

The Jupiter Lighthouse, one of the most important on the East Coast, is the first light sighted by vessels enroute from New York to Havana, and is second to none as an historic landmark of the state.

Sentinels of the Sea

THERE'S SOMETHING about a lighthouse that kindles comfort in the hearts of men, and many are the fascinating legends and true stories woven round our sentinels of the sea.

Under supervision of the United States Coast Guard, 413 rise from our shores, down from the ice-bound coast of Alaska, across our southern waterfronts and on up to the rockbound coast of Maine, as well as along the shores of important inland waterways.

As much a part of our history as the progress of the nation itself, since 1716 when the Province of Massachusetts built Boston Light, scarcely a year has passed without construction of a new beacon.

The lighthouses typify maritime safety, one of the Coast Guard's three leading functions; and as part of our coastal defense system, in time of war they have played decisive roles in military readiness.

And in the early days, their strategic locations aided law enforcement, making it possible for cutters to judge distances from the coastline, and so prevent smuggling operations within the three-mile limit.

South Florida's own Jupiter Light holds a place in the hall of lighthouse fame, for during the Civil War, its tower (a hundred feet high) was used in the interest of blockade runners—the coast, whenever it was observed to be clear of cruisers, becoming a shelter for the adventurous little coasters from the Bahamas, brought safely over Jupiter Bar by means of a preconcerted signal and there in the harbor below relieved of their contraband goods, which was transported via the Indian River to ports farther north.

Also a military objective in Civil War days, history has it that renegades came and destroyed the light. Alert guards, however, hid the lamp and oil on "Lake Worth Creek", later called "the Canal", where it was eventually recovered on June 6, 1866, by the keeper of the Jupiter Light at that time, Capt. James Armour.

One of the most important of our seacoast beacons—New York-to-Havana-bound ships steer clear of danger in shallow water and shoals of the south Florida coast because of the lamp's large eye (it was made in France, and shows a succession of flashes, followed by a prolonged steady light)—and European vessels bound for southern ports are also guided by its friendly light.

It was also here that the very savage tribe of Indians known as the Tequestas once held sway; and within beckoning distance of the lighthouse where Jonathan Dickinson, wealthy English Quaker merchant was shipwrecked.

And even today, after nearly three centuries (the Dickinson tragedy took place in 1696), evidence that the Tequestas occupied the lighthouse site is frequently popping up.

There is an Indian monument where the light stands, a high ridge in the shape of a horseshoe where sand was once scooped out from the center to create an amphitheatre—so some geologists think.

Excavations to determine more of the life and times of the Tequestas has yielded up huge skeletons showing them to have been of enormous size. One skull dug up was large enough to entirely cover that of a white man's.

Often stone implements, crockery and arrows are found, and as portions of the mass of shell breaks away, layers of ashes and fish bones come to light.

Clothing of palmetto fiber, and implements for tilling of the soil such as a crude hoe—a stick with a shell fastened to it have been found, either by those who know the Jupiter lay of the land or who are making scientific studies. And from the many smaller mounds close by it is determined the Tequestas were fond of social life—the small mounds served the same purpose in primitive Indian days as do refuse cans in our own parks today.

A poetic old lighthouse, often a subject for artists who paint in this area, from the balcony surrounding its tower one of the most captivating and comprehensive views of Florida coast and waters may be had.

At the confluence of the Indian and Loxahatchee Rivers—where they unite and flow as Jupiter River for a mile eastward before entering Jupiter Bar and the ocean beyond, it was just above the lighthouse where many years ago there was a wooden tramway where boats carrying passengers from the North to the land of flowers and sunshine were "hauled" over and placed on a car transported along the wooden track to a small bluff on Lake Worth, and there slid into the water.

Sailing with several patients from the state of Ohio, Dr. Henshall records:

One of the earliest to make the trip was Dr. James H. Henshall who in his fascinating account of "Camping and Cruising in Florida," about 1878, writes of the Jupiter Light.

"We suffered an earthquake while camping on the shores of the Indian River—the biggest snore in history we termed it, for when at first we heard it we each thought it was the other sawing wood in sleep. However as it grew nearer it sounded like a bull alligator bellowing up the creek.

"But when at last we learned the truth, for after the ground began to tremble and roll, jarring loose our guns, and the pans in our galley, we jumped to our feet discovering we had suffered an earthquake.

"When we arrived at Jupiter Light, the keeper, Captain James Armour told of the episode and confessed he'd made the best time on record for a hundred feet downward—the solid foundations of the Jupiter tower having been severely shaken by the quake."

But lighthouses with all their rich history, legend, and value to literature are fast becoming part and parcel of the remote control age, and way beyond the advancement electricity brought to the lights themselves—our first ones burned whale oil, later kerosene and still later acetylene gas, now according to recent reports, even the lighthouse keeper may pass out of the picture for new stations being built are equipped with automatic control with no need at all for a man on the place.

Thus while the welcome beacon light burns on, the lonely lighthouse—at least the lonely lighthouse-keeper is becoming a thing of the past. By the use of remote control, coast guardsmen ashore will be able to turn fog signals off and on, and should anything happen to cause failure of the main power-generating station aboard a ship, a one-thousand-pound bronze bell on the forward deck may be struck automatically by electric storage battery power as an emergency signal. Thus man and the machine age marches on—this latest device regarded as a tremendous advancement in making shipping lanes more safe.

Life in Palm Beach Thirty Years Ago

DO YOU RECALL THE PALM BEACH season in 1922? . . . one of the brightest in the resort's history say those who do remember.

Bradley's Beach Club was the hub of social activity, and the Everglades Club topped the country's list of gilt-edged gathering places. Its president was its founder, the late Paris Singer, and serving as its manager was Mr. Christopher Dunphy.

The Old Guard Society was but four years old and as unique then as it is today, its object "to promote the best interests of golf and good fellowship generally among golfers in Palm Beach."

The Royal Poinciana was in full flower, its Garden Grill and Coconut Grove favorite meeting places of altogether rich and fashionable ladies and gentlemen.

Society columns in the resort's only courier of events, the Palm Beach Daily News, were long and generous, glittering with Hope diamond keeper and Washington party giver, the late Mrs. Edward B. McLean; the Harry Payne Whitneys, the Vincent Astors, and of lesser consequence socially but none the less colorful politically, Mayor John F. Hylan and Grover Whalen accompanied by their ladies.

El Mirasol, the great estate maintained here during Palm Beach's most opulent era by the late Edward T. Stotesburys, of Philadelphia, led the parade of social functions at home . . . and in 1922 was the scene of a wedding that to America was almost as important as that of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles to the British.

It was that which united Mrs. Stotesbury's daughter, Mrs. Louise Cromwell Brooks (the present Mrs. Alf Heiberg), to the then Brig. Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Contrary to the stories that flew high, wide and handsome last spring when the "old soldier" said he was "fading away," if you still believe in the printed word, the wedding took place at El Mirasol . . . "at five o'clock in the afternoon with Chaplain Wheat of West Point officiating" . . . and not up the Lake Trail in an afromobile, or in the County Court House, West Palm Beach.

The bride wore "a soft apricot chiffon dress with flowing panels of duchess lace which formed a train. She wore a diamond necklace and a diamond ornament in her hair, and carried a white prayer book."

The Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest, as prominent a Palm Beacher today as she was thirty years ago when this photo by F. F. Foley of New York appeared in an issue of Palm Beach Life. Her spacious and renowned Ocean Boulevard estate is known among the great villas of America as "Villa Artemis."

Bradley's Beach Club—just a memory now—was once the hub of activity for Palm Beach cosmopolites. Occupying a portion of what is known today as Bradley Park, on the northwest corner of Royal Poinciana Way, it was here millions once crossed the tables of the croupiers, the business of gambling held in high regard because of the impeccable methods of management on the part of the club's owner, the late Col. Edward R. Bradley.

orchid, with which she wore a brocaded girdle in a deeper shade of the same color. Her slippers were of the same material as the girdle, the magnificence of her costume set off by a Gainsborough picture hat of finely woven horsehair gracefully trimmed in flowing ostrich plumes of pale orchid."

In the rollicking twenties' world of fashion, a girdle was "an article of dress encircling the waist" . . . and the flair for Gainsborough chapeaux inspired by that artist's famous "Blue Boy," which held the spotlight in art circles, having been sold that year by the Duke of Westminster to Sir Joseph Duveen for "the highest price (up to that time) ever paid for a painting—$663,000."

There are Palm Beachers of today who will distinctly recall the MacArthur—Brooks nuptials, for among the hundreds of guests attending were the following:

Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbey, Mrs. Clegg Monroe, Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Alexander D. B. Pratt, Mrs. John C. King, Mr. Gurnee Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Phipps, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Phipps, Comdr. John M. L. Rutherford, Mr. Harold Sterling Vanderbilt, Maj. Barclay Warburton, Mrs. Hobart Endicott Warren, Mr. and Mrs. William Seward Webb, Mr. Vincent Astor and Mr. J. Gordon Douglas.

Mrs. Louise Cromwell Brooks dressed in a fashionable costume of the year 1922. The photo which appeared in the Palm Beach Daily News just prior to her marriage to General Douglas MacArthur on Feb. 14-'22 . . . then Brigadier General, was taken at an affair held in her honor at the famous Royal Poinciana. Considered one of the most beautiful young women in the country at that time, she is a grandmother today, and the wife of General Alf Heiberg.

Life in Palm Beach Twenty Years Ago

"THE ANNUAL OPENING OF The Breakers, which starts the wheels of the Palm Beach season, began the 1931-32 season on December 20. The magnificent ocean front hotel is again under the management of Mr. John W. Greene."

Among early arrivals, as recorded in Palm Beach Life were Mr. Henry T. Sloane, "who has been a member of the winter colony for many years and is usually among the first of the sun-searchers to arrive and the last to depart for the north. His daughter, Baroness de la Grange and four children of Paris, France, who is well-known in Palm Beach, visited him last summer at his Newport home. Another daughter, Mrs. George D. Widener of New York, visits Palm Beach each winter, usually as the house guest of Mr. Joseph E. Widener, at his beautiful new estate on South Ocean Boulevard."

Other interesting guests at the hotel at this time: "Mrs. E. Vivian Gabriel of New York, her daughter Miss Jean Preston and her son, Mr. John McAfee Preston, a student at Harvard. Col. and Mrs. Thomas E. Murphy, who have wintered at their estate Isleridge, Hobe Sound, for many years have decided to join The Breakers colony this year. Mrs. David W. Mabee of Saratoga Springs, accompanied by her son David and grandson Mr. Douglas Compton, a student at Yale. Also, Lieutenant-Governor Herbert H. Lehman and Mrs. Lehman of Albany and their son Peter, down from the Choate School. It was their first visit to the new Breakers, although Mr. Lehman stopped frequently at the old hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Nathan D. Bill of Springfield, Mass., prominent winter visitors, are again spending the season."

"Greatly beautified with additional tropical plants, flowers and shrubs, the new Palm Beach Hotel opened for the winter with Samuel J. Littlegreen as manager, on December 1. Brig. Gen. Edward P. Meany and Mrs. Meany of the Hotel Savoy, New York, were among the first season guests to arrive. Mr. and Mrs. John C. King of the same place, returned to occupy the suite they had last year. They summered at Southampton, L. I., and later were in Europe for a brief sojourn. Members of the winter colony for many years, they formerly occupied 'Trailside', now the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Replogle. The Kings entertain frequently at Patio Lamaze and the Beach Club."

"The Royal Poinciana opened last Friday for the fortieth consecutive season," noted an article in Palm Beach Life of January 19, 1932. "In former years, the season began and ended with the opening and closing of the Poinciana's doors. During the past decade however, the season has lengthened appreciably and the season of The Breakers marks the official beginning and end. Yet, the ten-week's season of the Royal Poinciana marks the height of the winter's activities, in which the tea dances of the Cocoanut Grove play an important part."

Whitehall, former palatial home of Henry M. Flagler, opened for the 1932 season on January 15, with Mr. Martin Sweeny again at the helm as manager. Old records also report the fact that "many representative members of socially prominent families, will again make the hotel their winter home this season." For instance, "Among those who have made reservations are Gen. and Mrs. Quincy A. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Duke Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William F. Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Snyder, the Hon. Lindsley M. Garrison, Secretary of War under President Wilson, Dr. Seth Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Maltby, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Tim who will again occupy the

In the "old days" you might just as well be dead, as not attend the daily tea-dances in the Cocoanut Grove of the Royal Poinciana... everybody was there.

Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy of the Breakers had in her party Mrs. A. C. Pieper, Mrs. George Hart, Mrs. Alfred H. Wagg and her house guest, Mrs. Alcott F. Elwell. Mrs. T. J. Edwards and her son, Mr. H. E. Edwards came over from the Poinciana where they are spending the season, to attend the opening of Cocoanut Grove. Mrs. William Newton Bament, who has been present at every inaugural tea-dance for years, was there with her daughter Helen. Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Morrow of The Breakers were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hopkins of Baltimore, Md.

In the realm of society events, the baseball games between the teams of The Breakers and the Royal Poinciana, were considered top entertainment, back in 1932.

The "Artists and Writers Golf Association" which annually convened in Palm Beach for many years and were the inspiration for much entertaining by the social set, noted as special guests for their '32 conclave, Mr. Rex Beach, noted American author and Mrs. Beach.

March of Miami Events

FIRST OF THREE major stake races at Hialeah, the $25,000 McLennan Handicap, February 9, will find several Palm Beach winter residents with entries listed.

Among the stables to be represented are the Maine Chance Farm, owned by Elizabeth Graham; Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade Stables will enter several horses, as will the Dixiana Stables.

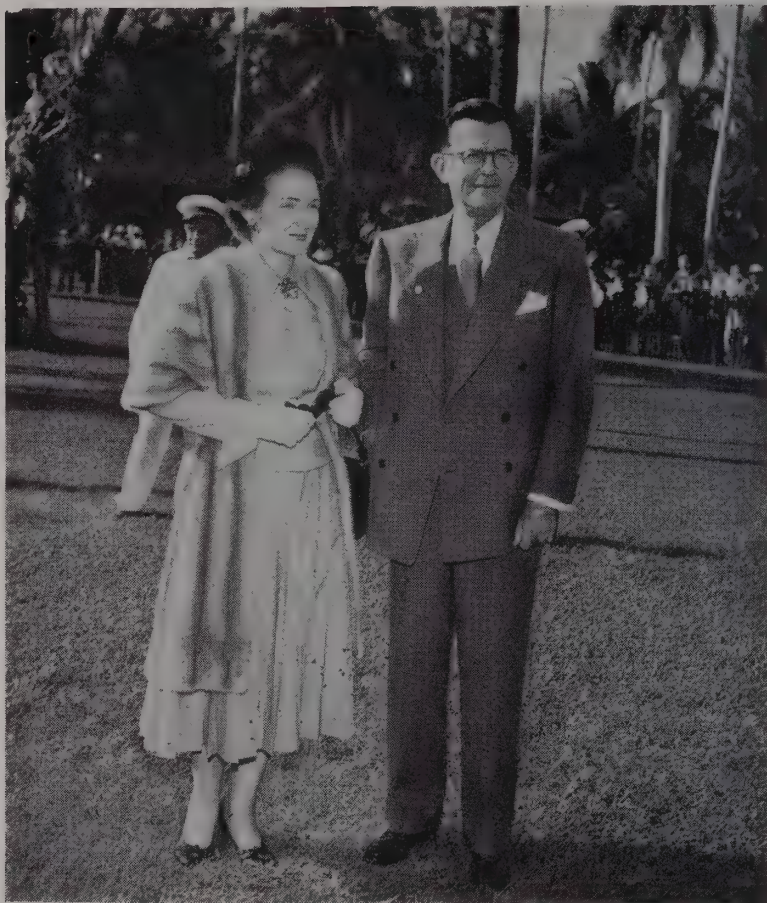

Interesting sidelight on trophies won in major stake races at Hialeah is the antique trophies which each major stakes winner receives. These antique cups are bought from an antique silversmith in New York each year. The history, along with the cup, is given to the winning horse's owner.

The John C. Clark's entertained guests with their traditional luncheon in the Directors' Room at Hialeah on opening day.

In addition to racing highlights, another equestrian show at Dinner Key gets under way February 1-3. More than 200 horses from all parts of the United States and the Caribbean are expected to compete. Entries from the Oakes family in Nassau has spurred early response among the hunter and jumper set. Lady Greta Oakes has entered "Muchacha," a jumper. "King Clormel," a hunter and jumper, owned by Sir Sidney Oakes, will also compete, as will "Scotch and Soda," a hunter, property of George Long, also of Nassau.

Dr. Charles Rushin, Atlanta, Ga., has entered his "Reverie's Denmark Duchess," a five-gaited mare, and Miss Barbara Jean Strickland, West Palm Beach, has entered "Reverie's Hamilton," a five-gaited gelding, and "Mystery Melody," a five-gaited mare.

a 220 by 115-foot ring will be set up in the hall. Plans call for 90 ringside boxes before bleacher-type seats.

Proceeds will go to Variety Children's Hospital, Miami, which specializes in polio cases.

Tons of marl and dirt will be hauled into the center of the exposition hall, largest of its kind in the South, and only slightly smaller than Madison Square Garden, New York.

Judges will include Walter L. Graham, Malvern, Pa., for saddle horses; W. O. Crawford, Marion, Ala., for walking horses; Mrs. Helen Crabtree, for equitation, and Col. William H. Henderson, Stockton, N. J., for hunters and jumpers.

Three other shows of interest to Palm Beach visitors are the Florida Cat Fanciers' Show opening at Municipal Auditorium February 1-3, which will be followed on February 5 by an antique show. The antique show last year was acclaimed very successful, with outstanding antique houses throughout the country sending representatives to display their collections.

The nautically minded vacationer will find the boat show at Dinner Key Auditorium, February 8-17, displaying everything in inboard and outboard boats, sailboats, cruisers and aquaplanes.

The world-famous Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo brought a company of more than 100 here for their three performances at the Dade County Auditorium. Sergei J. Denham directed the program, which included "Don Quixote" (Pas de Deux), "Romeo and Juliette" and "Gaité Parisienne." Featured dancers include Frederic Franklin, Nina Novak, Oleg Tupine, Gertrude Tyven, Yvonne Chouteau and guest artist Yvette Chauvire.

The opera season opened in Miami early this month with the Miami Opera Guild's presentation of "Manon." Guild impresario Arturo de Filippi presented a stellar cast with Martial Singher playing the baritone lead; Anne Bollinger held the soprano lead, and Ferruccio Tagliavanni starred in the tenor lead role. The orchestra was conducted by Pietro Cimara. The Guild plans one more opera in Miami this season, which will be "Die Fledermaus."

Among those who attended the opening of "Manon" were Mrs. William H. Stubblefield, Mrs. Charles M. Moon and Mrs. George Pawley, Guild president.

Although there will be only two operas presented in Miami this winter, the calendar of events for featured performers with the University of Miami symphony orchestra is outstanding. Gregor Piatigorsky, noted cellist, will appear with the University symphony on February 11 at the Dade Auditorium.

ACAPULCO — Riviera of the Americas

LIKE TO ENJOY A WINTER VACATION on the Riviera? Acapulco, Mexico, is the Western Hemisphere's equivalent of Cannes, Nice, and Capri . . . and is less than a day away from most U. S. cities via Guest Airways! Unless you have a fondness for losing dollars to the roulette croupiers and vingt-et-un dealers of Monte Carlo, you're sure to agree that the "American Riviera"—Acapulco—has all the attractions of the French version.

Acapulco is only 280 miles south of Mexico City, which is less than six hours from Miami via Guest Airways. This scheduled international airline offers daily non-stop service aboard four-engine Douglas airliners, and the scenic flight across the Gulf of Mexico is one of the high points of your delightful winter vacation.

Before you travel the short distance from Mexico City to Acapulco you may wish to tarry a day or two in the gay capital, with its fascinating blend of old and new. Here you will see modern glass-and-steel skyscrapers, luxurious hotels, sophisticated supper clubs . . . and you'll also see ancient Indian temples, 16th-Century Spanish cathedrals, and famous Chapultepec Palace, preserved intact from the days of Maximilian and Carlotta.

When you are ready to journey on to Acapulco, you can choose your own pace, enjoying either a fast non-stop flight of only one hour, or a leisurely drive by car along well-paved highways that wind through beautiful mountain country.

The history of Acapulco stretches back more than four hundred years. The Spaniards came there in 1521, seeking a deep-water port for their treasure galleons. They found a semicircular, almost-landlocked harbor, with enough water for their largest ships. (Acapulco is still the Pacific headquarters of the Mexican Navy.) The cliffs that surround the harbor provided excellent defense positions in case of attack by the Dutch or English. The Spaniards built a stone highway across Mexico to Vera Cruz on the east coast, linking the Gulf of Mexico with the Pacific—Spain with the Orient.

After Mexico won her independence from Spain, the Acapulco-Vera Cruz highway fell into disuse, and Acapulco became virtually isolated from the rest of the country. Nearly 100 years later, in 1927, a new, modern highway was finished, and Acapulco soon became a rival of the French and Italian Riviervas as the winter home of the international smart set. Hollywood personalities, too, flock to relaxing, tropical Acapulco. At La Perla, a leading night club, the names of Esther Williams, Jennifer Jones, and David O. Selznick are carved into the wooden paneling. La Perla's manager is Teddy Stauffer, husband of lovely Hedy Lamarr.

There is man-made beauty in the gleaming white-and-pastel buildings of Acapulco—natural beauty in the colorful surrounding countryside. Majestic gray cliffs and silver beaches are fringed by blue Pacific surf; rich green foliage and gay red, pink, and yellow tropic blooms complete the pleasing color harmony.

Acapulco is a paradise for sun-worshipers. During most of the year, skies are cloudless and sunny from early morning to late afternoon. The short rainy season (July-September) interrupts sun-bathing for an hour or so every afternoon, with a sudden, heavy, but refreshing cool shower. In addition to swimming and sunning, a popular pastime at Acapulco beaches is renting an oceanside hammock, from which visitors may dreamily watch the waves roll in . . . and the cares of life roll by.

For more exciting fun, Acapulco offers sports that range from water-skiing to bare-handed hunting for sea turtle. Deep-sea fishing is at its best near Acapulco, and hunting wild boar, lynx, or puma in the mountains a few miles inland is guaranteed to please and challenge any true sportsman.

Truly, in summer or winter, for relaxation or play, you will find that Acapulco, the Riviera of the Americas, offers more fun than any other resort in the Western Hemisphere!

Smart Restaurants

THE PATIO RESTAURANT—Palm Beach's favorite night spot, is just as busy these days as was indicated when it was opened before Christmas for the first time in its more than a score of seasons of furnishing for cosmopolites the smartest and most fashionable of dining and dancing spots.

Connoisseurs of la bonne cuisine say the preparation of food is excellent and the surroundings charming and luxurious at the Patio, which is as familiar a spot in Palm Beach as "the Stork" is in New York City. That makes the Patio ever more popular and the reason for large reservation lists.

Patio patrons think about the delectations of eating and drinking—savoring the pleasures and delights of the table. They think of the suave, scintillating music of Maestro Val Ernie's orchestra, giving generously with the top tunes of the day for delightful dancing under the stars.

Recent hosts and revelers dining, wining and dancing at the Palm Beach club of clubs included Mr. Eddie Brannick, the New York Giants secretary, who soon will receive the Bill Slocum Memorial Award for his contribution to baseball over a long period of years. Mr. Brannick, almost a nightly visitor to the Patio while in Palm Beach, entertained Mrs. Edgar Wolfe, Mrs. Richard Hackett, Mrs. Peggy H. Taylor and Mr. Fred S. Gundlach.

Sitting together in another group were Mr. Peter Salm, Mrs. Charlene Wrightsman, Mr. Woolworth Donahue and Mrs. Irene McEvoy.

Others included Mr. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leeds, Mr. and Mrs. John Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. James Moffett, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. WITH TWO OPENINGS highlighting the month of January, Nando's Miramar Restaurant has been the setting for much activity. The fashionable restaurant, situated at 14th Street and North Dixie Highway, opened formally January 16, when guests gathered early for cocktails and dinner and remained late, dancing until the early morning hours.

The second gala night of the season is to be held January 31, when members of the cottage colony will be introduced to the glamorous Florentine Room, to be featured as a supper club with smart entertainment beginning at 11 p. m. and continuing until 3 a. m.

The kitchen of the Miramar will remain open until 3, and light suppers, club sandwiches and other delicacies will be served until that time.

Tillie Ditierle, glamorous chanteuse, will hold the spotlight in the Florentine Room, and her act will also be supplemented by other stellar entertainment.

The Florentine Room is definitely different. Focal point of interest are the colorful crests, representing noted Florentine families. These crests, done in magnificent color, provide a wall panelling of beauty and brilliance.

Noted at the Miramar were Mr. and Mrs. William G. Minner, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Barry, Jr., Miss Mary Howes, Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Schwill, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Templeton, Mr. and Mrs. Mario de Tullio, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley North, Mr. Chester Dale, Capt. Under the Stars

THE DINER-OUTER will go very far from Palm Beach before he finds a more superb combination of cuisine, atmosphere and service than in the Palm Beach Biltmore Tropical Room. When seized with the desire to dine in splendor, or entertain without the faintest amount of arrangement difficulty, there is no reason to go farther than the famed Tropical Room, where genial Dan Taylor has spared no expense, no effort, to make his air-conditioned dining room a treat. Soothing vistas, the intimacy of multiple reflections in mirrored pillars and soft light combine to make your Tropical Room dinner a never-to-be-forgotten delight.

A brisk little drive along U. S. No. 1, just enough drive to sharpen the appetite, and you arrive at the door of Scampi's, in Boynton Beach; or after the polo matches, it is only a hop and skip to those indescribable hot canapes, from four p.m. until all gone. Cocktails, dinner music and a relaxing period go before a dinner of Italian or French cuisine prepared by experts in the kitchen realm. Famous for many miles around, the name of Scampi often crops up in "where shall we go," conversations. Having been there once, everyone goes again.

On Worth Avenue, in conjunction with the Villas Hotel, is The Villas cocktail lounge-restaurant. Special attention is given luncheon and dinner parties. Canasta, or whatever you prefer to play, can be enjoyed afternoons or evenings of any day. Quiet, convenient and clubby, the Villas is a nice place to finish a Worth Avenue shopping trip.

Noted among the guests at the Villas are: Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Griffin, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wight, of Frederick, Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Cook, Princeton, New Jersey; Mr. Joseph E. Fawell, and Mr. William P. Chandler, Pittsburgh, Penna.; Mr. Pierre de Fontnouvelle, Locust Valley, Long Island; Dr. and Mrs. George F. Lindig, New York City; Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, Manchester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Munkwitz, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Harry E. Papin, St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. William S. French in name and French in atmosphere, Petite Marmite is the sidewalk cafe of Palm Beach, filling the same social capacity as the best sidewalk cafes in Paris. After a few minutes in the delightful atmosphere of this little restaurant so close to Worth Avenue, yet so serene and other-worldly, one is nearly surprised at hearing English spoken at all. Endless adjectives would hardly describe the food, the cocktails or the continental relaxation of Petite Marmite. Among appreciative patrons noted recently are: Mr. and Mrs. John D. Archbold, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, Jr., Mr. Andre Kostelanetz, Mr. L. Eugene Dixon, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sweeny, Mrs. Thomas Shevlin, Mr. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hemingway, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. J. Clicking along again this year to the hearts' content of many a Palm Beacher, and resorters in adjacent communities along the coast is the Music Box—that little bit of Broadway in a tropical setting right in the center of the world's most famous shopping thoroughfare—Worth Avenue.

The Music Box for a diversified cuisine—a big juicy steak with baked Idaho potato trimming . . . Maine lobster, broiled or in thermidor, or special Chinese dishes prepared by an expert Cantonese chef, is the preference of many guests and residents of the resort when it comes to dining out.

And not topping but equalling the Music Box culinary side of things is its talent menage featuring Peter Carew again this year with songs your mother never taught you—The Mary Wood Trio, gifted virtuosos of music for dining and tunes for dancing, and finally Charlie Wright, Jr., making his first local cafe appearance in Palm Beach song with a repertoire of calypso songs and his sweet-sounding accor-dion.

Recently noted at the Music Box were Mrs. John C. King, Mrs. H. Halpine Smith, Mrs. Tatania Sheedy, Mr. Herbert Farrell, Jr., Mrs. Donner Hanson, Mrs. Philip C. Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Hodge, Mrs. Morton H. Fetterolf, Mrs. Patricia Massie Tevander, Mr. King Stone, Mr. Charles Dale, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harriman and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Bissett.

Always Fort Lauderdale's most gala restaurant opening, Fred G. Snedden's Pavilion appeared a bit more brilliant than any season before when it greeted its first dinner guests of 1952 on Wednesday evening, January 16.

The Gallery cocktail lounge, customarily furnished with easy chairs and divans, had to be converted for use as a dining room, so many were the guests. Among out-of-town diners seen were Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Hills, Baltimore, Md; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bradley of Purcellville, Va.; Mrs. Alexander Dean, New Haven, Conn; the Kenneth DeLorias of Detroit; the William Coulsons of Albany, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Raiford of Asheville, N. C.; the James Dingleys of Indianapolis; and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Wolfe of Columbus, Ohio.

The Pavilion Restaurant of the Marie Antoinette apartment hotel is considered one of Fort Lauderdale's most festive places for elegant dining and opening night served to remind us again of its grace and beauty. It is divided into three intimate dining areas. Each is themed, by name and appropriate oil paintings, to the France of Marie Antoinette. They are the Madame Pompadour Room, Louis XIV Room, and the Guillotine Room. Original oil portraits of these historically famous characters, including Marie Antoinette herself, hang on the chocolate brown walls of the Pavilion seemingly forming a link between their luxurious period in the past and the sybaritical environment of the Marie Antoinette and Pavilion Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Snedden were gracious hosts as they greeted their many guests on arrival and throughout the evening were to be seen visiting at the tables of their many friends among the diners. After dinner, Fred G. Snedden, raconteur that he is, with suavity and good humor, introduced the attraction of the evening, Myrus, the mentalist. Myrus, who needs no introduction to Palm Beach supper club goers, was at his best in reading questioners' minds and in predicting things to come.

When Pioneer Hearts Were Young

"THE FLIP OF A HAND may alter the course of a man's life." So says Captain E. E. Geer, a Palm Beach pioneer. "But in the case of my father, Albert Geer who first visited south Florida in 1872, it was the wag of a man's tongue."

The Geers and the Dimicks, prominent Palm Beach pioneer names, were prosperous farmers in Illinois back in the 1870's. They grew general farm produce and large quantities of peppermint for which there was a ready market to pharmaceutical concerns of the day. But things weren't prosperous enough, Captain Geer, raconteur of this story recalls. And so in 1872, "after a meeting of the clan," he says, "my father set off for Texas on a scouting expedition."

But while waiting for the train, Albert Geer fell to conversing with David Brown from Florida who convinced the Illinoisan his fortune lay to the southeast and not westward.

"So when next we heard from father it was from Florida," Captain Geer recalls, and remembers well the excitement and preparation to move that went on when the head of the house returned to Buckley with his report of a land that had only two seasons—Indian summer and spring.

The migratory party comprised thirteen—the Albert Geers and son "Evie," (Capt. E.E.), his grandparents, the steam boat that at that time plied the waters of the St. Johns, carrying passengers from Jacksonville to Salt Lake.

Travel was hazardous, and at great expenditure of physical strength. Captain Geer's uncles aboard a chartered schooner laden with household equipment and lumber took what was known as the "outside" route involving much open ocean travel while other members of the party went over what he terms the "inside" course and, eventually the "sawgrass" route, from Jupiter to what we know today as Lake Park.

At Salt Lake we were transported ashore and taken over a 7-mile tramway to Titusville by mule-team, and then aboard "The Minnie," a little sailboat that was to become one of the most prized possessions of the entire family since the only means of travel in Palm Beach then was either by boat or afoot, we came on down.

A palmetto-thatched roof abode, the home of the David Browns located a little to the North of the present Palm Beach Hotel is where Captain Geer recalls "the family spent their first night in Palm Beach."

And he recalls too that it was also that first night "with all our belongings scattered about the grounds of the Brown

In the group at right, taken at an earlier date when the Gibson Girl set miladys' styles, and local young swains took their best girls for a sailboat spin over Lake Worth are friends and relatives of the Geers pictured with the late Mrs. M. W. Dimick (seated on bench), mother of Palm Beach's first mayor. Left to right they are: Spencer T. Lainhart, first white boy born in the Palm Beaches; Mrs. Belle Dimick Enos, still a resident; Mrs. Lorena Baker, her cousin, residing in Florida; Mrs. Stanley Warrick, residing at the Pennsylvania Hotel; Mrs. E. N. Dimick, wife of the first mayor (deceased); Mrs. Sidney Roys (deceased), mother of Mrs. Warrick; and Frank Dimick, Mrs. Enos' brother. Seated with "Grandma" Dimick is T. T. Reese, a local resident.

M. W. Dimicks, and his cousins and his uncles the F. L. and E. N. Dimicks, the latter later becoming the first mayor of Palm Beach.

"We went to Jacksonville first," says Captain Geer, a flourishing city even in those days, the family wisely choosing it as a place to augment their treasury before moving on to a frontier where it would be at least a year before they could realize returns on their crops.

Finally came the day when the family was to start on the last lap of their journey. There was great excitement in the air. The little captain (E.E.) recalls how he could hardly wait to get aboard the Volusia, a flat-bottomed, two-decker home, there being no place to store them, that "we experienced our first hurricane. The thatched roof blew off the house, and in order to get at our belongings we had to remove the backs of dresser drawers."

But the new life was exciting despite the hurricane fanfare, and in place of a hay-loft to romp in and cows and chickens that made up his child world back in Illinois, the little captain and his cousins played with toy boats carved by their elders from the fine Florida pine that grew here then. And they had little fishlines "with a bent pin serving as a hook," which Captain Geer says "we could drop in Lake Worth anytime and bring out a fish."

The entire island of Palm Beach was a veritable jungle and swampland in 1875 when the Geers and Dimicks first arrived, and save for about eight families living in the immediate vicinity of Palm Beach proper, there were no houses on either side of the lake for a stretch of 22 miles.

But while the youngsters played, their elders cleared the land, and although they never went in for wholesale growing of peppermint, their gardens were as fine as any they had known in Illinois, and efforts on their part to bring seeds and plantings from the Bahamas and the Keys, helped Palm Beach County to become the great agricultural center it is today.

Sometimes the pioneers became discouraged. So much of the land was under water, and at that time not easy to drain. "However," says Captain Geer, "land they purchased from the government for 85 cents an acre—my father's extended from the present Everglades Club to beyond Whitehall, sold ten years later for $250 an acre, so swamp or no swamp, they made a good choice."

The years passed quickly and by 1886 the Albert Geers decided to go back North in order to provide their young people with higher education. Palm Beach by that time had a school but its facilities were limited.

Captain Geer regretted the move and says many times as he trudged his way to an institution of learning in Union City, Michigan "with the snow blowing down my collar and up my pant legs, I'd think of this balmy land, and vow I'd return as soon as possible."

Meantime he met and fell in love with Miss Neva Wood, single mishap, found himself with all the business he could handle.

The old homestead built by Albert Geer in 1876 with lumber floated down from the north over numerous waterways. Later on the same site ground was broken for the construction of the world-famous Royal Poinciana Hotel and where the early Geer home stood, the Poinciana's immense veranda took shape.

He often mastered the famous Flagler's yacht, and 'The Alma,' first schooner in Lake Worth to carry its own electricity, was his baby.

A wonderful teller of tales, Captain Geer said 'The Alma' afforded plenty. "Commodore Clark liked to go, and go we and she too became a pioneer for in 1892 after he had returned to Palm Beach, earned a license for marine navigation and signed up with Captain U. D. Hendrickson who operated the first commercial schooners on Lake Worth, he went back to Michigan and brought home his bride.

Palm Beach by that time was beginning to be recognized as a winter resort worth its weight in gold. The Royal Poinciana was built and Flagler's railroad reaching out by the minute in an extension program that would shortly bring it to Palm Beach and on to Miami.

Many of the country's most fabulous yachts were appearing in local waters too, so that Captain Geer who frequently ran Hawks Channel down near the Keys (the marine burying ground of the east coast as it was known) without a did," he said, "often with his two sons, Louis and James aboard."

"We were down in Key West I recall when the Spanish-American War broke out, and I guess that was the most exciting experience in the long and interesting years I've spent here.

"We'd gone down to just cruise around, nobody really taking the rumblings of war too seriously. However we learned from Lt. Richard Pearson Hobson, awaiting orders at Key West, and often a guest aboard 'The Alma,' that it was only a matter of days.

"Lt. Hobson later became one of the heroes of the Spanish-American fracas. Commanded the collier, Merrimac which he took into Santiago Harbor with intent to sink, and so bottle up the Spanish fleet. The mission failed and Hobson and his crew were taken prisoner by the Spanish, and later released.

"Well he was there with us, and two fine gentlemen who were reporters for the New York World and the Journal. Had a big tug of their own equipped with cable-sending apparatus, and had been covering the rebellion in Cuba for some time.

"Hobson was awaiting orders. The reporters — well they didn't state their business. But I found out. I found out a lot of things all of a sudden one Sunday morning on April 25, 1898.

"It was a bright, clear day, and as Commodore Clarke left the ship for his usual morning rounds of the village, I fell to talking with the reporters. Hobson had left suddenly the night before — fact is we'd taken him out to The Iowa, at that time guarding the Key West harbor.

"Well the reporters got to talking, and told a story I thought would probably appear in one of their papers, or both. But it didn't, and it wasn't until many years later that I picked up a Sunday supplement, and read of their daring feat.

"Seems while they were in Cuba one of their best contacts was a wealthy Spanish planter. All of a sudden he disappeared. The Spanish took him prisoner, threw him into Morro Castle and fed him to the sharks. The reporters, Sco-

"They might have told more of their experiences had it not been that just at that moment I looked ashore to see Commodore Clarke high-tailing it along the pier frantically waving his big white cane.

"Get ready to sail Captain," he shouted, "we're at war."

"And let me tell you we scattered—the reporters to their bum-boats, we out to sea. I'd kept the steam up constantly since we arrived, and it didn't take long."

But it wasn't just down around the Keys that Florida's east coast felt reverberations of the conflict.

"Right here . . . right here in Palm Beach, there was plenty of excitement," the captain recalls.

"Contraband was run right down along the coast to aid the insurgents, we knew that," he said. "And of course we all knew Captain Napoleon Broward — Broward County was named for him, was hauling ammunition too, aboard his worthy little schooner, The Three Friends.

"But what we didn't know, was that The Dauntless, a neat little craft that used to pop up here quite frequently, was doing the same thing . . . not until one night when as we often did, a group of us stood visiting a little distance from Mr. Flagler's famous pier at the Breakers.

"Someone remarked that it looked funny to see the F.E.C. back across the tracks. And, all of a sudden we noticed The Dauntless slipping up to the pier and just as we started ville and Decker, told me they knew, because a big shark, caught and brought ashore in the city a few days later had the Spanish-Cuban planter's watch lodged in his belly.

About 1916 bowlers and bicycles were on their way out as dandies in dusters appeared with the country's new vehicle the driving machine. Pictured here The Pathfinders, fortunate folk from up the state of Maine who stopped to refuel in West Palm Beach before pushing on in a machine age trek of their own invention. Out to prove that the auto car had it all over the old gray mare, the enthusiasts caused quite a stir in the village when they posed for this photo at the home of a pioneer, the late E. K. Pierce (of 331 Clematis Avenue at that time). His daughter, Miss Ruby Edna Pierce, editor and manager of this publication and the Palm Beach Daily News, well recalls the incident . . . and the huffing and puffing that went on to get up steam in the hand-cranked jalopies.

"Well the planter had a daughter, and she too was imprisoned. But in a weather-beaten old house in the business section of Havana. Scoville and Decker found out where it was and set up a paint shop directly across the alley.

"The reason they happened to be in Key West at that time was because they had just sent the girl off to New York from that port.

"Got her out of the old house by placing a ladder across the alley, they said, and later dressed in boy's clothes she was escorted to their own tug right past the cunning Spanish officials.

to take note of the haste with which her crew moved, the blinding light of the trains' headlight was flashed ashore.

"What did we do? Why we just looked at one another, and sort of made a silent agreement that we hadn't seen a thing. If we were pioneers, we were patriots too, weren't we?"

And now in the twilight of a long and colorful career, the old captain, for he is old, as man figures time, sits with the former Miss Wood by his side, and reflects on that old favorite saying of his—"the fate of a man's life may be changed by the mere flip of a hand."

It was a good fate that came to him he says — a Palm Beach boy, a pioneer, a prosperous business man of the community . . . and all because of a hunt to grow peppermint and the glib tongue of a south Florida booster.

AMONG the PALMS

THE SMART HOTELS in Palm Beach are an integral part of the social activities of the resort and the managements plan extensive programs for the entertainment of their guests. All of the hostelryes report full bookings for the peak of the season, with many noted personages on the roster. Numerous members of the island's cottage colony, also enjoy the various hotel galas, and also choose them as settings for entertaining guests at cocktails, luncheon and dinner.

The Colony Hotel set a precedent for unique entertaining this month, when they were hosts at a "beachcomber" progressive party, for a number of Palm Beach Cottage Colony socialites.

The group, attired in casual clothes and dungarees, gathered at The Colony for an eggnog party and breakfast, before boarding Comdr. John M. L. Rutherford's yacht "Sea Dream III," for a cruise, which carried them into the jungles.

A buffet luncheon was served by The Colony, on one of the islands, with Allan Harris, popular singing accordionist, furnishing music for the occasion. The party arrived back in Palm Beach, just as the sun was setting.

Guests were: Mr. Bernard H. Cooley, executive vice-president and general manager of the hotel and Mrs. Cooley; Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall and his daughter, Mrs. Florence Kendall; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Peyton Jenkins; Comdr. and Mrs. Rutherford; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Pierson Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham; Mr. Ronald Commerford

Mrs. C. Aubrey Cartwright of New York and Cap Antibes, France, is at The Colony for the season, occupying one of the penthouses. She has as her guest, Mrs. Avril Alexander Sinclair, of Dun Vartonshire, Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bliss of Grosse Pointe, Michigan, are also January arrivals at the hotel and have a penthouse for the remainder of the season.

The conservative elegance of the Ambassador Hotel of Palm Beach, in appearance and appointments not unlike those handsome apartment houses of New York City's exclusive residential areas, is appealing to discerning northerners who make Palm Beach their home during the winter months. Refreshing in its spaciousness and easy access to sea and sun and with every consideration by the management for the personal comfort of its guests, the Ambassador is a home away from home, to be lived in and enjoyed as you choose—elaborately or simply.

Managing director of the Ambassador again this year is Mr. Larry Borsten whose wide experience as head of a number of the country's outstanding hotels, plays a most important part in moulding the Ambassador into not just a resort menage, but a year-round residence for south Florida visitors.

Also the Ambassador provides for those who prefer suite or room accommodations, and in conjunction with such service, as well as to accommodate apartment dwellers, and for that matter residents, generally, of the resort, there is maintained, the Embassy Room and adjoining Embassy Terrace for lunching and dining with entertainment each evening by Norman Wallace, accomplished artist of the entertainment world—his piano and song repertoire accenting French ballads.

In appearance one might suppose the Ambassador an apartment house exclusively, and to be sure it does maintain apartments and penthouses, many of them unequalled in exclusive decor and appointments. Back this season where they are enjoying life in their spacious penthouse atop the Ambassador are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Duane Jacobs, their guests for the holiday season, Mrs. Jacobs daughter-in-law and son, Mr. and Mrs. K. Ray Katz from New York. Mr. Katz returned to New York recently, his wife staying on to enjoy a longer holiday as guest of the Jacobs. Mrs. Katz is the former Miss Monica Trythall of London, England, where she was graduated from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. She played the role of Jane Seymour in Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of The Thousand Days," on Broadway, and in London is a popular radio, stage and cinema star. Mr. Katz, who served five years as a lieutenant Colonel in the Army, met his wife while stationed in London.

Here earlier for a stay at the Ambassador was Andre Kostelanetz, renowned conductor who stopped off at his favorite Palm Beach home enroute to Nassau. He was not accompanied by Miss Pons who is unable to leave New York this winter because of opera commitments. After a winter in New York he will leave in April for Europe where he is scheduled to be guest conductor of the London and Stockholm Symphony Orchestras.

Among those residing at the Ambassador this season are Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Levy of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Rosenbloom from Margate, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Julien Saks of New York, Dr. and Mrs. William Engel of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Scheerr of Elkins Park, Pa.; Dr. Leon Hermann, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Mendelssohn of Montreal, Canada; and Mr. and Mrs. A. Levine, Rochester, N. Y.

Among the season's guests who have already arrived to stay through the season at the Pennsylvania Hotel are: Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Macvie, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Shaw, Meriden, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wickens, Plymouth, Michigan; Mrs. L. P. Wittichen, Birmingham, Alabama; Mr. C. M. Barr, Fairton, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. C. G. MacReynolds and family, Asbury Park, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burke, Bayside, N. Y.

PALM BEACH HOTEL

ACTIVITY, LOTS OF IT, and well varied; that has been an important ingredient in the magic potion which has drawn distinguished guests to the Palm Beach Hotel for the past few years, and this season is proving no exception.

For in the flora-bedecked lounges, gardens, and salons of this, one of the most delightful of the larger hotels of Palm Beach, are passed days and evenings filled with myriad things to see, hear, and do, which, combined with the glorious weather and natural beauty of the countryside, makes parting a rather unsweet sorrow.

A glance at the "Bill of Fun" for the past few weeks bears colorful witness to this claim. Every Monday and Thursday afternoon since the holidays, for example, Mr. Michael Honigsberg, a portrait artist of repute among some important New York families, has been flitting around the bougainvillea-draped loggia, instructing groups of guests in the use of brush, paint, and canvas. Indeed, Mr. Honigsberg has been giving pointers in painting to guests of the Palm Beach Hotel for six seasons and has done similar work at the Lido on Long Island.

Honigsberg's art classes are his own development and are rather unique. Rather than follow the conventional method of starting his students on pencil or charcoal sketching, the New York artist gets them painting with oils during the early sessions. This provides, according to Honigsberg, "immediate fascination with the medium for both student and teacher."

This scheme has proved itself over the years by the number of neophyte brush-wielders who have developed remarkable talent they never knew existed.

Honigsberg, who has painted Danish royalty as well as New York society, can be seen on other afternoons working on portraits in the lounge.

Another art receiving recent attention at the hotel was music. Not that every evening at the Palm Beach Hotel is not filled with first, dinner music by Dick Gasparre's celebrated society orchestra, after-dinner interludes by the Paul Barad ensemble, and, later in the evening, show backgrounds by the Gasparre group and dance tempos by both combinations. But one evening recently was devoted to a "Pop" Concert by the Gasparre orchestra that was especially memorable.

The lounge was filled to capacity with guests who responded enthusiastically to the well-varied program of eight selections ranging from Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture to

Richard Rodgers' stirring "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," and including Ravel's "La Valse," Victor Herbert's "The Fortune Teller" a medley from "Boheme," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" Suite, Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody, Hora Stacato by Heifetz, and the ballet theme, "Dance of the Hours," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda."

For a complete change-of-pace, guests were treated recently to a "Palm Beach Hotel Night" at the Palm Beach Kennel Club. A large section of the clubhouse was filled with guests of the hotel intent on handicapping themselves a winner or two. Many of them did strike it rich, but it was an exciting evening even for the less lucky. The ninth race, named the Palm Beach Hotel Handicap, saw the winning dog and his owner presented a trophy by the hotel and flowers by the Club by two charming guests, Mrs. Gerald Feinholtz of Long Beach, N. Y., and Mrs. Borys Mirkin, of New York City.

In another vein, the first hotel showing of the latest Sophie Original Collection, and the only hotel display in Palm Beach of spring, 1952, fashions by Saks Fifth Avenue's famous couturier, was seen last week in the hotel's West Patio. "Elegant" was the word for the daytime and after-dusk creations shown by a group of lovely models. The collection had been flown down from New York.

Of course, the foregoing "goings-on" are in addition to the regular weekly entertainment programs featured throughout the season that have brought to the West Patio stage some fine performers, and are due to lure very-top-drawer talent to the hotel in coming weeks. They are also additional to the regular Friday evening "Champagne Hours" at which terpsichore is titan and mambo, rumba, fox trot, and tango reign supreme. These informal sessions find Pat Gioiele, hotel dance-master, conducting a delightful program of dancing, including demonstrations by his studio staff and a contest among the guests.

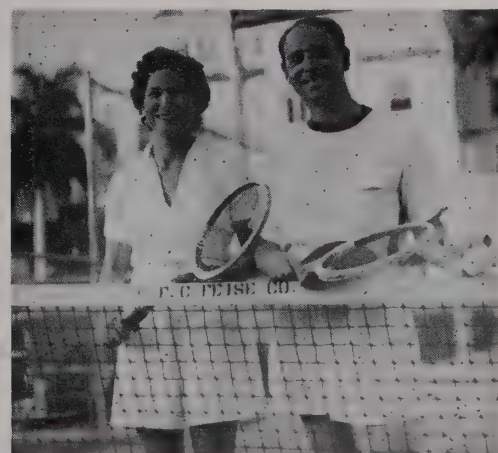

Enjoying the Palm Beach Hotel's full program are guests from many states and Canada, among these outstanding personages in various fields. From little Smithtown, Long Island, comes a big figure in the world of crime detection, Mr. Jacques Brill. Inventor of the lie detector, Mr. Brill made headlines a few years ago when he saved an innocent man from the electric chair. Since then, the affable detective has devised numerous electronic inventions to win himself the title of "The Modern Sherlock Holmes," and has been called away on important cases even during his vacation.

Distinguished guests are the Louis Waldmans, prominent attorneys from New York City. Mr. Waldman has served on the state assembly.

Mrs. Gerald Feinholtz and Mrs. Borys Mirkin with Don Branson, owner of greyhound Still Wandering, winner of Palm Beach Hotel Handicap.

Time out from an exciting set on the Hotel court is taken by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bruno, of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Eckes, Miss Evelyn.....Graham-Eckes School, N. County Road

Mid-season racing at Hialeah finds the Sport's leading performers competing daily, except Sundays. Contenders for the $50,000 Widener, February 23, and the $50,000 Flamingo, March 1, are being determined now. And the most important grass race of the winter, the Miami Beach, will be contested February 16 over the mile-and-a-half distance.

The 1951 calendar is out-of-date, yes—but hold onto it, for a moment. Lay it on your desk—and put your Will beside it.

Now think over just a few of the events of 1951. The new tax bill—the rise in living costs—the rearmament program—changes in your family, and your financial set-up.

How does your Will look now? As sound as a year ago—as able to give your family what they need, what you want them to have?

Or is it like the 1951 calendar—out-of-date...

Every Will has its financial aspects—and that's where we can help. So when you review your Will, call on us!—and of course, your lawyer.

Hop Along Casually!

Some folks plan a trek South in the winter, others head North. But wherever your plans take you why not make The Greenbrier a stopover along the line.

Driving a great distance is always more pleasurable and safer if you take your time and drive casually. You'll find fun at The Greenbrier you've never dreamed of. Golf on any of the three magnificent courses, swimming, hiking and some of the most picturesque bridge paths in America. The baths are here, too, at the world-famous White Sulphur Springs Spa. Yes, every day is a pleasure day from morning until night here at The Greenbrier.

So hop along casually folks, and pay us a visit along the way at The Greenbrier. Reduced rates now in effect, from $15.00 per day, per person—including Greenbrier's incomparable meals.

A panoramic view of the Royal Poinciana Hotel, which was the center of social activities in Palm Beach twenty years ago and still is a conversation piece in the resort. In this elaborate setting were centered the most important social functions, and the clothes of the feminine contingent were a perpetual style parade.

Pertaining to DELRAY BEACH SHORES

May I:

Have your attention for a few minutes of your valuable reading time and present for your pleasure — “an announcement of our present new project — and “news” of our next development” — and extend to you a cordial invitation to “inspect our properties at your convenience”.

Delray Beach Shores:

A complete residential community. Something new and something different — “each lot a water-front property”, and located less than one-half mile South of Delray Beach on South Ocean Boulevard. This development is practically complete with only 70 water-front homesites, and located just across the street from the ocean, with one-half mile of choice property — of which one-quarter mile faces Ocean Boulevard and one-quarter mile on the deep Florida Intra-Coastal Waterway. Lots now priced at $6,000.00 each, and upwards.

Then -- our next -- “And we hope, history-making development” --

We are proud to present -- “The Presidential Colony of America.”

The land has already been conveyed to this company. Strictly an apartment area. Each building will be carefully planned and erected to “typify the particular period of architecture of each President”, and to be named in sequence for each of our former Presidents. For instance — “The Mount Vernon” for George Washington; “The Brick Colonial” for Thomas Jefferson; “The Log Cabin type for Abraham Lincoln”; and so forth.

Each building is to be of two stories in height, and to consist of four to twelve units in each building.

Our Executive Office will be “an exact replica” of The White House and will be used in the future as “The Administrative Building”.

Plans for “this coming historical development” are now in progress for 1953 completion.

Century Plant Provides Lovely Decorative Effect

A beautiful specimen of a Century plant, the agave or American aloe. An important decorative plant of the American desert and that of Mexico, plants of its genus furnish fibre, soap and a number of famous beverages. The above is one of many that decorate lawns of the Palm Beaches—this one found in Sea Breeze Avenue at the home of the Hugo Kraves.

your midtown activities*

You need not walk blocks, nor ride taxis from your appointments in New York. Just a few steps, then a swift elevator ride, and you're relaxing in your quiet, comfortable hotel suite or room, far above Manhattan's busy whirl . . . yet so close to its diverse attractions.

To suit your every mood and requirement, these three superior hotels offer you a diversity of accommodations, with an uncompromising standard of service. Next time you visit New York, stop at The Biltmore, Park Lane, or The Barclay.

(The Barclay and Park Lane offer a limited number of furnished apartments on seasonal or annual lease, featuring pantries with refrigeration.)

OLDSMOBILE "88" "ROCKET"

Rocketing up-UP-UP to the greatest heights in Oldsmobile history! It's Oldsmobile's new "Rocket" Engine Super "88"—the climax of ten years' planning and work—truly an all-time great among motor cars.

There's a new "Rocket" Engine Car for every budget! Oldsmobile's new "88"
Series starts at prices just above the lowest, with four great models to choose from. Each new "88" is powered by the new gas-saving "Rocket" Engine! Each offers new smoother-than-ever Oldsmobile Hydra-Matic Drive as optional equipment at moderate extra cost. From any angle . . . from every angle . . . the Oldsmobile "Rocket 88" is the outstanding value leader in it's field
